"Tripping hither, tripping thither,
Nobody knows why or whither."

The description of the President's vacation camp is calculated to start a rush for time-tables and summer resort literature.

Oh, for a lodge—ten rooms, or maybe eight—
In some vast wilderness, a small estate,
Of twenty thousand acres, more or less,
Where rumor of conventions shall not press,
And ballyhoo, and din, and howl, and roar,
Might never reach me more!

The National Press Club gives Mussolini the Italian boot.

It is understood that as chairman of the Notification Committee, Charlie Hilles will take a canoe and a couple of paddles with him to the Kansas City convention, and make the balance of the trip by dogsled.

* * * *

Speaking of canoes, the Corn Belt Federation puts President Coolidge and Secretary Hoover in the same boat.

* * * *

'Tis feared that the Press Club, in rejecting the head of the Italian State, after having previously notified him of his election to membership, overlooked the fact that the head of another State is a member of that club.

Historic though it may be, this old canal, whose centenary is to be celebrated today, had earlier rivals, the first waterway, connecting James Creek and Tiber Creek, being projected in 1791 in the original L'Enfant plan, and work upon it begun a year later, and eventually finished by private enterprise and a lottery in 1815, five years after President Madison had turned the first sod on May 10, 1810; and earlier than this the Potomac Co. had a canal that passed the Little Falls on the Maryland side of the river, and the Great Falls on the Virginia side.

* * * *

Incidentally, if the B. & O. Railroad hadn't celebrated its centenary one year too soon, it might be joining with the C. & O. Canal today, for these two enterprises were launched on the same date. Consider now what the iron horse has done to the towpath mule, and what the gas-fed steed and the winged man have done to the iron horse. We may yet see a locomotive alongside a canal boat in the museum.

Robert M. Washburn, the well-known Bull Moose, announces his intent to try to yank off Dave Walsh's senatorial toga, but we shall wait until we know who has been nominated at Kansas City before admitting that William M. Butler himself will not try to sit in the big game once more. Mr. Coolidge's coat-tails would be as good as a trimotored airplane in the Bay State this year.

The report that Herbert Hoover has thoughtfully drafted a farm plank to be handed to the resolution committee at Kansas City looks a good deal like waving an old-fashioned red flannel petticoat at a snorting wild bull of the prairies.

The Welch bill will not prevent any Government clerk from getting a promotion who can.

"Braid the raven hair—
Weave the supple tress—

Art and nature, thus allied,
Go to make a pretty bride."

A little lady who some day may sit upon the imperial throne of Japan leaves Washington to become the bride of Prince Chichibu. Yum-yum, as ever in the story books, finds her Nanki-Poo.

The sensation of today becomes the hackneyed story of tomorrow. The next aviator to get a Pacific thrill on the front page will have to hop from America to Asia in one flutter of the wings.

Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek doesn't seem to have heard that Peking is the Forbidden City.

Senator Reed has selected the gentleman who will present his name to the Houston convention, but what steps has he taken to placate the Smith vote that can dictate the nomination even if it can't put the Governor over?

I've often heard my grand-dad say—
Forget it to your sorrow—
"The enemies we make today
Will pester us tomorrow."

If Mr. Hoover's spontaneous uprisers should carry over into the big battle the political ineptitude—as Mr. Hughes would say—they have demonstrated in the preconvention campaign by November they would defeat him themselves without any assistance from the Democratic candidate.

PEKING SURRENDER IS BEING ARRANGED BY "SAFETY" BODY

Chang and Diplomats in Reported Farewell Conference.

DECISIVE FIGHT NEAR 35 MILES FROM CITY

Japanese Alarmed by Steady Approach of Nationalists' Armies to Capital.

Peking, June 1 (A.P.). — Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, who has held dictatorial powers at Peking for nearly two years, is on the verge of laying down his command. He received the representatives of the powers at the palace today, and, although he maintained the fiction that he was awaiting the result of a decisive fight with the Nationalists at Liuliho, 35 miles southwest of Peking, the universal belief is that the present regime in the capital is ended. It is expected that the city will be transferred quietly to the victorious Nationalists under Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek.

It is understood, in fact, that on Marshal Chang's instructions a circular telegram is being drafted, to be issued as soon as possible, ordering a cessation of hostilities.

Chang Tso-Lin's reception of the diplomats today, although no word of evacuation of Peking was mentioned and nothing was said about Chang's own departure, was regarded as a farewell function.

Promises Protection.

The former Manchurian war lord, in simple Chinese costume, gathered the ministers, the military attaches and other legation officials about him and calmly explained what he had done during his administration to protect the rights and interests of foreigners and to preserve peace in China. He promised that he would continue to afford protection, regardless of his personal whereabouts.

Everything remained quiet and orderly, but those in charge of the foreign detachments are making all needful precautionary dispositions in order to protect their nationals, particularly at Tientsin, against any possible trouble when the military turnover occurs.

Already a committee of safety, known as "The Chinese Charitable Relief Association," is making arrangements for the orderly transfer of the city. This committee is headed by Gen. Wang Shih-Chen, who was chairman of the committee of safety during the period between the Kuominchun evacuation of and entry of the Mukden troops into Peking in 1926. He was minister of war in 1916 and chief of general staff the following year.

Though foreign residents are moving out of Peking, only the Japanese are showing any evidence of alarm over the coming of the Nationalists. There are plenty of troops, however, to guard them and all other foreigners in the legation quarter where, if necessary they will be concentrated.

3 KILLED, 6 INJURED BY ACID TANK BLAST

Kearney, N. J., Commuters in Panic as Bricks Fly; Three on Tracks Hit.

Kearney, N. J., June 1 (A.P.).—An explosion, caused by the bursting of an acid tank in the nitration plant of the Du Pont Viscoloid Co. today tore a three-story building to pieces and brought death to three men and injuries to six others. Robert King and John O'Brien were killed almost instantly. Ralph Saenger, 29, an electrician, died in a hospital.

The explosion lifted the corrugated iron roof of the structure straight into the air and hurled bricks from the walls in every direction. A score of women in another department of the Du Pont plant were treated for shock. Commuters waiting for a train, at the Erie station, 100 feet away, were thrown into a panic as one of their number was struck by a flying brick.

Of the others hurt, three were struck by descending debris, while they were pumping along on a handcar on the Erie tracks.

Queen Marie Suffers Neuralgia Attacks

Bucharest, Roumania, June 1 (A.P.). Queen Marie is resuming her activities after an indisposition which interrupted them for several days.

The Associated Press correspondent was informed at the palace today that "her majesty recently suffered a sharp attack of rheumatic neuralgia and was confined to her bedroom for five days by extremely painful attacks, which, however, were not dangerous. She resumes her audiences today."

The queen was able to attend the Roumanian Academy's commemorative session to the late King Ferdinand yesterday.

PRESS CLUB RECONSIDERS MUSSOLINI AS MEMBER

Constitutional Protest Signed by 25 Men, Effective Against His Admission.

HAD BEEN FELICITATED

The board of governors of the National Press Club last night unanimously voted to withdraw from further consideration for membership in the club the name of Benito Mussolini, premier of Italy.

Two weeks ago J. Fred Essary, president of the club, sent a cablegram to Mussolini at Rome congratulating the premier on his election as a nonresident member of the club and sending the best wishes of fellow members.

The action of the board of governors last night followed a protest signed by 25 members of the club against the election of Mussolini because of his treatment of the press and also because it was contended the by-laws of the club had been violated in notifying Mussolini of his selection.

W. H. Atkins, secretary of the club, last night made the following announcement:

"On motion of J Fred Essary, seconded by Edgar Markam, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That a constitutional protest of more than ten active members, assigning reasonable cause, having been filed with the board of governors against the nomination of Benito Mussolini for nonresident membership, his name is hereby withdrawn from further consideration in accordance with the by-laws of the club."

Phone System May Buy Radio Corporation

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—The New York Times tomororw will say that the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., which recently completed a $300,000,000 merger with the Postal Telegraph Co., is negotiating to acquire the communications system of the Radio Corporation of America.

The negotiations are being furthered with the objective of forming a combined radio-telegraph-cable-telephone system covering the Western Hemisphere. The I. T. & T. is expected to acquire the transmission service of the Radio Corporation for a cash consideration which may in turn be distributed among radio stockholders as a cash dividend.

FORMER CONGRESS MEMBER INDICTED IN TRAIN ROBBERY

C. S. Wharton Is Alleged to Have Taken Part of $133,000 Loot.

GANG DIVIDED BOOTY AT HIS HOME, CHARGE

Phone Message Tapped, Telling Lawyer Where Share Could Be Found.

Chicago, June 1 (A.P.).—Charles S. Wharton, former representative in Congress and former assistant State's attorney, and six others were indicted today by a Federal grand jury on charges of robbery of the United States mails and conspiracy to rob in connection with the $133,000 mail train robbery at Evergreen Park last February 25.

The indictment charged that the actual participants in the robbery had gone to Wharton's home in his absence, divided the loot there and left $4,000 for the Chicago criminal lawyer, presumably as a legal fee should they be caught.

Among those indicted with Wharton were Charles ("Limpy") Cleaver, alleged head of the band; William Donovan, Frank Meccia, Lawrence O'Brien Virgil Litsinger and John Flannery. Litsinger, nephew of a Chicago politician, and Flannery, pal of "Midget" Ferenekes, notorious gunman now in Joliet Penitentiary, still are at large. Two other alleged members of the robber band have been killed since the holdup, both, the police believe, by members of their own band.

Bonds $10,000 to $100,000.

Wharton's bonds were placed at $10,000 and those of the others at $100,000 each. Wharton's home in Beverly Hills was searched immediately after the robbery. Government agents said they found locks from some of the mail pouches in an adjacent vacant lot.

Federal agents said they had tapped telephone wires and listened to a conversation in which Cleaver told a man at Wharton's home where the loot left for Wharton could be found. About one-third of the loot has been recovered, some of it in Cleaver's home.

While Wharton is also named as an actual participant in the robbery, Federal officials said they expected to convict only for conspiracy which carries a maximum sentence of two years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine. O'Brien and Donovan are reported to have made the confessions implicating Wharton.

Women Betray Robbers.

The indictment charges that Cleaver and Donovan procured machine guns in the robbery, that these two and Meccia obtained dynamite used to blow the doors of the mail car open.

8 Are Killed in Riot Over Killing of Cow

Simla, India, June 1 (A.P.).—Six sikhs were killed and four wounded and two Mohammedans killed and five wounded in fighting yesterday at Malipur, near Rupar, when the Sikhs tried to prevent the slaughter of a cow. Police fired in an effort to stop the riot, but they believe that no casualties resulted from their shooting. One Sikh constable was later caught and killed by a mob.

School Business Manager Of High Grade Proposed

Congress Chieftains Urge Appointment at Conference With Board of Education—Also Would Lift Ban on Outside Teachers—Survey Planned.

Appointment of a high-class business manager to handle expenditures of the Washington school system and a lifting of the bars against outside teachers was recommended to the Board of Education at a conference at the Capitol yesterday.

Members of the board were summoned to the Capitol by three men who have much to say about local appropriations—Senator Phipps (Republican), of Colorado, chairman of the District subcommittee of the Senate appropriations committee; Representative Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, chairman of the District subcommittee of the House appropriations committee, and Representative Holaday (Republican), of Illinois, vice chairman of the latter subcommittee.

The appropriations chieftains recommended that the teaching and business ends of the school system be divorced. If this were done, it was said, it would relieve Dr. Frank Ballou, the superintendent, of many business worries and permit him to devote more of his time to purely pedagogic tasks.

The new business manager would take over everything of a business nature except teachers' salaries, which would be left to Dr. Ballou. It would be the expert's job to supervise the expenditures for construction, for supplies and for other school needs. The amount of money which will be spent in the next fiscal year for the schools will be $12,000,000.

It was Representative Simmons who suggested lifting the bars against outside teachers. At present there is a clause in the law which provides that only graduates of the Wilson Normal School may be appointed as teachers in the elementary grades.

Simmons feels that this provision is unfair to the local taxpayers in that it interferes with the employment of the highest type of teachers. The Wilson Normal graduate, even though she be the lowest in her class, he said, gets a teaching job, while the woman graduated with highest honors outside of Washington is denied one.

It also was suggested that the course at the Wilson Normal School be extended to four years and that the graduates be awarded degrees.

The members of the Board of Education were told to think over the recommendations that had been made and be prepared to let Congress know in December whether or not they indorsed them.

Meantime, the Bureau of Efficiency will make a survey of other cities to determine what they are doing about handling business matters in the schools and what the rule is regarding the employment of outside teachers.

COOLIDGE, HOOVER AND JARDINE MEET ON FARM AID PLANK

Commerce Secretary Has Prepared Draft of Pledge, Is Report.

THREATS OF REVOLT MADE IN CORN BELT

Federation Serves Notice It Will Not Support President or Californian.

Various phases of the farm relief question were under discussion yesterday at a White House conference. President Coolidge, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine participated, remaining together for an hour and a half after the regular Cabinet meeting.

While no announcement was made, it was reported that the agricultural plank to be incorporated in the Republican platform at Kansas City was discussed. Secretary Hoover framed a preliminary draft of the plank which was submitted to the resolutions committee as embodying the administrations ideas on the farm relief question at the Cleveland convention four years ago.

It is understood that he has collaborated with Secretary Jardine in working out a plank to be offered to the resolutions committee this year. The conference also is understood to have dealt with plans for developing an administration farm relief program for submission to Congress at its next session.

Special Session Doubted.

The President's announcement of his summer vacation plans seems to have established the fact that there was no basis for rumors that he might convene Congress in special session immediately after the national convention for the purpose of considering farm relief legislation.

It is doubted if the President now has any thought of convening Congress in special session in advance of the November elections. Members of Congress would not relish a session in the fall in the midst of the campaign. It might be possible, however, that the President would call Congress in session immediately after the election in order to get an early start on farm relief legislation.

The President made it known yesterday that he has no intention of accepting any invitations to make speeches on the way to his Wisconsin summer camp. The President told callers that last year he spoke at Gary, Ind., in the district of Representative Wood (Republican), Indiana, on his way to South Dakota and it seemed to have a bad effect on the congressman.

This reference was supposed to relate to Mr. Wood's insistence that the Government spend large sume for the building of new ships. The President has opposed such a program.

$90,000 ALIENATION VERDICT TO WOMAN

First Wife of Asbestos Firm President Asked $250,000 From Second Wife.

Elizabeth, N. J., June 1 (A.P.).—Mrs. Katherine Scharwath, first wife of John A. Scharwath, president of the National Asbestos Manufacturing Co., of Jersey City, today was awarded $90,000 in her $250,000 alienation of affections suit against Scharwath's second wife, Mrs. Catherine S. Brooks Scharwath.

Scharwath married the second woman four days after his first wife had obtained a divorce.

The first Mrs. Scharwath testified she had been a great attribute to her husband's success and "slaved" to help him. She was a "nuisance and a nagger," and was not qualified to do any work in his plant.

The second Mrs. Scharwath testified, on the other hand, that circumstances brought about by her predecessor had forced her into a loveless match. "If his first wife hadn't talked about me I never would have married him," she said.

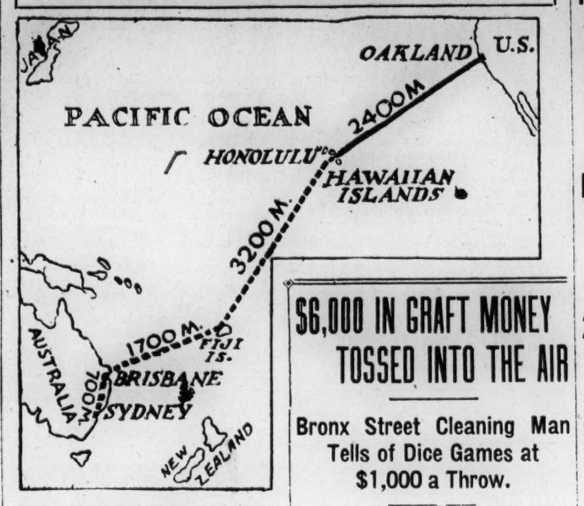

Five Severe Quakes Are Recorded Here

(Associated Press.)

An earth temblor of marked severity lasting for three hours, the fifth in the past 24 hours, was recorded yesterday on the Georgetown University seismograph. The shock commenced at 7:14 a. m., Dr. F. J. Tondorf, director of the observatory, reported.

Dr. Tondorf placed the scene of the temblor about 8,600 miles from Washington, probably in the Indian Ocean, where the four previous shocks recorded Thursday, in his belief, may have occurred.

CLERK PAY RAISE HELD NO BAR TO PROMOTIONS

Officials Deny Reports, Pointing Out That Welch Law Affects Only Salaries.

M'CARL CLEARING RULES

The Welch act, which increases the salaries of 45,000 Government workers here July 1, will not affect the regular promotions due at that time, according to a survey made yesterday. Personnel officers said they saw no reason why the new salary law should interfere with promotions, and they indicated they would go along recommending promotions just as though the law had never been enacted.

About 15,000 employes, who have attained the necessary efficiency ratings are scheduled to receive promotions July 1. In some cases, the promotions carry even larger increases than are provided for them by the Welch act.

The Federation of Federal Employes has received numerous inquiries from employes as to whether or not the Welch act will interfere with their promotions. Many of them fear that their chiefs will try to deny them the promotions in order to save money.

But judging from the survey made yesterday, the employes will not only get their promotions but will receive the benefits of the Welch act as well.

Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau, took the position that the Welch act was in no way related to promotions; that it simply revised the salary ratings in the classification act. Promotions based on efficiency ratings, he said, would be made July 1 to whatever extent the bureau's appropriation allowed.

F. A. Birgfeld, chief clerk of the Treasury Department, expressed the same view as Gen. Hines. However, he pointed out that "wholesale" promotions were not contemplated in his department.

One of the best features of the Welch act, Mr. Birgfeld said, was that it would boost the average salary in many grades, thus making promotions pos-

Country Club Holdup Nets $1,600 Pay Roll

Indianapolis, June 1 (A.P.).—Four bandits this morning held up the Indianapolis Country Club and escaped with a $1,600 pay roll. This is the second robbery of country clubs here within two days. Eight bandits held up the Broadmoor Country Club Wednesday night and escaped with money and jewels to the amount of $100,000.

Charles H. Horne, cashier of the club, was carrying the pay roll, and as he walked across a small bridge leading to the club grounds a robber, revolver in hand, stopped him and James Robertson, of Detroit, a visitor, and two negro waiters.

The robber seized the satchel of money from Horne and ran to a road, where an automobile stood with the motor running and occupied by three men. He jumped into the waiting car, which drove away at high speed.

$6,000 IN GRAFT MONEY TOSSED INTO THE AIR

Bronx Street Cleaning Man Tells of Dice Games at $1,000 a Throw.

SURE OFFICIALS SHARED

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—Tossing $6,000 in small bills into the air, "just for fun," was one of the ways of disposing of "about $80,000 easy money" he collected last year, William Loughheed, suspended employe of the Street Cleaning Department, testified today at the investigation of charges of wholesale graft in the department.

One day at Belmont Park race track, he said, he dropped about $60,000. Often he played dice in a street cleaning department garage with other department employes at $800 to $1,000 a throw. An $800 bet on one race horse was nothing unusual, he testified, and it was a regular thing to play dice and poker with the loser contributing up to $6,000 a night.

Lougheed in the course of cross-examination asserted he was "morally certain that some of the money went downtown," meaning that officials of the department had been recipients of graft. He named several department executives, including Alfred A. Taylor, commissioner of the department; deputy commissioners and borough superintendents.

The witness said there had been graft in the Street Cleaning Department for the "30 years I have been in it."

Lougheed was a witness for the State against Charles A. McGee, assistant general superintendent, and William J. Oswald, fourth Bronx district superintendent, who are accused of sharing in $400,000 Street Cleaning Department graft which, it was charged, had been collected in a single Bronx district in three years.

U. S. HALTS FLYING BY 15,000 STUDENTS

Must Obtain Licenses After Physical Examination, Inspectors Insist.

Curtiss Field, N. Y., June 1 (A.P.).—Department of Commerce inspectors here began today to enforce a department regulation requiring all flying students to obtain student-pilot's licenses from the department at Washington after a physical examination.

The immediate result was a virtual cessation of student flying at this field, where only one of the 200 students was found to have observed the requirement, and at Roosevelt Field, where no student had obtained the license.

The inspectors estimated that enforcement of the regulation would "ground" from 15,000 to 25,000 flying students in 500 schools throughout the country, but they explained that this condition would be temporary and that the department at Washington could issue licenses within 24 hours, if required, after students have passed physical examinations.

Washburn, of Boston, Seeks Senate Seat

Boston, June 1 (A.P.).—Robert M. Washburn, president of the Roosevelt Club, today announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States senator. In his announcement he said: "I will retire at any time for William M. Butler, if he is drafted, but for no one else."

He added that his platform would be "the dryest which has yet been written."

FUEL RUNNING LOW, PACIFIC FLIERS WIN DASH TO HONOLULU

Radio Reveals Fear of Drop Into Sea; Gas for Three Hours Left.

2,400 MILES FLOWN IN UNDER 28 HOURS

Clouds Mistaken for Peaks; "Guess We're Lost," One Wireless Message.

Honolulu, June 1 (A.P.).—Spanning the Pacific air lane from Oakland, Calif., the giant trimotored monoplane, Southern Cross, landed at Wheeler Field, near here, at 12:19 p. m., Pacific Coast time, today, completing the first leg of a 7,788-mile air argosy from California to Australia.

The hazardous 2,400-mile ocean hop was made in 27 hours and 28 minutes.

A race with a fast failing gasoline supply developed in the closing hours of the flight, and there were tense moments when the plane's radio, which had sent out a dramatic account of the hopes, fears and emotions of the crew of four, flashed a message "guess we are lost."

There was little gasoline to spare when the great blue and silver Fokker came to a halt after its long cruise from the mainland. It was the fifth time that the perilous air passage had been successfully negotiated.

Fuel enough to have kept the monoplane in the air only three hours longer, 130 gallons, remained in the tanks when the huge plane landed at Wheeler field here today, it was announced at the field. There were 1,200 gallons in the tanks when the plane took off.

The fliers said they planned to carry 1,500 gallons of gasoline for the flight to Suva, which is about 730 miles longer than the Oakland-Honolulu leg.

Commanded by Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and with a crew of Charles T. P. Ulm, relief pilot; James Warner, radio operator, and Lieut. Harry Lyon, navigator, the plane took off from Oakland at 8:51 a. m. Pacific time, yesterday.

"No Trouble at All."

"We had a beautiful trip, no trouble at all," said Capt. Kingsford-Smith, first to leave the plane amid the plaudits of the emotional Hawaiian populace. "We will continue as planned to Suva."

If schedule is followed the fliers will hop off within a day or two on the second leg of 3,100 miles to Suva, on the tiny Fiji Islands. The take-off will be from a specially constructed runway on the Barking Islands Field at Kauai Island.

Escorted by Army and Navy planes the Southern Cross came over Wheeler Field, circled, and taxied down in front of the reviewing stand, where more than 2,000 persons had gathered for the welcome. Gov. Wallace R. Farrington of Hawaii was first to greet the intrepid crew.

About 10 o'clock last night the plane experienced its first reported trouble, when it was caught in a downward air current, and its radio was silenced after flashing out the brief message "hit an air pocket."

For more than an hour there was silence and anxiety ashore grew apace as the radio listeners remembered a similar message last summer from the Dallas Spirit, relief plane piloted by Capt. Will Erwin, who with his navigator A. H. Eichwaldt, lost their lives while attempting to find the missing Dole air race fliers.

Ship Out of Danger.

But suddenly the radio pulsed again, and the ship was reported out of the danger with only a loss of altitude.

Again today as the plane was within striking distance of the islands, anxiety was keenly pitched when the Southern Cross radioed that her fuel was running low and that she had lost her position.

This fear was unfounded, however, according to Navigator Lyon who reported on landing that the ship had not been lost.

"An interisland steamship navigator for four years and not able to find the island?" he questioned scornfully.

Almost continuously throughout the flight the radio transmitting set of the plane kept the world informed of the craft's progress. In the flight's later stages the operator reported battery trouble prevented reception, but perfect transmission continued.

Two hours before the craft landed the laconic message "Guess we are lost" was picked up. Earlier the fliers reported sighting land, but this erroneous report was followed by the explanation that "these clouds are fooling us. We thought we had sighted land but guess not."

Fuel Running Low.

Then came the joyful air tidings that the lofty Hawaiian peaks, about 165 miles away, had been sighted. This news was followed by the message at 11 a. m. that "we have just enough fuel to make it."

At 11:22 the ship radioed: "Twenty-si.. and a half hours in the air now. About time we were sighting some terra firma. Wonder if you are getting me now. Tell them to keep the destroyers leashed. We don't need them yet. Just banks of drifting clouds, but now we

COMMISSIONERS BAN PEDESTRIAN CONTROL FROM TRAFFIC CODE

Sixty New Regulations for Streets Tentatively Adopted by City Heads.

PARKING RESTRICTIONS GIVEN IN GREAT DETAIL

Proposal to Make Citizens on Foot Obey Signals at Crossings Rejected.

Control of pedestrian traffic, for which the Traffic Department of the District government has been striving ever since it was created, was again tossed into the discard by the Commissioners yesterday when they took up for consideration the general revision of the traffic code submitted to them six months ago by William H. Harland, director of traffic.

All of the proposed new regulations, some 60 of them, were tentatively adopted except two paragraphs so worded as to compel persons afoot to obey traffic lights and the semaphore and hand signals of policemen on pain of arrest. The entire newly revised code then was returned to Harland to make a final revision of the wording.

Most of the amendments related to new parking provisions, in minute detail, the creation of new one-way streets and new wording to clarify obscure passages. The sections of the code were rearranged.

Long Under Consideration.

After Harland submitted the code the Commissioners considered it for several weeks. It was returned to the traffic director once or twice for rearrangement and then it was adopted, early in the winter. The pedestrian-control provision was not clear on its face as such and the Commissioners did not realize that they had permitted it to slip into the new code. A day or two after it had been adopted they reconsidered it for the purpose of removing the pedestrian feature, and during the several months that have intervened it was permitted to remain pending without further consideration.

Yesterday they took it up and conferred with Corporation Counsel W. W. Bride, his assistant, Ringgold Hart; Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, and Harland, after which they agreed to all the amendments except that proposing to rule the manner of the crossing of streets by pedestrians.

On the latter point the traffic code will remain as it is at present. Pedestrians are forbidden to cross a stream of traffic on streets controlled by automatic signal lights. They may cross against a signal if there are no cars passing where they wish to cross. No effort has been made to enforce even the existing pedestrian control regulation.

Asphalt Contract Awarded.

The Commissioners also adopted an order, recommended by Harland, eliminating the flashing of all signal lights when there is an alarm of fire, as a signal to motorists that moving fire apparatus is on the streets.

A contract was awarded to the Cranford Co., Inc., for resurfacing streets by the heater method with type C oil asphalt at 82 cents per cubic foot.

Maj. L. E. Atkins and Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, assistants to the Engineer Commissioner; J. B. Gordon, sanitary engineer, and M. C. 101 Are Indicted In Huge Rum Plot

Chicago, June 1 (A.P.).—One hundred and one persons, including the president of Melrose Park, a village adjoining Chicago, were named in an indictment returned today by a Federal grand jury charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws.

Today's indictment lists the largest number of persons ever before accused of dry law violations in Federal court here. The district attorney's office declared the Melrose Park liquor syndicate in which those indicted today are accused of parts had an annual income of $5,000,000. It is accused of operating 119 stills in the village.

Gus B. Bohlander is the Melrose Park president named. Anthony Palma, a trustee, also was accused.

Mary Moten Recounts Tale Of Mother Piloting Adams

Washington Woman, Herself Now 73 Years Old, Tells How Parent, When 18, Took Part in Ceremonies Beginning the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal.

The daughter of the 18-year-old colored girl, who piloted the boat on which President John Quincy Adams road to the ceremonies which marked the beginning of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal a century ago, now lives in Chevy Chase. Her name is Mary Moten, 73 years old, and she is the mother of a large family. Her mother met and was courted by her father, Thomas Harris, while she rode on her father's canal boat and many times has the story of that famous ride and the turning of the soil with a golden spade been told to the girls.

The canal boat which Mary Moten's grandfather commanded was used on the old canal built by George Washington on the Virginia side. After this canal had proven practical it was decided to build the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal and bonds were sold in foreign countries to finance the undertaking.

The mother's name also was Mary. Mary Moten can't remember what her mother's maiden name was. "Children weren't told things in those days," she says. The older Mary died a short while ago at the age of 103 years, still clinging to her pipe and tobacco.

When a girl of 18, the father was captain of the boat in which the President rode, she told the children, and on that memorable day he made a bet that his daughter could pilot the boat with its distinguished guests, and so it was done.

The old woman told of dancing with the President, but whether she meant personally or in a group her children cannot tell. Her tale of the wondrous gleaming gold spade that turned the earth, however, they recall vividly. They also remember the tale of the wondrous barbecue which followed the ceremonies. It was at this barbecue that their father and mother met.

Mary Moten now owns a bit of property at 5303 Broad Branch road which has been spoken for by the Government for school property. The purchase price has not been delivered as yet, but the Government has an option on the ground. The property has belonged to her father since before the civil war. She was born there and was a sizeable girl, she says, when the war disturbed the quiet woodlands surrounding them. Her father "would go to town several times a week to haul their produce for the rebels" in the neighborhood "who were not permitted to go to town themselves," she says.

Mary says the folks out that way now are "land poor." Why, they even have to build their garages for their automobiles under their houses, she says. Often she sighs for the broad expanse of woods and the water hole in which she waded in childhood. She is unable to work now, but in her prime she was up at 5 in the morning and working in the kitchen to feed her brood.

13 WITNESSES TESTIFY AT TRIAL OF STEWART

DOCUMENTS ARE FILED

(Associated Press.)

Thirteen witnesses paraded across the witness stand yesterday to conclude practically the Government's side in the trial of Robert W. Stewart on charges of having refused to answer questions asked him February 2 and 3 regarding the Continental Trading Co. oil deal by members of the Senate oil committee.

Besides the testimony of witnesses, including that of Senators Nye (Republican), North Dakota, and Walsh (Democrat), Montana, chairman and prosecutor, respectively, of the Senate investigating committee, the Government introduced, over defense objections, a batch of documents in an attempt to build up their contention that the questions asked Stewart were pertinent to the oil inquiry.

Only the offering of few more documents remained to complete the Government presentation when court adjourned until Monday. After these are offered the defense will call the first of its six witnesses, including two newspaper men, through whom it expects to show that they, not the members of the committee, prompted the questions put to the Indiana Standard Oil Co official.

Justice Frederick L. Siddons, presiding, asked both Senators Nye and Walsh before they were excused whether the oil committee was in "plenary" or regular session when Stewart was before it He previously had said that he probably would have to rule on the pertinency of the questions asked the official.

Nye and Walsh testified that to the best of their recollection Stewart had declined to answer the questions whether he knew of any one who received any of the Continental bonds or whether he had discussed the transaction with Harry F. Sinclair on the ground that they were not pertinent and because similar issues were involved in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy case then pending in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, where he was scheduled to appear as a witness.

Stenographers who reported the February 2 and 3 proceedings of the Senate committee, David S. Barry, sergeant at arms, and John J. McGrain, deputy sergeant at arms of the Senate, were others examined, while half a dozen employes of the State, Navy and Interior Departments were asked to identify certain signatures to oil contracts, and executive orders on the naval oil reserve lease matter.

CANADA FOR KELLOGG MOVE AGAINST WAR

Sees in Proposal Nothing Conflicting With Covenant of League of Nations.

(Associated Press.)

Canada, through her secretary of state for external affairs, W. L. Mackenzie King, has accepted Secretary Kellogg's invitation to join with the eleven other nations in the negotiation and signature of the proposed treaty for the renunciation of war.

"The government of Canada is certain that it speaks for the whole Canadian people," Mr. King said in his note made public here yesterday, "in welcoming the outcome in the proposed multilateral pacts of the discussion initiated almost a year ago between the governments of France and of the United States. It is pleased to find that in this attitude it is in accord with all his majesty's other governments. The proposals of the United States, by their directness and simplicity, afford the peoples of the world a new and notable opportunity of insuring lasting peace."

Careful consideration has been given by Canada, he said, to the question of whether the obligations of the covenant of the League of Nations would conflict in any way with the obligations of the proposed pacts. He added that it is "convinced that there is no conflict either in the letter or in the spirit between the covenant and the multilateral pacts, or between the obligations assumed under each."

CAPITAL IS ASKED TO AID UNION MISSION

William W. Everett Addresses Rally to Raise $54,710 to Cancel Mortgage.

Appealing particularly to the church people of Washington to help the Central Union Mission carry on more extensively its important work of salvaging the "down and out," William W Everett, vice president and general manager of Woodward & Lothrop's, made the principal address last night at an enthusiastic dinner meeting in the City Club when a ten-day campaign to pay off the mission's $54,710 indebtedness was successfully launched.

Edward H. de Groot, jr., general chairman of the campaign committee which represents 300 workers recruited largely from all the Protestant churches of the city, paid a tribute to John S. Bennett, the mission superintendent, and his wife on the occasion of the thirteenth anniversary of Mr. Bennett's appointment by the ministerial council to conduct the work of the mission here. Because she has refused to accept a salary for her duties as superintendent of the Emergency Home for Children, Mrs. Bennett was presented with a bouquet of flowers by Chairman de Groot.

Instructions to the 300 team workers and captains comprising the three divisions of the campaign were given by Director E. N. Huntress, of the Y. M. C. A. The first report from the teams will be received at a luncheon rally Monday at 12:30 o'clock at the City Club and daily thereafter until the end of the campaign.

GEORGETOWN TODAY OBSERVES CANAL'S 100TH ANNIVERSARY

Pageant Will Describe Ceremony of Century Ago, Inaugurating Project.

WILFLEY TO PERSONIFY JOHN QUINCY ADAMS

At Night There Will Be Choral Celebration and Illumination on Aqueduct Bridge.

Time will turn backward a century today when the one hundredth anniversary of the beginning of the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal will be celebrated with a pageant under the direction of the Progressive Citizens Association of Georgetown, assisted by the Community Center Department. President John Quincy Adams again will accept the golden spade from Gen. Mercer, president of the canal company, and again will turn the soil which signaled the inauguration of the canal project.

The historic features of that memorable day will be reenacted with absolute fidelity, the committee in charge of the pageant declares. Many will be reenacting the parts taken by their ancestors in the inauguration of the canal.

The centenary celebration will be held on the banks of the canal near the District line, just above Chain Bridge.

Embarkation of Adams.

Outstanding events in the program will include the embarkation of President John Quincy Adams, portrayed by the Rev. Earl Wilfley, and his escort at Wisconsin avenue and K street on United States Navy launches for the trip up the river to Fletcher's boathouse, followed by a regatta of decorated private yachts. This will be at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. The party will disembark at 4 o'clock at Fletcher's and embark on canal boats to be drawn up the canal by Army mules to the historic spot. The Marine Band will head this cortege in a canal boat. At 4:30 o'clock the party will leave the boats and take places at the ceremonials to be observed.

The Mayor of Georgetown, portrayed by Leslie J. Leiper, will present the golden spade to Gen. Mercer, played by John Prangley, who, in turn, will present it to President Adams. The President then will spade out a quantity of soil. The speeches made on that historic occasion will be repeated by the proxies. Then will follow the presentation to President Adams by Gen Mercer of the first tow boy on the canal.

Dances will be executed by the Capital Society, Children of the American Revolution, headed by Mrs. Henry Fenno Sawtelle; the Gov. Thomas Welles Society, C. A. R., of which Mrs. Clayton Emig is president; the Georgetown and Thomson Community Centers, of which Miss Marjorie Schuster is director, and the East Washington Community Center, directed by Miss Judy Lyeth.

Fechet, chief of the Army Air Corps; Assistant Secretary of the Navy in Charge of Aeronautics, Edward P. Warner, and Assistant Secretary of Commerce William P. MacCracken.

The aircraft program will include a fireworks display, with six salutes, and the spreading of the American flag across the skies, attack and pursuit evolutions by Army planes, and acrobatic stunts by the Navy and Marine planes and commercial planes.

Songs that were sung at the first turning of the soil will be repeated by the Palisades Chorus, led by Mrs. Ruth McCloskey.

At 8 o'clock in the evening a choral celebration will be held at old Aqueduct Bridge, to be participated in by the Federation of Choirs, led by Miss Virginia Williams; the Burleigh singers, led by Miss Williams; the Coleridge Taylor Choral Society, directed by Alfred H. Dubois, president of the Progressive Citizens' Association Street car and bus service to the scene of the ceremonies has been arranged for.

BUSHELS OF PISTOLS THROWN INTO RIVER

The Police Department yesterday wrote the closing chapter to the history of scores of criminal prosecutions when from the deck of the police launch Major Sylvester, several bushels of weapons and gambling paraphernalia were cast into the Potomac River off Hains Point.

The weapons, including pistols, rifles, razors, blackjacks and stilettoes, were part of the evidence used to convict, and in some cases to acquit, persons accused of law violations. The greater part of the boat's cargo was confiscated pistols and revolvers. There were also a number of lead pipes wrapped with tire tape. Of gaming equipment there was little; dice and cards were in the majority.

The disposal of the weapons was supervised by Policeman Edward Walls and Harry Bauer, of the property clerk's office. From a pile on the boat's bow they cast the guns singly over the side as the boat sped on its course. Many of the guns were dismantled and thrown piece by piece into the water. The police craft was manned by Harbor Policemen M. B. Harbaugh and R. G. Ault.

To the employes in the loans and currency division, he said, it would be a "Godsend," for their promotions have been estopped by the "average of the grade" provision in the law.

A set of general regulations governing the administration of the Welch act will be compiled and issued by the Comptroller General of the United States in time to adjust salaries for the July 15 pay day, it was learned yesterday.

Uncertainties in the minds of the responsible officers in the various departments as to the proper methods for administering and accounting under the new law will be submitted to Comptroller General McCarl in writing, and from these he plans to formulate regulations after a careful study of the law itself.

The Department of Agriculture already has laid its plans for administering the law and as soon as the regulations are received from the Comptroller they will be passed on to bureau chiefs, each of whom will be given a blank form to fill out in the nature of a request to authorize the putting into effect of the increases carried in the bill.

A list of all employes of the bureau, showing present salaries, salaries to be received under the new law and the amount of the increases, will also be attached.

UTILITIES TAUGHT VIEWS IN HUNDRED SCHOOLS, CHARGE

Report Read During Inquiry Says Public Sentiment Was "Faced About."

(Associated Press.)

Moves of the Rocky Mountain committee on public utilities information in connection with the appointment by the University of Colorado of the Colorado River committee, for the study of such projects as the proposed Boulder Canyon Dam, were disclosed yesterday in the Federal Trade Commission's investigation of power utilities.

A December 15, 1927, letter from Guy W. Faller, then chairman of the Rocky Mountain committee, to the university board of regents was introduced, and it urged the formation of such a committee by university authorities. At the same time Robert E. Healy, commission counsel, produced a memorandum by Hubert P. Wolfe which suggested "questions pertinent to the position of Colorado in the Colorado River controversy which might well be investigated by a fact-finding commission."

Wolfe had been identified previously as the beneficiary of a fellowship at the University of Colorado which is being financed jointly by the Rocky Mountain committee and the university.

His memorandum had come from the files of George E. Lewis, executive manager of the utilities information committee, who was under examination most of Thursday and all day yesterday but did not complete his statement. Topping the list of questions was a note to Lewis, saying, "These were written by 'yours truly' so that Peterson could talk intelligently to the board of regents. No doubt this will be just a start toward the continuance of such conditions."

Lewis Identifies Petersen.

Lewis identified "Petersen" as the director of the University of Colorado extension service. Elmore Petersen figured in the evidence, also having consulted Delph Carpenter, the Colorado water commissioner, regarding the proposed river commission, and Carpenter's name was on another exhibit in connection with supposed recommendations for membership on the commission.

A second list of names was found on a memorandum bearing the name of Lewis, and the commission as finally announced by the board of regents last December included some of the men named on both lists. Among them was Wolfe.

Healy interrogated Lewis sharply regarding the commission, and the utilities representative denied that his committee had influenced the selection of members. Healy asked whether Lewis did not expect a report against the Boulder Dam project by the commission, and Lewis did not agree.

Other evidence entered yesterday dealt largely with activities of the Rocky Mountain committee in seeking to impart its viewpoint through the high schools of Colorado, New Mexico and Wyoming. These were summed up in a report made after the third year of operation, which said that the committee was "rapidly withdrawing from mental circulation the countless counterfeit ideas relative to the public utility business which have been foisted upon the people for so many years by the unfriendly, the misinformed and the prejudiced."

Public sentiment in the three States embraced by the committee was said in the report to have "executed a right-about-face." The result was said to be that "the public industry in this region stands upon the threshold of public favor."

"Among the activities of the committee," it continued, "is a program of speaking in the high schools, colleges and universities.

"Specially prepared lectures have been presented in every university and college in Colorado in approximately 100 high schools in the three States lectures are being delivered by utility men, some of them having been trained for this particular work. Illustrated lectures are being given in every one of the eleven Denver high schools."

"The success attending the labors of the committee in the educational field," said the report, "has been due to the fact that the utilities have been unable to convince students that they have a personal interest in the success and well being of the public utility industry."

GROCER, 78, ORDERED EVICTED, DIES BY GAS

Charles Renshaw, 78 years old, was found dead yesterday in a gas filled room in his home and grocery store at 1301 M street northwest, which he had been ordered to vacate by June 30. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt issued a certificate of suicide.

Renshaw, with two brothers, ran a prosperous wholesale liquor store at the M street address until the advent of prohibition. Then they converted the liquor establishment into a grocery store. Frank, one of the brothers, shot himself shortly after prohibition was declared, and the other brother died while the grocery store was still struggling for a footing.

In recent months Charles Renshaw has had a difficult time with the grocery, business falling off, and the little establishment scarcely paying its expenses. A few days ago he received a letter from the owners of the building informing him that he must vacate by June 30. The notice was found near his body yesterday morning.

NOONAN INJUNCTION ATTEMPT TO HALT MERGER REJECTED

Justice Gordon Holds 1925 Law Removes Restrictions Against Consolidation.

STOCKHOLDER APPEALS CASE IN HIGHER COURT

Decision Eliminates Any Bar to North American Co.'s Activities.

The antimerger controversy, brought into Equity Court by John J. Noonan to prevent the consolidation of the Capital Traction Co. and the Washington Railway & Electric Co., collapsed yesterday when Justice Peyton Gordon signed an order dismissing the injunction petition. The case now goes to the Court of Appeals and probably will be argued in that court at about the same time the merger proposition goes before the second session of the Seventieth Congress.

Barbour & Bowen, counsel for the Washington Railway & Electric Co., demanded the dismissal of the Noonan bill on the ground that the merger law of 1925 removed the restrictions contained in the antimerger law of 1913 and that the door was open for foreign utility or holding corporations to come into the District of Columbia and buy up stock in local public utilities. This contention was sustained by Justice Gordon.

Noonan complained that the North American Co. owned more than 50 per cent of the stock of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. in violation of the antimerger law and that the North American Co. would dominate the merger when completed.

Refuse to Admit Restriction Removal.

His attorneys refused to accept the view that the merger law of 1925 had removed the restrictions against foreign corporations and contended that any move made by the Washington Railway & Electric Co. toward a consummation of the merger, with half or more of its stock owned by the North American Co., would be unlawful and that his holdings would be endangered.

The North American Co. was named a defendant in the Noonan injunction bill, but that concern presented only its shadow to the court, as William G. McAdoo and Brice Claggett, its counsel, first presented a motion to quash the service of the subpena and afterward presented a motion to dismiss the injunction bill. Neither McAdoo nor Clagett, by reason of the objections of Joseph D. Sullivan, of counsel for Noonan, did much talking. Neither of these attorneys formally has entered his appearance as counsel for the North American Co., but both were on hand when the injunction case was argued and also when Justice Gordon said that the Noonan bill would be dismissed.

Merger Has Clear Field.

There exists now no restriction against the activities of the North American Co. in the District, as Judge Gordon has held that the restrictions contained in the antimerger law of 1913 have been removed. The notation of an appeal by Sullivan and his associate, William G. Johnson, does not act as a bar to the North American Co., but if the Court of Appeals should decide that Justice Gordon was in error, the injunction bill, of course, will take on an entirely different color.

The merger law of 1925 was intended, according to Barbour & Bowen, to enable the street car companies to merge and was also intended to remove all then existing obstacles to a merger.

COMMUNITY CHEST BODY DEFERS INCORPORATION

Proposed By-Laws Will Be Sent to All Charitable Agencies in Capital.

With organization plans virtually completed and prospects that a large majority of the approximately 40 recognized local charitable organizations will affiliate themselves with the Washington Community Chest for 1929, the executive board of the organizing committee, at a meeting yesterday at the United States Chamber of Commerce, decided to defer incorporation until after all those who are to be invited to join have had an oportunity to consider the newly adopted by-laws.

The by-laws will be sent to every charitable agency in the city for their consideration and suggestions during the summer months, and in the early fall application will be made for incorporation, when it is believed an accurate line will be had on those who are to participate and the personnel of the board of 30 active directors.

The meeting yesterday authorized Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the executive committee, to appoint subcommittees on a community welfare program for 1929; one on education and publicity, and one on methods of soliciting charitable contributions. These subcommittees will be appointed within the next few days, and will report at a full committee meeting on June 15.

Decision as to what the executive direction of the community chest will be has not yet been reached, but it is believed probable that a professional executive secretary will be engaged.

The executive committee yesterday voted to add the following members to the general committee: Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, Wade H. Cooper, Bancroft C. Davis, Col. Robert N. Harper, Joseph H. Himes, John Ihlder, Dr. George M. Kober, John B. Larner, Cleveland Perkins and Samuel J. Prescott.

HUMPHREY IS OPPOSED IN BAKING POWDER QUIZ

Affidavit Filed Declaring Commissioner Is Prejudiced Against Royal Firm.

(Associated Press.)

The exclusion of Commissioner William E. Humphrey from participation in the Federal Trade Commission's inquiry into the activities of the Royal Baking Powder Co. was sought in affidavits filed yesterday with the commission charging him with being prejudiced against that company.

The affidavits were filed by Frederick C. Hitch, vice president of the company; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, wife of the food specialist and secretary of the Housekeepers Alliance of Washington, and Mrs. Marie B. Gillingham, another member of the alliance. In the affidavits, Humphrey was said to be prejudiced against the Royal Baking Powder Co. "as to be unable to give the benefit of fair and impartial consideration to complaints pending which allege unfair methods of competition by the company."

Humphrey was quoted in the affidavits of Mrs. Wiley and Mrs. Gillingham as attacking the company in an address in March, 1927, before a home economics class at George Washington University here. Mrs. Wiley's affidavit quoted the commissioner as saying the Royal concern was "about as crooked and contemptible an outfit as we have ever had to deal with, and that includes them all." His address, her affidavit said, continued: "The others have all agreed to come in and combine to settle their difficulties amicably. The Royal will not."

Hitch's affidavit expressed the opinion that Humphrey was "disqualified to sit in any proceeding in which the Royal Baking Co. was interested." He referred to the quotations in the Humphrey address in the affidavits of Mrs. Wiley and Mrs. Gillingham as indicating "a definite attitude to decide against his company."

FIVE NATIONS HELP SEARCH FOR NOBILE, CHIEFLY BY PLANES

Alpine Chasseurs Continuing Hunt Until Air Expeditions Can Start Out.

RUSSIA AND GERMANY ARE AIDING IN PROJECT

Italy, Norway and Sweden Also Participate; Offer From Ellsworth.

(Associated Press.)

Italy, Norway, Sweden, Russia and Germany are represented in the numerous relief expeditions now in preparation to find the missing polar dirigible Italia.

Most of the contemplated expeditions will be by air, but one overland expedition already is in the field, five men plodding over the ice in northern Spitzbergen, hoping to find some trace of the airship even though their progress afoot must necessarily be slow and limited. These men, four Italian Alpine chasseurs and a Spitzbergen hunter, will survey northern Spitzbergen until the air expeditions get under way.

The first of the air searches will be under the Norwegian flier, Lieut. Luetzow Holm, who is expected at King's Bay on Sunday aboard the sealer Hobby with a Norwegian naval hydroairplane.

Riiser-Larsen Is Next.

Then will come Capt. Riiser-Larsen, famous Norwegian polar expert, who will use a second hydroairplane.

On Monday an Italian hydroairplane, the S-55, will leave Milan for Spitzbergen with two Italian pilots to aid in the search.

Sweden has authorized the chief of the aviation department to equip three airplanes to go to Spitzbergen to help in the search, Dr. Finn Malmgren, Swedish meteorologist, being among the eighteen men missing in the Italia.

Lieut. Dietrichsen, Norwegian flier, expects to arrive in Germany tomorrow to take over a plane offered by the German Lufthansa. Roald Amundsen, it was stated in Oslo, would be in command of this expedition.

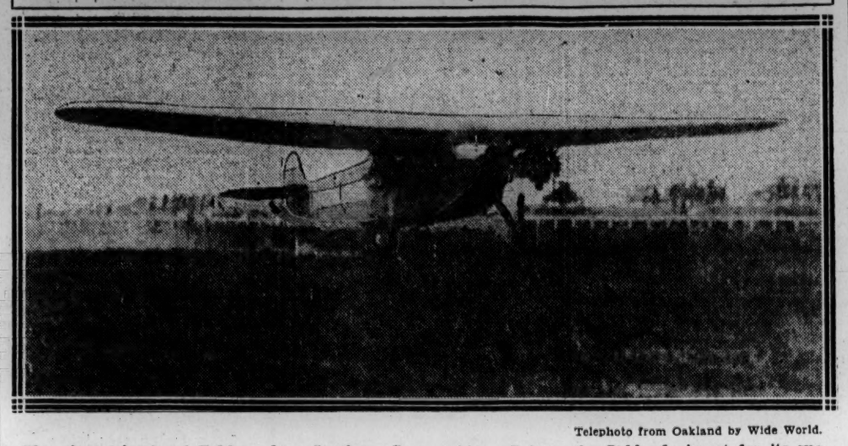

Ellsworth Offers Aid.

Lieut. Dietrichsen announced that Lincoln Ellsworth, of New York, would finance this flight, but Ellsworth issued a denial of this in New York. However, he said that he had asked Amundsen if he could be of any help and was ready to sail for Norway immediately if necessary. Ellsworth, Amundsen and Nobile were on the Norge in her 1926 polar flight.

Russia already has sent out a party to explore the Siberian coast, while the ship Perseus has been instructed to search the region between Nova Zembla, Franz Joseph Land and Spitzbergen.

At least three other ships will search along northern Spitzbergen—the base ship Citta di Milano, the sealer Hobby and the ice breaker Braganza. The Hobby and Braganza are expected at Kings Bay within a few days.

IMPEACHMENT FAVORED AFTER BAY STATE QUIZ

Attorney General Reading Is Accused of Misconduct by Committee.

TOOK $25,000 RETAINER

Boston, Mass., June 1 (A.P.).—Impeachment of Attorney General Arthur K. Reading "for misconduct and maladministration" was recommended unanimously by a special legislative committee, which made its report today after an investigation into the attorney general's conduct in office.

In its report the committee denounced the attorney general's acts in vigorous language, and, after finding that he had "wilfully, wrongfully and corruptly prostituted his official power and influence for the purpose of securing benefits to himself," urged the house of representatives to adopt resolutions for his impeachment by the senate.

The greater part of the report dealt with the attorney general's connection with the Decimo Club, Inc., of New York, whose payment to him of a $25,000 retainer led to the appointment of the investigating committee.

This body of nine members of the house also found Reading guilty of misconduct in bringing about a settlement between the United Law Corporation, of Worcester and its subsidiary organizations. The committee found no culpability within the scope of its inquiry relating to Reading's participating in various Florida land enterprises, but reported that "there was reprehensible negligence in the custody of important papers entrusted to his charge or to that of his assistants," as a result of the disappearance of papers in connection with sales of tubercular cattle to the State.

The committee said that the attorney general intended to conceal the fact of his employment by the Decimo Club and that in the receipt of the $25,000 check and other sums of money "so did mislead and deceive both his own official associates and the people of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts with respect to his employment by the Decimo Club."

12:40 a. m.—"Everything O. K." Southern Cross approximately 1,300 miles off California coast.

1:32 a. m.—"All well; three motors still spitting fire. Now 16½ hours in air. Ship heaving a bit, but plowing right along."

2:00 a. m.—Steamer Maliko reported Southern Cross passed overhead about 1,450 miles from California Coast.

3:20 a. m.—"Flew over steamships Maliko and Manoa. Everything O. K., 700 miles to go."

4:15 a. m.—Everett, Wash., intercepted message. "Position, Pacific Coast time: Latitude 26.50 north. Longitude, 148.56 west. Altitude, 4,500. Speed, 70 knots. Due Wheeler Field, 10 a. m."

4:30 a. m.—Message to the Associated Press, San Francisco, said: "Expect to be in Honolulu 9:50 a. m. Elevation now 4,500 feet. Clouds, but nice moon. Chilly, but not bad."

Lieut. Lyon, navigator, messaged the Associated Press radio station, San Francisco, "All O. K., 4:30 a. m., Pacific time; 500 miles to go."

5:12 a. m.—"All well. Still shooting on all three," said message received by Radio Corporation of America.

6 a. m.—"Southern Cross 350 miles from Honolulu; speed 77 knots," said message received in San Francisco by the Associated Press Radio Station 6KW.

6:35 a. m. (9:05 a. m. Pacific time)—Southern Cross sights land and flashes news in message picked up by Mutual Wireless Co.

6:51 a. m. (9:21 a. m. Pacific time)—Massed clouds looked like land and fooled the aviators. "These clouds are fooling us," they radioed.

10:15 a. m., Coast time—Southern Cross radioed: "Guess we are lost. A battery went down. Please get ship with receiver. Get our bearings on my 740 wave. Will keep going so they can track us."

10:40 a. m., Coast time—Radio station Fort Shafter, Hawaii, received message from Southern Cross saying land in sight.

11 a. m.—Southern Cross reports its position 165 miles out, with "just enough fuel to make it."

11:22 a. m.—Twenty-six and a half hours in the air; aid from destroyers not needed "but we might have to swim yet," the fliers messaged.

11:33 a. m.—Molokai Island sighted and heading across channel.

12 noon—Crossing Oahu Island.

12:08 p. m.—Over Honolulu, escorted by a squadron of navy planes.

12:19 p. m.—Landed safely at Wheeler Field.

are inclined to believe we know where we are. Stay with us, old man, we might have to swim yet."

This indicated to the shore listeners that again the crew had mistaken clouds for mountain tops, and although less than an hour from the islands, had not yet seen land.

Eleven minutes later the Radio Corporation message received the Southern Cross's tidings that Molokai Island had been sighted. At 11:43 the ship radioed: "We heaving in sight now of Oahu. It's going to be a race whether we make it to land or not before the fuel is exhausted."

Flies Over Honolulu.

At noon the Southern Cross reported: "We soon will be there now, crossing Oahu, nearing Wheeler Field." Then the ship passed over Honolulu, and headed for Wheeler Field, 20 miles away, where it landed within 18 minutes.

First land sighted was Molokai Island, the smiling crew told the reception committee. The radio beacon was lost 300 miles out from San Francisco, and Navigator Lyon said the Wheeler Field beacon never was picked up, thus forcing the craft to fly 2,100 miles blind without the protecting radio beam the Army threw out as a guide.

Two ships were sighted—The Maliko and The Manoa, while other ships were communicated with by radio.

Fiji Field Enlarged.

Suva, Fiji, Saturday, June 2 (A.P.).—The municipal council is preparing Albert Park for the arrival of the monoplane Southern Cross. To make a landing space 450 yards in length available trees were cut down today and telegraph and electric wires removed.

This work will make available to the fliers a much larger area than the polo field, opposite the Grand Pacific Hotel, on which they had planned to land their plane, and is a much better landing place than the alternative beach landing.

The Suva radio station has notified the Southern Cross fliers at Honolulu that it will keep a continuous watch for them on a 30.3 metres set. The range of the Suva transmitter is uncertain.

The weather at this season is favorable, usually being free of typhoon disturbances, and the visibility remarkably good.

Great interest has been aroused, not only at Suva, on the Island of Viti Levu, but throughout the volcanic and coral archipelago of 250 islets.

Southern Cross Is Built From 2 Wrecked Planes

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—A craft made in part of the remnants of two wrecked planes carried the four-man crew of the monoplane Southern Cross safely over the 2,400-mile span from Oakland, Calif., to Honolulu.

The creation of this latest craft to forge into the aviation spotlight was explained today by R. B. C. Noordduyn, vice president of the Fokker Aircraft Corporation, which redeemed the plane after several accidents in the early efforts of Capt. George H. Wilkins to fly to the North Pole.

A single-engined transport monoplane and a trimotored monoplane which Wilkins had used, were dismantled in 1927 and shipped to Seattle, where the Southern Cross came into being—formed of the fuselage of the single-motored craft and the wing and landing gear of the trimotored plane. The motors were new.

The Southern Cross has thus seen extensive service in the air. Some of its parts were in the planes that made several flights in 1926 between Fairbanks and Point Barrow, Alaska, and on a plane that made the two 700-mile journeys over the Arctic wastes from Point Barrow. Since the plane was rebuilt three unsuccessful attempts were made to break the world endurance record.

The ceremonies were attended by parents of the flier, Rear Admiral W. R. R. and Mrs. Rodgers. His mother officiated at the unveiling.

Society Woman Bars Home to Defy Court

London, June 1 (A.P.).—Behind the bolted and chained doors of her Hyde Park mansion, Mrs. Katherine Routledge, wealthy society woman, author and explorer, is holding the fort against an order of court that she pay certain charges on property stored in a warehouse.

Mrs. Routledge, who is a cousin of Lord Gainford and Lord Daryngton, contends that the property does not belong to her and refuses to pay the charges. She has dismissed all her servants in order that they may not become involved with the law, and has defied officers who sought to serve an order of sequestration issued by the high court.

Mrs. Routledge explains that she hopes by this action to bring about a reform in the law under which the suit was brought against her.

The society leader does all her own work and slips out at times to make the few purchases necessary.

7 OF CREW LOSE LIVES AS LINER SINKS VESSEL

29 Survivors of the Kershaw to Boston on President Garfield.

TWO VIRGINIANS DROWNED

Boston, Mass., June 1 (A.P.).—Twenty-nine survivors of the crew of the collier Kershaw, which was rammed and sunk early today in Vineyard Sound by the round-the-world Dollar liner President Garfield, were brought to this port late today on board the liner. Seven of the Kershaw's crew lost their lives when the vessel dived to the bottom four minutes after the impact.

Officials of the Dollar Line and of Merchants & Miners Transportation Co., owners of the Kershaw, declined to make known details of the collision pending official inquiry. The Kershaw survivors were taken off the Garfield by a tug which met the round-the-world liner down the harbor.

It was learned that the collision occurred at 1:35 o'clock this morning, seven miles east of East Chop, one of the points that guard the entrance to Vine Yard Haven. The sea was calm; there was no wind, and the visability was described as excellent. Details of the whistles and other signals exchanged when the collier, outbound from Boston for Norfolk, and the Garfield, inbound for Boston from New York, approached each other in the sound were withheld.

The Garfield's bow tore into the Kershaw just forward of the bridge and the collier went down almost immediately. The liner's lifeboats were lowered at once and 29 survivors picked up as they struggled in the water. The force of the crash tore a great hole in the Garfield's bow below the water line.

When the liner made her way up the harbor today her bows were high out of the water, as ballast had been shifted to bring the torn plates above the surface. A hole 8 feet wide was revealed. The lifeboats and decks of the liner were spattered with oil from the punctured fuel tanks of the Kershaw.

Baltimore, Md., June 1 (A.P.).—The names of the seven members of the crew of the Collier Kershaw, who were drowned early today when their ship sunk in Vineyard Sound after colliding with the Dollar Liner President Garfield, were announced tonight at the offices of the Merchants and Miners Steamship Co., owners of the Kershaw.

The seven who lost their lives included: R. T. Gotwalt, first assistant engineer, 1134 Buttonwood street, Lebanon, Pa.; John E. Davis, second assistant engineer, Lillian, Va.; Howard Lancaster, second cook, 1013 Falking street, Norfolk, Va.

The remaining four, who officials said gave only the local offices of the steamship company as their address, were: Joseph Davis fireman; John Bryant, fireman; Albert McGraw, second mess mate, and Peter Hazel, a waiter.

PEKING SURRENDER IS BEING ARRANGED

since swept steadily northward, appeared approaching a climax today.

From Peking, Tokyo and Shanghai came advices indicating that the two-year rule of Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord, in the historic northern capital, was reaching an end. Chang himself, addressing diplomatic corps in the Presidential palace this afternoon, said that he expected a decisive battle to be fought at Liulino, 35 miles southwest of Peking, and assured the gathering that every protective measure would be taken in behalf of foreigners in the capital.

While he made no specific reference to any plans that he might have for his own departure from the city for Mukden, his stronghold in Manchuria, the diplomats present generally interpreted his speech as in the nature of a valedictory.

In Tokyo, in fact, his speech was interpreted as indicating that he would evacuate Peking shortly.

Once Was Most Powerful.

Until the recent victories of the Nationalists Chang was the most powerful of the older group of war lords in China. Originally from Manchuria, where he is said to have been a bandit chieftain, the 53-year-old dictator became successively an army general, military governor of Fengtien and finally, in 1926, master of Peking. There he was the nominal head of the Chinese republic, the powers recognizing Peking as the Chinese capital, although the steady encroachments of the Nationalists slowly but surely cut down the power and influence of the North.

In Feng Yu-hsiang, the Northern leader has an old ally and now foe against him. Allied with Feng in 1924, he defeated Wu Pei-fu, the then dictator at Peking, only to be betrayed by Feng, who took over the city himself. Chang Tso-lin, however, drove Feng out of Peking in 1926 and ruled the city himself.

A possible change in the government of Peking was suggested in advices reaching London from China. The Northern leaders were stated to have invited Tuan Chi-jui, once ruler of Peking, back again to form a new government. Tuan Chi-jui was deposed in 1926 and last was reported at Tientsin living in the Japanese concession.

WOMEN'S CLUBS URGED TO BACK DEFENSE PLAN

Brig. Gen. Bowley Asserts He Loses Patience With Disarming Pleas.

DIVISION IS REVIEWED

San Antonio, Tex., June 1 (A.P.).—Flabby muscles never helped any householder keep burglars out of his home, Brig. Gen. Albert J. Bowley told delegates to the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs here today in scoring persons who advocate disarmament as a guarantee of peace.

The commander of the Eighth Corps area of the Army adressed the delegates in connection with a review of the famous Second Division, which won glory at Chateau Thierry and Belleau Wood, and declared it was the duty of the women to insist on the maintenance of adequate military and naval establishments in the United States.

Mrs. John D. Sherman, of Estes Park, Colo., president of the federation, was the reviewing officer, the first woman ever to be so honored by the famous fighting outfit.

Brig. Gen. Bowley was outspoken in his criticism of the present Army strength.

"When I find people who insist that the cure for war lies in disarmament I cease to have patience," he said "If you let your muscles grow flabby that is not helping to keep thugs out of your house. It is up to you women since you are a power in the land, to insist that this country shall maintain an adequate Army and Navy."

Denying that the Army wants war, since it knows what war is, Gen. Bowley declared that "preparedness" should not mean the largest army so much as it should mean an army "in keeping with the dignity of this country," and one sufficient for defense.

"We are not the bloody militarists that some would make us out," he said. "Your Army is merely peace insurance. We do not believe that this country should be insulted, stepped upon or mistreated. At present there is a picayune strength of 118,000; this is a small, unfair nucleus. You women should see to it that the full quota, 280,000 men, is obtained."

COOLIDGE DISCUSSES FARM RELIEF PLANK

a statement in resentment of the veto of the McNary-Haugen bill.

"The committee * * * serves notice upon the leadership of the Republican party that it will not tolerate the selection of such a man as Hoover or Coolidge as the party leader," the statement read, "but that in event of such a nomination the farmers will utterly refuse to lend support. Party lines are no longer strong enough to hold the farm vote under such conditions."

The federation, through William Hirth, Columbia, Mo., its chairman, claims to represent a million farmers in the middle West.

Asserting the corn belt is "staggering on the brink of almost complete collapse," the committee condemned the veto of the McNary-Haugen bill as "intemperate" and again demanded the agricultural market be given the benefit of the protective tariff system. No mention was made of the presidential candidacy of Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, the leading Republican candidate in the middle West farm States. Each corn belt State was asked to send a hundred representatives of farm organizations to the Kansas City convention

Farm Delegates to Meet.

Chicago, Ill., June 1 (A.P.).—Delegates to the Republican national convention who are favorable to the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill from fourteen Middle Western States will meet here tomorrow to discuss presentation of the problem to the Kansas City meeting.

Plans for a general meeting of farm State delegates and representatives of farm organizations in the Missouri city on June 11—the day before the convention opens—also will be completed tomorrow, according to Gov. Adam McMullen of Nebraska, here for the conference. The Chicago gathering follows a corn belt committee meeting in Des Moines today.

Farmers and their representatives at Kansas City will be more interested in seeing that a candidate considerate of their interests and favorable to relief legislation is named than in a platform plan, said McMullen.

Demands Farm Candidate.

"The farmers have lost interest in platform enunciations," he declared. "They want a man favorable to them to head the ticket."

The Nebraska governor enumerated Frank O. Lowden, Vice President Charles G. Dawes and Senators James E. Watson and Charles Curtis as candidates likely to receive farm State support.

McMullen said former Gov. Henry Allen of Kansas, who declared farmers would be too busy to go to Kansas City and appeal to the convention, did not "understand the problem." The Nebraskan said 100,000 farmers would make the trip.

"They'll not be too busy to take a day or two off to interest themselves in the most pressing business they have—legislation to permit them to stay in business," McMullen said.

STORAGE MEN REPLY IN SUIT FOR $100,000

Deny Having Goods Worth Sum Mrs. Mary A. Jaques, Widow, Charges.

The Fidelity Storage Co. and its vice president, David B. Karrick, and Harry S. Plager, 3201 Twentieth street northwest, who were sued in Equity Court and charged with the responsibility for the alleged disappearance of $100,000 worth of household effects claimed by Mrs. Mary A. Jaques, widow of a naval officer, of 1415 Chapin street northwest, denied yesterday in their answer that they ever had in their possession or under their control any property of that value.

Through Attorney Charles S. Merillat the defendants say that the value of the property stored by Mrs. Jaques was $1,000 or less, and they also deny that there has been any fraud in connection with the foreclosure sale of the effects of the plaintiff as alleged in her bill. The goods were stored in July, 1925, and Mrs. Jaques charged that the defendants notified her that they could show the sum of $80 as a result of the sale.

The defendants say that the plaintiff borrowed money on her effects and gave as security collateral notes for $100 and $500 and that the goods were sold for default in payment of the notes. The entire transaction was regular in all respects, the defendants aver. The defendants also state that they did not inform the plaintiff that they were holding the sum of $80 for her, as they are not doing that.

SPANISH FLIERS FAIL OF DISTANCE RECORD

Forced Down in Syria, Plane Damaged, 3,000 Miles From Seville Field.

Buenos Aires, June 1 (A.P.).—A special dispatch to La Nacion from Madrid quotes a telegram sent to the Spanish air ministry by Capt. Ignacio Jiminez, which confirms the Associated Press report from Karachi that he and Francisco Iglesias had been forced down at Nasiriyah, Syria. The message indicated that the plane Jesus Del Gran Poder, was damaged by a forced landing.

Karachi, India, June 1 (A.P.)—The Spanish airplane Jesus Del Gran Poder, attempting to break the distance flight record came down yesterday at Nasiriyar, near Ur of the Chaldees.

Capts Ignacio Jiminez and Francisco Iglesias made a forced landing Nasiriyah, in Mesopotamia, is approximately 3,000 miles from Seville, from which point they started at noon on Tuesday.

Seville, Spain, dispatches Thursday night credited the two flyers with having beaten the long distance flight record set by Clarence Chamberlain and Charles A. Levine at 3,911 miles on their flight to Germany.

Kermit Roosevelt Pays Speeding Fine

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—Kermit Roosevelt, son of the former President, paid a fine of $25 today in Long Island City Traffic Court for exceeding the speed limit on Memorial Day.

A motorcycle policeman testified that he had trailed the Roosevelt automobile at 38 miles an hour

"I am sorry to greet you in this manner," said Magistrate Marvin. "I was a great admirer of your father."

Mr. Roosevelt had waited with 25 other speeders for his case to be called.

Flight of Cobhams Halted by Accident

London, June 1 (A.P.).—Sir Alan Cobham's flight around England, accompanied by Lady Cobham, started after their return last night from a 23,000-mile flight around Africa, ended abruptly. A wing of his machine tore while they were on their way from Plymouth to London. They had reached Calshot, near Southampton, when the accident occurred. It will take some days to repair the damage.

MOUND YIELDS BONES OF AN UNKNOWN RACE

Illinois Archeologists Find 79 Skeletons of Strange Prehistoric Tribe.

Browning, Ill., June 1 (A.P.).—Seventy-nine skeletons of a prehistoric race which have not been identified with those of any other aborigines of Illinois have been found in one of three burial mounds near here. Archeologists who today were examining skeletons and relics, announced no similarity to any other known tribe or race has been discovered.

The excavation of the mound was conducted by the department of archeology of the University of Illinois. When the excavation was completed Dr. W. J. Morehead, of the Smithsonian Institution, was summoned and a joint report that the race appears to be of even an earlier age than of the skeletons recently unearthed at Lewiston, was made.

The bodies were completely bound to their chins. The hands were crossed beneath the faces. Men were buried on their left sides and women on their right sides. A charm stone was found in the palm of each infant. Markings and descriptions on pieces of pottery in the mound hill will be compared with those of the Lewiston group.

Episcopal Budget To Be $13,013,874

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—The national council of the Episcopal Church adopted today a general budget totaling $13,013,874 for 1929, 1930 and 1931. It will be submitted with a favorable recommendation to the triennial general convention, meeting at Washington, October 10. The largest item is $3,296,008 annually for missions, which would amount to almost three-quarters of the entire appropriation.

The general church deficit at the time of the New Orleans convention three years ago was approximately $1,500,000. The council was informed that this would be wiped out before the Washington meeting.

Saturday's New Shadow Dramas

COLUMBIA—Clara Bow in "Red Hair."

Laughter for laughter's sake is the keynote of Clara Bow's latest picture, "Red Hair," now playing at Loew's Columbia. The vivacious star surpasses her past performances in the new story of Elinor Glyn.

Underlying the light-hearted swing of the piece, there is, however, a keen analysis of human nature. The story is that of a little manicurist, with "gold-digging" as a side line, who captivates the fancy of three middle-aged Lotharios. They, in competing for her favor, cast clothes and jewels at her feet. The little manicurist dances her way into their hearts and out again when she falls in love with their ward a handsome young man, whose declared affection is threatened when the "gold-digging" activities of the dainty manicurist are disclosed to him.

By her own clever manipulations, however, she discomfits the righteous-minded guardians, and in several exciting and dramatic scenes recovers the right young man for herself.

Lane Chandler, successfully upholds the role opposite Miss Bow. Chandler, like Miss Bow, is red-headed and in the early sequences of the picture, done in technicolor, the shades of their hair are revealed to good advantage.

Claude Burrows, conducting the Columbia Orchestra, the M-G-M newsreel and other selected short subjects augment the bill.

METROPOLITAN—Syd Chaplin in "The Fortune Hunter," and Vitaphone.

Syd Chaplin's assumption of a new role is an event in the photo-dramatic world. His versatility has been demonstrated in such widely variant pieces as "The Man on the Box," "Oh, What a Nurse," "The Better 'Ole," "The Missing Link" and, last and best, 'The Fortune Hunter," the new Warner Brothers' production which is the major screen offering at Crandall's Metropolitan Theater this week.

This is a screen version of the Winchell Smith play, which ran in New York and Chicago playhouses for two years and enjoyed a sensational success on the road, as well as being the vehicle which gave Jack Barrymore his real start on the road to fame. "The Fortune Hunter" is a human, happy-go-lucky, exciting drama. It portrays the unusual doings of a young rake who comes to a country town on a wager to marry the richest girl in the village, and share fifty-fifty with the pal who staked him. The locale is a Vermont town and the characters are not caricatures.

Helene Costello is cast in the leading role opposite the star, while Clara Horton is the poor girl who makes up for poverty by other qualities. Others in the cast are Duke Martin, Thomas Jefferson, Erville Alderson, Paul Kruger, Robert Perry and Babe London. Charles F. Reisner, who has directed all of Chaplin's productions, also directed "The Fortune Hunter."

Completing the program will be Billy Jones and Ernest Hare, radio's favorite pair, who will be heard and seen on Vitaphone—another Vitaphone comedy, "Man Among Men," and musical accompaniment for the pictured screen subjects by the Metropolitan Orchestra, Alexander Podnos conducting.

RIALTO—John Gilbert in "Truxton King."

John Gilbert, in a revival of "Truxton King," from the novel of George Barr McCutcheon, is the feature at the Rialto this week.

It is a sad story of romantic Graustark, the mythical country which came into existence in the fertile imagination of the author and figured in a number of best sellers, chief among them being "Truxton King." It recounts the experiences of an American traveler seeking adventure, who trespasses in the royal gardens. There he meets young Prince Robin. They are interrupted by Aunt Lorraine, a radiant vision, who eyes the intruder askance. Learning that the intruder's name is Truxton King and discovering she is well acquainted with his sister, this girl of queenly presence relents and extends him an invitation.

Truxton King, won by the girl's charm, dares uncounted dangers. When he is captured by revolutionists he learns of a plan to assassinate the 6-year-old Prince Robin and to seize the government. Escaping, he dashes to the rescue of the prince and the defense of the beleaguered castle and the princess. You can imagine his reward.

Ruth Clifford portrays the ravishingly beautiful girl. Others in the supporting cast are Frank Leigh, Mickey Moore, Otis Harlan, Henry John Miller, Richard Wayne, Willis Marks, Winifred Bryson and Mark Fenton.

Rox Rommell, conducting the Rialto Orchestra, offers for the overture another medley of selections from musical comedy successes.

A comedy, "Blazing Away," International Newsreel and other short films are added attractions.

EARLE—Milton Sills and Doris Kenyon in "The Hawk's Nest."

Underworld pictures seem to satisfy the innate cravings of most people for the thrill o. witnessing those happenings that are hidden from the ken of the average man or woman. Thus Milton Sill's latest First National picture, "The Hawk's Nest," which is this week's screen feature at the Earle Theater, grips immediately and maintains its hold until the end.

The stage offering for the current week will be a Stanley Company of America presentation "In Dutch," a colorful revue of tulip-land, featuring Franklyn and Stanley presenting the long and short of it; Myrtle Pierce; Reeves and Leu, two Dutchmen in one pair of pants who dance as one; Pauline Miller, Al Siegel the Grete Bourman Dancers and Carlo Restivo, another Dutchman, and his accordion.

In "The Hawk's Nest" Wid Gunning wrote a story that teems with action and with just enough mystery surrounding the central character of the Hawk to arouse and stimulate curiosity as to the denouement. Milton Sills, as the Hawk, offers a remarkable and virile characterization The villainous heavy role is played by Montagu Love, who is cast as Daugherty, rival gang leader in the underground haunts of the shady characters in a great city. To add to the festivities a number of mysterious Orientals are introduced, including the sterling actor Sojin. A beautiful girl of the night clubs, played by Doris Kenyon, develops a love interest in which the Hawk is the opposite figure. Benjamin Christensen directed the picture, which is superbly "staged."

Many short reel subjects of more than ordinary interest and music by the Earle Orchestra under the direction of Daniel Breeskin, complete the program.

FOX—Lois Moran in "Love Hungry."

Lois Moran is the home type, the every-day sort of girl that most everybody remembers from the days back in the home town. No one, says William Fox, who is presenting this star at his Washington theater this week, quite has that elusive something that Miss Moran possesses, and hence a careful selection is always made of the picture in which this star is presented.

In "Love Hungry," Mr. Fox states, he has one of the best stories yet secured for Miss Moran, wherein she portrays a heartsick girl who seeks fame and fortune on the stage, with the boarding houses, the constant search for employment and then—the boy of her romantic dreams. It is styled delightful summer entertainment.

With commencement week here, Managing Director S. J. Stebbins has named his stage interlude "A College Jubilee," with the spirit of youth predominating in gay laughter, song and the dance. Earl Carpenter and his band, in their farewell week, will provide the background for the imported artists, among whom will be numbered Horton Spur, the Lane Sisters, remembered for their excellently-trained soprano voices, and Cassery and Miller.

The Adams Sisters are to make their first Washington appearance as a separate interlude in the program. These three talented sisters come to the Fox after being featured in numerous musical comedies and revue successes.

The final movement of Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade" suite. "The Festival at Bagdad," will be the overture by the Fox Grand Orchestra, over which Leon Brusiloff presides as conductor. An encore selection will be Saint Saens' "The Swan."

PALACE—Karl Dane and George K. Arthur in "Circus Rookies."

"Circus Rookies," costarring Karl Dane and George K. Arthur, famous for "Rookies" and "Baby Mine," is the screen attraction at Loew's Palace now. The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production plunges the heroes into a series of circus adventures Dane, a roustabout, gets a job as animal trainer and Arthur gets the post as press agent, and then the fun begins. There is a huge gorilla in the picture too—he chases the heroes over a careening circus train, and Arthur gets tangled up with a trapeze, and thrills and laughs mix in profusion.

A complete circus was built and a whole performance was staged for the picture, so one gets a circus along with the rest of the fun It is the most ambitious, and one of the funniest pictures the team has made. The love interest is between Arthur and Louise Lorraine, and in spite of all the funmaking, Arthur has an opportunity for some really romantic love-making.

Fred Humes plays the part of a giant gorilla, who strikes terror to the whole circus. He adopts Dane as his master and chases Arthur all over the "big top."

Loew-Publix presents R. H. Burnsides' novel stage production, "Seeing Things," featuring Wesly Eddy and his Palace Syncopators, supported by Jeanne Houston, the eccentric dancer; Joe Rose, sensational acrobatic dancer; Joe Maxwell, the intoxicating singer; Les Klick's Animated Animal Show; Allan Raymond, soloist, and the Felicia Sorrel Girls, steppers militaire.

Harry Borjes conducting the Palace Orchestra, the M-G-M news reel and other short subjects contribute to the performance.

THALBERG TO SPONSOR NEW SCREEN TRIO

Returning to the West Coast after a European triumph with his wife, Norma Shearer, and a brief stay in New York on the way back, Irving Thalberg, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vice president and producing chief, has announced the signing of a French and a German director and a Viennese girl who is said to show exceptional screen promise.

Jacques Feyder, one of the best-known of continental directors, who made "Missing Husbands," "Faces of Children," and Raquel Meller's "Carmen," will join the M-G-M directorial staff not later than October 1.

Erich Schoenfelder, prominent German director, will make pictures for the same organization next season.

Mitzi Marena is the name of the Viennese discovery, and she is described as a sophisticated blonde type without previous screen experience but possessing unusual photographic possibilities.

PRICES CUT FOR SUMMER

Manager Frank Steffy, of the Rialto Theater, announces that beginning today popular summer prices will prevail at the box office, as follows: From 11 a. m. until 6 p. m. the charge for any seat in the theater will be 25 cents After 6 p. m. 35 cents will be the top charge.

Mr. Steffy desires to emphasize the fact that the innovation of offering popular prices during the summer months will in no way mean a curtailment of the theater's fixed policy of presenting the highest obtainable class of first-run pictures, musical offerings and other features.

CLARA BOW POSSESSES "IT" PLUS

When the cat chases the canary things are as they should be, but when the canary serenades the cat something must be wrong. Something was wrong, Mibs, pet tabbie of Clara Bow, star of "Red Hair," now playing at Loew's Columbia, found out recently. Mibs met a canary that refused to flutter in fear at her approach. She lifted a tentative claw and pecked casually at the cage and still song burst from the throat of the canary. A determined sortie around the cage yielded no results and the puzzled feline gave up. The canary was a mechanical toy made in Germany.

Clara Bow incidentally is credited with goat hunting as the latest pastime for movie actors. On Catalina Island, where many of the exterior shots for "Red Hair" were made, mountain goats are found in the hills. Miss Bow brought one down and Clarence Badger, the director and sharpshooter of the company, bagged three.

Miss Bow. furthermore, says red hair means more than just beauty. She says it means fight. The reason for this, she claims, is that as a child other children are in the habit of taunting red-heads, so that by the time they are grown they have learned to battle.

Lane Chandler, who plays opposite Clara Bow in "Red Hair," is the only leading man in Hollywood with red hair.

WHY GILBERT CHANGED HIS MODEST HOME

In the year 1914 John Gilbert was ejected from his boarding house for two reasons—one being that he was a guitar player with the Baker Stock Co., of Portland, Oreg., and that he persisted in practicing at all hours; the second—and probably the more important—that his rent was two days past due and the landlady would not consent to wait until Saturday night.

In the year 1922 John Gilbert attached his name to a contract which called for two things—one that he would be starred for a number of years; second, that during that period he would be paid weekly a sum of money far more than his landlady ever thought he would make.

Gilbert's rise to stardom is the result of tremendous public demand. The revival of "Truxton King" at the Rialto this week will afford the opportunity to see him in one of his early successes.

Incidentally, his old landlady, Mrs. Maria Tobin, is now one of John Gilbert's most ardent admirers She writes a fan letter to him every week and her notes are always the first he reads.

OLD-TIMER HERE WITH STAGE HIT

The enchanted goose which laid the golden egg is at Loew's Palace Theater this week in R. H. Burnside's latest Loew-Publix stage show, "Seeing Things."

It is the invention of Fred Klicks, who is now 76 years old, and who holds the distinction of being the first European to cable Thomas Edison congratulations on the invention of the incandescent lamp. Among other things, Fred Klicks is the designer of the scroll and filigre work which is now seen on all circus wheels and merry-go-rounds. He is the father of Les Klicks, who is now appearing with Wesley Eddy and his stage band at the Palace And the enchanted goose was his wedding present to his son.

The enchanted goose, the dog and the clown are not marionettes; that is, they are not worked with strings. It is through the medium of "dark art," the donning of many costumes and the lighting of each by a multitude of small batteries, that the perfect illusion of living flaming feathers and fur is depicted.

Les Klicks may well be called "international artists," because they have presented their little offering in all civilized countries of the world. They have toured Australia, New Zealand, Africa, China and Japan. If you are fond of puzzling feats of black magic, you'll enjoy their offering. It is said to be the most unique ever presented at the Palace.

Cortez in Lead.

Ricardo Cortez is to play the leading role in the Tiffany-Stahl production, "A Grain of Dust," suggested by the David Graham Phillips novel of the same name Claire Windsor and Alma Bennett will play the leading feminine roles. The picture is now being directed by George Archainbaud

Saunders Again.

"The Docks of New York," an original screen story by John Monk Saunders author of "Wings," will be George Bancroft's next vehicle. Josef von Sternberg will again direct the star The adaptation will be by Jules Furthman.

MISS KENYON AS NEW TYPE WITH SPOUSE

Doris Kenyon, the charming First National actress who has endeared herself to millions through her screen portrayals of sweet and winsome heroines, has an entirely new type of role in "The Hawk's Nest," which is now on the screen at the Earle Theater.

Playing opposite Milton Sills, the star, Miss Kenyon plays a vivacious, alluring night club girl. Wearing her hair frizzed, and displaying an alluring personality, Miss Kenyon demonstrates her versatility as an actress as never before.

"The Hawk's Nest" is a story of the underworld, with most of the scenes in the Chinese quarter of a large American city Milton Sills plays a gang leader, in his usual vigorous and convincing manner. Miss Kenyon makes a charming leading lady, and will surprise her most ardent admirers in this picture, it is predicted.

MEIGHAN AT LAST STEPS OUT IN HIT

"The Racket," Caddo's underworld thriller, has gone to the cutting-room for titling and editing. The final scene was filmed on May 15, just six weeks after actual shooting got underway, and the cast, headed by Thomas Meighan, will get a much-needed rest.

For the past three weeks "The Racket" troupe has worked night and day to complete the gangster opus on schedule.

Eddie Adams, ace film editor, is wielding the scissors on the latest Meighan melodrama, under supervision of Lewis Milestone, the director.

Marie Prevost, leading lady, will journey to New York within the next two weeks, and thence to Europe. Louis Wolheim, the heavy, after a few days of rest, begins work in a Sam Goldwyn production.

"The Racket," according to authoritative studio gossip, is Tommy Meighan's best picture since "The Miracle Man." It was adopted from the stage sensation by Bartlett Cormack.

A RAINY DAY JAUNT ABOUT THE STUDIOS

Straw hats under newspapers. Yellow slickers and natty-belted raincoats on folks making for the lunchroom. The flowers around Colleen Moore's bungalow look brighter than ever. Billie Dove in her new car, unmindful of the downpour. A score of girl extras, in trailing gowns and high, powdered wigs trying to get from the Corinne Griffith set to lunch without disaster to the costumes Mary Astor looking like $40,000,000 in the outfit of a princess, with a bejeweled crown and empire gown. Milton Sills wearing a loud checked suit, not at all in keeping with his reputation as a college professor. But that's a mistaken idea, anyway; he never was one. And Dorothy Mackaill, smiling, who plays with him in "The Barker." A band of Hawaiians. Which reminds us of reports from Honolulu that the crowds at the dock almost mobbed Colleen Moore and her mother and father; also Richard Barthelmess and his bride, who were on the same boat. About 10,000 turned out to greet them. Here comes Betty Compson and Douglas Fairbanks, jr. They're in "The Barker," too. Corinne Griffith and her husband, Walter Morosco, on the way to Miss Griffith's bungalow. H. B. Warner and Ian Keith, who are playing with her in "The Divine Lady." They're worrying about getting seasick when they go to sea for spectacular battle scenes. Eddie Cline, the director, telling a story. Charlie Murray bidding his many friends good-by. He's on his way to Florida and way stations for a long vacation Doris Dawson, the charming young leading lady for Harry Langdon, in a quaint gingham gown Yes, they still wear 'em in pictures. Louise Fazenda in puff sleeves. Thelma Todd in a tailored suit. Jack Mulhall and Greta Nissen posing for a still photographer in very affectionate scenes And they pay Jack for that! Alexander Korda and George Fitzmaurice, the directors, walking briskly. Lucien Littlefield, the character man who plays old men, but is really young. Plays baseball and everything. And Raymond McKee, the juvenile, showing those white teeth. Richard Wallace and Alfred Santell, the directors, swapping stories by the cutting room. Here is Alice White, without stockings on. She is to be featured by First National.

SYD PLAYS NOTED HIT IN LATEST

The confirmed movie fan, the occasional picture-goer and the individual who is finicky about his screen entertainment will all hail with joy the announcement that Warner Bros.' production of "The Fortune Hunter," with Syd Chaplin, is to be seen at the Metropolitan Theater this week.

There is much occasion for joy. To begin with, Syd Chaplin is such an artist that he is welcome in anything in which he elects to be seen and, again, "The Fortune Hunter" needs little or no introduction.

As a play, this comedy was one of the biggest successes known to the legitimate stage. At one time there were no fewer than five companies touring the country in it.

Winchell Smith, its author and producer, made fortunes out of it and what is more, the comedy will go down in history as furnishing John Barrymore with his first great stage success.

One of the great charms of "The Fortune Hunter" is its wholesomeness, its touches of human nature and its bristling comedy.

Bryan Foy and Robert Dillon, in making the adaptation of Winchel Smith's story, were keen about retaining for the screen all of these things, and the result is that the picture promises to have even greater vogue on the screen than it had on the stage. Helene Costello, sister of the gorgeous Dolores, heads an all-star cast in Syd Chaplin's support.

Charles F. Reisner, who has been associated with all of the comedian's great hits, directed "The Fortune Hunter."

POST COMIC ARTIST HAS HIT AT FOX

William Counselman supervising Victor Heerman's second Fox Films production, "Love Hungry," was a newspaper man in New York, Chicago and other cities in the East and middle West before he became identified with pictures three years ago.

Counselman, who came to Fox Films west coast studios as a "gag" man, is noted for his "dry wit" and sparkling titles.

Two of his outstanding pictures were directed by John G. Blystone, "Slaves of Beauty" and "Pajamas," for which he wrote the adaptation and continuity. He also wrote the titles for "Ankles Preferred," one of the most successful of the Madge Bellamy pictures; "Rich But Honest," also was brightened by his catchy titles. He also served as chief comedy constructionist with F. W. Murnau in the production of the $1,000,000 photoplay, "Sunrise."

In addition to his titling and story activities, Counselman also finds time to supervise the activities of four Fox directors. He is the author of the comic "strips" "Ella Cinders," a comic strip feature of The Post. "Love Hungry," featuring Lois Moran, is coming to the Fox Theater today.

EDWARD J. STELLWAGEN PRESIDENT

TO THE DEMOCRATS OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

At a meeting of Democrats held in the City of Washington, D. C., on Thursday night, May 31st, 1928, the undersigned, a committee, was appointed to call a mass meeting of the Democrats of the District of Columbia, to be held Saturday, June 2nd, 1928, at the Burlington Hotel, Vermont Avenue between L and M Streets N.W., at eight o'clock, to protest against the irregularity of an alleged primary held by the alleged Democratic Organziation of the District of Columbia, on Monday, May 28th, 1928, because:

(1) No proper opportunity was offered candidates to enter said alleged primary.

(2) The locations of polling places were not announced in legal due notice to the voters.

(3) Each legislative district was not provided with a polling place.

(4) No opportunity was given to fill the entire membership of the alleged District Central Committee.

(5) The fee required by the so-called Democratic Central Committee of the District of Columbia, namely, $200, for each delegate or alternate, $300, for the national committeeman and national committeewoman, $25 for each member of the Central Committee, was exorbitant and out of all proportion to the known cost of conducting a primary, and which fee, together with the expense of going to and returning from Houston would have eliminated many worthy Democrats entitled to seek the nomination of delegates, committeeman and committeewoman.

(6) Had it been the desire of the Democrats of the District of Columbia to become candidates for any of the above offices, there was no way of knowing to whom or where to register and send the required fee, as this information was not contained in the call for the primary by the so-called Democratic Central Committee.

In view of the above, this meeting is called in order that the Democrats of the District of Columbia may be given a proper opportunity to express their desires as to the manner in which a proper primary may be conducted.

All Democrats of the District of Columbia Are Urged to Attend.

G. W. PRATT, Chairman.

JAMES F. DUHAMEL, JAMES J. SLATTERY, WM. P. CAVANAUGH, CHARLES H. McCARTHY, JEREMIAH O'CONNOR, CHARLES W. DARR, Committee.

CHARLES M. HOWELL IS CHOSEN BY REED TO PRESENT NAME

Kansas City Lawyer Long Has Been Intimate Ally of the Missouri Senator.

COOLIDGES' DEPARTURE ENGROSSING CAPITAL

One More Expression Hoped For on Nomination—Watson Off for Convention.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Announcement that Senator James A. Reed had selected the man to place him in nomination at Houston, together with unsuccessful efforts to ascertain just where President Coolidge will be when the balloting at Kansas City begins, constituted yesterday's political tid-bits in what is rapidly becoming a politically barren town.

Charles M. Howell, of Kansas City, long a stanch friend of the Missouri senator, is the selection to place him in nomination, it was announced. When Senator Reed was acquiring fame as a prosecuting attorney, Mr. Howell was his deputy. When the senator was elected mayor, he appointed Mr. Howell as city attorney. Subsequently they were associated in the private practice of law and Mr. Howell is still thus engaged in Kansas City.

His selection means that the Missouri senator intends to retain all of the marks of a candidate right up to the last, based undoubtedly on the fact that there may be a slip in so far as Gov. Smith's nomination is concerned, especially when considered that there still is plenty of unfinished preconvention business for the Democrats.

Departure Discussed.

The Hoover forces would like, as also the political prognosticators, to know just when Mr. Coolidge will leave for Wisconsin. They are staking their lives on his halting any Kansas City movement in favor of nominating the President. There is a feeling in some quarters that the President may continue his policy of neutrality either by being on the train when the balloting begins or be off in the Wisconsin wilds. In other words, inaccessible to anyone at Kansas City who might want to know what he has on his mind. Nothing would suit the anti-Hooverites better.

They will be perfectly content to work along in the dark. If a draft-Coolidge movement is begun under these conditions just about half of the Secretary's delegates will be in a dickens of a fix because just about that many are committed to the President first. Even Mr. Hoover is.

Want Another Statement.

Of course, the Hoover forces are hoping that the President will say something before the convention meets. If he should do so he would be helping Mr. Hoover as against the others, and these would say it was not the impartial thing to do. There was what the newspaper men call a "hot tip" going the rounds yesterday, and its origin was not hard to trace, that the President was going to say something. But he did not and the only sign of his saying anything, which is definite, is that he will address the budget meeting June 11, or just on the eve of the Kansas City meeting. After that the President's plans are indefinite, except that some time thereafter he plans to leave for Wisconsin.

As evidence of the general uncertainty about things Republican, such an astute observer as Senator Watson, of Indiana, was wholly in the dark as he left yesterday for Kansas City. He is one of the favorite son candidates, but more important, he is to be one of the board of strategy of the anti-Hoover forces at Kansas City.

"I do not know who is going to be nominated," the ordinarily knowing senator said. "No one on earth knows. But I think it will not be Hoover."

73 Delegates in Question.

The Indiana senator is leaving early to be on hand for the Southern delegate contests, which are to get under way Monday. There are 73 in the balance and the question is whether Hoover or the antis get them.

The Democrats are not yet ready to close up their preconvention shop. As a matter of fact they have one more Southern primary and three Southern State conventions which may well have a bearing on the ease with which the New York Governor may get the nomination and conceivably might bolster up the courage of those who do not want him to have it that their wish will be gratified. It is for this reason that the Missouri senator can not permit himself to give up the fight.

Florida will hold the last primary Tuesday and on June 14 Kentucky Democrats will meet in State convention to be followed the latter part of the month by State conventions in North Carolina and Virginia. The governor's friends in these four States had hoped that by the time of these showdowns the South's attitude would have been sufficiently clarified to make their task easier. It has not, however.

West Virginia Promises Surprises.

West Virginia developed a decided surprise, more so than that which the Hoover people must have felt. Reed's show of strength in the preference voting was as unexpected as his poor showing in Oregon. There was little of the nature of organized support for him, yet he ran but 4,000 behind the New York Governor. Aside from the fact that he was the victor in the preference vote, however, there is cheer for the governor's friends in the fact that he was for the first time the issue in a dry, Protestant State, where there is a real Democratic constituency. West Virginia is a doubtful State. The Democrats are sufficiently strong to send a man to the United States Senate. This is not true of those Western States where the only Democrats are a small body of dissenters, among whom it would be surprising if the New York Governor were not popular instead of the reverse.

But the rub in the West Virginia outcome from the Smith viewpoint is that he lost at least three-fourths of the delegates. The election of delegates in that State does not necessarily have any relation to the preference voting. It will be several days perhaps before the exact complexion of the delegates either on the Democratic side or the Republican side is known but authorities agree that at least three-fourths of the Democrats elected were anti-Smith. Just how Senator Reed fares among them remains to be seen.

The outcome would seem to indicate that the majority of the Democratic voters favored neither Smith nor Reed. Secretary Hoover will do good to salvage six delegates out of the nineteen Republicans named.

In Florida and Kentucky.

The indications are that Florida will elect anti-Smith delegates Tuesday. Kentucky plans to name an uninstructed delegation, according to apparently authoritative reports reaching here, the sort of delegation that will help Smith if he does not need it but will not help him if he does. In other words, it is not likely to be a Smith delegation, but not one that will necessarily fight him to the last ditch. It will probably be a delegation that will make a fight if there is any chance of success, but will go along with the governor if there is none. Delegations of this kind are, of course, not what the governor's friends would choose.

There is a determined Smith influence in Virginia, but just what it will be able to do in the State convention June 21 is yet to be seen. Both the Smith and Simmons forces claim victory in the North Carolina line-up.

The victory lies with the 471 delegates, who were uninstructed at the recent precinct conventions. The State convention will determine the question.

It would seem that if the anti-Smith forces are victorious from now on the break which the Smith forces hope the South will eventually make for him will be slow in getting underway. Of course, the Smith forces already lay claim to Louisiana but there is a contest on there. Arkansas is supposed to have 18 bold delegates for him but it remains to be seen just when they will get bold and vote for the governor in the convention.

GOFF LEADS HOOVER BY 14,461 MAJORITY

Smith's Vote Over Reed Is Cut Down Somewhat in West Virginia.

Charleston, W. Va., June 1 (A.P.).—Belated returns tonight from the West Virginia primary cut somewhat into the lead of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York over Senator James A. Reed for the Democratic presidential preference.

At the same time returns from two-thirds of the State showed fourteen anti-Smith candidates, five Smith men and one undesignated man in the lead as delegates to the Democratic national convention. The State has a delegation of 20 with 16 votes.

Returns from 2,063 of the 2,306 precincts gave Smith 72,960, and Reed, 69,688.

Senator Guy D. Goff continued to hold his lead over Secretary Hoover for the Republican presidential preference. The vote from 2,170 precincts was Golf, 120,337, and Hoover, 105,876.

Houghton, Home, Says He Is Not Candidate

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—Alanson B. Houghton, Ambassador to Great Britain, arrived on the liner Berengaria today for a brief visit. He disclaimed any knowledge or interest in published stories that he would resign to become a candidate for United States senator.

"Please say for me," he said, "that I have my job and doing as well as I know how. I am so content that I am not thinking of any other job."

Mr. Houghton explained that he has come home chiefly in connection with the estate of his brother, Arthur A., who died two months ago.

SMITH AND LOWDEN FUNDS ARE TRACED AT NEW YORK QUIZ

$6,000 Sent to North Carolina by Supporters of State Executive.

OLVANY AWAY FISHING, COMMITTEE INFORMED

Tammany Head to Be Called Here—Mayor Hague May Be Heard Today.

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—More light on the activities of the Smith, Hoover and Lowden organizations here was obtained today by the Senate presidential campaign funds committee, but the investigators found that the principal witness they sought, George W. Olvany, head of Tammany Hall, was absent from the city.

The subpoena for Olvany was issued soon after the committee arrived here early today from Washington, but when the deputy sergeant-at-arms sought to serve it, he was informed by Olvany's secretary that the Tammany chieftain had left on a fishing trip with some friends and would not return until Monday. He will be summoned to Washington later.

The calling of Olvany was demanded yesterday by Senator Heflin, of Alabama, who told the committee he should be questioned as to what funds Tammany had spent to promote the presidential candidacy of Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

$6,000 to North Carolina.

From George Gordon Battle, New York attorney, the committee learned that $6,000 had been sent into North Carolina by Smith supporters since the committee made its visit to Raleigh on May 21 and found that Battle had sent $3,500 into that State.

Some of the money went in after the precinct primaries were held on May 26 for the election of delegates to the county conventions, Battle said, adding that it was to pay the cost of printing, postage and the like.

An additional expenditure of $2,173.20 on behalf of the candidacy of Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, was found with the examination of Thomas P. Moffett, one of the incorporators of the New York Lowden-for-President Club. This increased the known total of outlay on behalf of Lowden to $60,785.

Business Paper Committee.

Activities of "The Hoover Business Paper Editorial Advisory Committee" were testified to by Thomas H. Ormsbee, who described himself as the Washington contact man for the committee, his task being that of "digging out" of the Commerce Department facts upon which "releases" to the more than 300 business publications of the country were based. He said the committee had collected $1,794.68 and expended $1,376.16.

Ormsbee explained that for seven years Secretary Hoover had been helpful to the editors of the papers at conferences he had had with them at Washington, and that when he became a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination they felt that "here was a chance to organize and forward his candidacy."

J. J. Hoey, of New York, who was very active for Smith during the governor's memorable 1924 fight with William G. McAdoo for the Democratic presidential nomination, told the investigators that he had raised no money in the present campaign and had made no contributions. He added, however, that he may have spent as much as $2,500 in taking visiting friends and supporters of Smith to lunch during the past year and in writing letters to hundreds of friends over the country.

Sees North Carolina Victory.

Battle, who was questioned at some length by Senators Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, the chairman, and Bratton (Democrat), New Mexico, the only members of the committee to come to New York, expressed his conviction that the North Carolina delegation to the Houston convention would vote for his friend, the New York Governor.

He said he based that opinion upon the results of the precinct primaries and information he had from his native State.

He read a prepared statement in which he urged the people of North Carolina to show that they were "freed from the bondage of that intolerance and bigotry which has manifested itself in some parts of the country in opposition to Gov. Smith's candidacy."

Battle said he had sent $3,500 into North Carolina—$3,000 of his own money and $500 he raised among New York friends, who also are of North Carolina origin. His last contribution of $1,000 was made on May 29, he said, three days after the precinct primaries

$5,000 Sent by Van Namee.

Asked if he knew of any other money going into that State, Battle said George R. Van Namee, head of the New York Smith organization, had sent $5,000 into that State "recently" and since Van Namee testified before the committee on its first visit to New York early last month. At that time Van Namee said no money had been sent into either the Southern or border States.

The witness testified that Van Namee first sent $2,000 to William B. Jones at Raleigh and later sent $3,000 into the State, but he could not say to whom the second contribution was made.

Continuing its hearing here tomorrow, the committee will call, among others, Frank J. Hague, Mayor of Jersey City, Democratic national committeeman for New Jersey and a leader of the Smith supporters, and John J. Curry, manager of the New York Curtis-for-President Club.

NEW JERSEY ELECTION INQUIRY TO BEGIN SOON

Reed Senate Committee Will Start Next Week Unless Plans Are Changed.

(Associated Press.)

Investigation of campaign expenditures in the recent New Jersey Republican senatorial race will be started here next week by the Reed Senate committee.

Definite plans for the investigation will be mapped out today by Senators McNary (Republican), of Oregon, and King (Democrat), of Utah, who will conduct the hearings in accordance with the Caraway resolution adopted by the Senate directing the inquiry. It is hoped to conclude the work during the week.

Senator Reed (Democrat), of Missouri, chairman of the special committee named by the Senate two years ago to inquire into campaign expenditures of Senate candidates, has turned the work over to Senators King and McNary.

Reports from the five Republican candidates in the New Jersey primary, which was won by Hamilton Kean, national committeeman, probably will be called for first.

COOLIDGES TO FIND STRICT SECLUSION IN BRULE RETREAT

Dim Forest, Sweet-Smelling Trails and Solitude in Wisconsin Wilds.

GATES BAR INTRUDERS; GRAVEL ROAD TO PLACE

Col. Starling Due Monday to Complete Arrangements for Executive's Visit.

By PHILIP KINSEY.

Special to The Washington Post.

Superior, Wis., June 1.—President Coolidge has chosen one of the most secluded and beautiful spots in the great north woods for the summer White House this year.

Cedar Island Lodge, where the presidential party is expected in about two weeks, is a clearing in the ancient wilderness, a clipped lawn, cedar bark paradise surrounded by the wild woods Here the President may remain aloof from the din of summer politics, listening to the wind sighing in the high tops of the old cedars and pine, lulled by the music of the River Brule, which flows gently by his doorstep.

He may step out on his lawn and cast his fly into lake or river, or walk down a concrete way to a canoe with a fisherman's arm chair seat in the bow. There are miles of dim forest, dim, sweet-smelling trails through the 4,800-acre estate in which he will be fenced. No tourist can get at him. There are seven varieties of trout to angle for. What more could man desire?

Created From a Swamp.

The lodge is owned by the heirs of the late Henry Clay Pierce, financier and oil magnate of St. Louis and New York. It was created out of a swamp sixteen years ago by E. M. Lambert, formerly with the United States Department of Fisheries, and now superintendent of the estate. It is situated near the crossroads town of Brule and about midways between Superior and Ashland. Citizens of all the upper lake country are preparing to welcome the President. The lodge where he will live is being renovated and linemen were on the ground today laying out cables and wires for the communications with the outside world.

The executive office is to be in a schoolhouse, as it was last summer. The three-story brick central high school has been selected, pending the arrival of Col. Z. W. Starling, of the secret service staff, next Monday. Over this schoolhouse yard sits the figure of James J. Hill, railroad empire builder.

Turning off the highway from Brule you travel a county road for 4 miles, then 3 miles down a narrow lumber road into the Brule valley, and you find the gates of the estate.

Bleak, Barren Character.

This country has something of a bleak, barren character. On most of the hillsides the old forests have been wasted by fire or ax. Dipping into the valley you find patches of old trees, but it is not until the Pierce estate is reached that the virgin woods are found. Here the brush has not even been touched except in the lodge clearing. There is no sign of farming around.

At the locked gates there is a telephone, and it is necessary to ask for admittance. This opens into another stretch of wild land that leads to a cluster of log buildings near an inner gate. Here is the real heart of the retreat. There is a cage here where two bears were kept. Trails lead off to cabins. There are seventeen buildings on the estate, all of log, bark and stone, blending into the woods scene.

The inner gate opens upon a wide, green lawn, which slopes down to the water.

A timber foot bridge leads across to the island where the main lodge is. The lodge is entirely unpretentious, not one of the $1,000,000 Newport variety. It is a one-story affair, of logs covered with old gray cedar bark. Water is all around, although there is room on the island for more lawn, trees, benches and walks. This water is dark and cold. The river here is about 40 feet wide, rather shallow, with trout even now rising to the fly.

Winds Whisper All the Time.

Tall cedar trees, pines and cottonwood make the spot lovely and shaded. The winds whisper here all the time. The water ripples by. The shadows of deep pools, the swirl of a current, make this most inviting place possible to the fisherman that the President has become in his past two summers.

The best method of fishing this river is from a canoe. There are two guides ready to paddle the President and unsnag his hooks.

There are 11 lakes and 90 miles of stream to choose from, but he need not wander away from his own island to find some of the best fishing. The banks are close grown with trees, making bank casting impossible, except in a few meadows near Brule.

The secret of the good fishing here is found a half mile away from the lodge, where the estate maintains what is said to be the largest fish hatchery in the country. They let out enough to keep their own lakes and river well supplied, and there are plenty more to release from the hatchery pens when the President arrives.

Many Varieties There.

For three-quarters of a mile these breeding and feeding pens stretch out over what was once a swamp. Superintendent Lambert lives in a log cottage near the hatchery, for this is his pet work. There are big Montana graylings ready to leap out of the water, Colorado natives, brook, rainbow, German brown and other varieties, each kept in separate ponds out in the open.

Trails through the forest wind around trees 2 to 3 feet in diameter. There are many wild flowers, but no hills to climb and no horses to ride.

The President's outlook has nothing of the rough hills, the wide plains that he loved in the Black Hills. Here he is inclosed, shut in. From his outer lawn, where the trees have been cut away, he can see a pine-topped ridge. Here, too, during a summer evening, he may see the fan-like sweep of the northern lights across the sky.

His inmost retreat, the lodge, is a place of ten rooms, cheerfully, comfortably furnished. There are verandas in front and in back, where he may rest and watch the trees and the water and wait for the moment in the day when the fish are rising.

8 Small Bedrooms Available.

There is a good-sized living room with stone fireplace, a library with another fireplace, and eight small bedrooms opening off. There are two bathrooms. The Oriental rugs on the floor are matched by the wicker chairs and tables imported from France. There is an antique piano of maple, with gold inlay work The walls are adorned with fishing and hunting trophies and pictures of these sports. There are many deer head and some fine trout. The weather vane over the lodge is in the form of a fish. The light fixtures are in the shape of a canoe. Owls, frogs, squirrels, in statuary, adorn the light posts outside.

Just a few feet from the porch is a concrete boat landing.

Nothing to do but fish. The trout average a pound and there is always a chance of a big one

The daily ride to the executive office will be over good gravel and concrete roads after the highway is reached.

Kansas City, June 1 (A.P.).—Chairman William M. Butler, of the Republican national committee, arrived here today to take charge of preliminaries to the Republican national convention, starting June 12. He was accompanied by a staff of assistants

No important business will be transacted, Mr. Butler said, before the hearings beginning Monday on 73 contested delegates. He did not know who would preside at these hearings, since George Wharton Pepper, former senator from Pennsylvania, had declined to serve.

"LARCENY OF POWER."

In his Gettysburg address President Coolidge called attention to the tendency of legislators to go beyond the limits of the power given to them by the people. "In their desire to take some action which they conceive to be in the public interest," he said, "they oftentimes manifest a disposition to exceed their constitutional authority. Such action is a larceny of power. Responsibility for it can not be evaded by the weak plea to let the law be passed and the courts can decide its constitutionality. Legislators are required to qualify upon their solemn oath. That oath is not that they will leave the courts to defend and support the Constitution, but that they themselves will defend and support it."

Special point is given to Mr. Coolidge's remarks by the action of Congress in attempting to make laws that were acknowledged to be of doubtful constitutionality. But for Mr. Coolidge these attempts would have been successful in the case of the Muscle Shoals and McNary-Haugen bills. Members of the House brazenly admitted that they supported the McNary-Haugen bill in spite of their own doubts as to its constitutionality, and tried to justify their position by suggesting that the courts would protect the people if the law should prove to be unconstitutional. This attempted "larceny of power" marked the lowest depths of ignorance and perverseness to which legislators in Congress have yet descended. They could go no further without becoming traitors to their oath.

Although the unconstitutionality of the Muscle Shoals bill was not so sharply exposed, there is no doubt that President Coolidge looks upon the attempt to force the Government into business as being as outrageously a larceny of power as was the attempt to fix the price of agricultural products. He had already denounced attempts to plunge the Government into private business, and Congress had no right to expect him to approve the Muscle Shoals bill.

"For the purpose of promoting a reign of law in the world," said Mr. Coolidge at Gettysburg, "there is a special obligation resting upon all public officials. There is a considerable body, executive, legislative and judicial in its functions, which derive their authority directly from constitutional sources. None of these is all-powerful, but are held within strict limits."

No one can doubt that popular disrespect for law is encouraged when members of Congress and executive officers attempt to wield unlawful power. When outrageous proposals are made, such as raising the cost of foodstuffs by law and making the Government a competitor in business with its own citizens, and these proposals can command a majority in Congress, it is little wonder that citizens begin to feel a contempt for law and lawmakers. This contempt is increased when Federal executives shield petty officers who shoot down innocent citizens and then offer the excuse that these citizens were suspected of being bootleggers. What are the people to think when lawmakers and the law officers become violators of the Constitution and the laws?

LONG DISTANCE EDUCATION.

Education by correspondence has long since ceased being either a novelty or a joke. Many of the Nation's largest institutions of learning now offer extension courses to those who are unable to matriculate as resident students. Hundreds of thousands of persons in remote sections or so confined as to be unable to attend regular classes have taken advantage of such courses. That the practice has been beneficial is apparent, for generally only those really desirous of improving themselves have enrolled.

The one element lacking, contact between the teachers and pupils, has in recent years, according to the Bureau of Education, been met in part by the use of radio. Many of the colleges offering extension courses have in the last few years made use of the air to supplement the written lessons sent to their students. The result is that the scholars get still another advantage which formerly came only to those able to attend at the seat of the institution. It has been found practical to give by radio virtually the same courses of lectures as are delivered in the classrooms. Tests and examinations are based on the information imparted by the instructors.

The new system means, of course, that hundreds of individuals may share the knowledge that is put on the radio without payment. Only those who are enrolled may submit papers and have them corrected. It is, however, a recognized mission of universities and colleges to impart learning. They can not regret that they reach many who listen only out of curiosity, for even there they may do some good. The application of radio to instruction is still young. Its development may lead to the day when the wisdom of the world's best brains will be available to all who care to tune in.

SEEKING A SIGN.

The approach of the Republican convention, with all its uncertainties, appears only to increase the suspicion with which every movement of President Coolidge is viewed. It is, therefore, only natural that his decision to pass the summer in Wisconsin, after it had been confidently predicted that he would go South, should be mischievously examined by those who look for political significance in all his acts.

It is noted first of all by these worthies that the decision of the President has "renewed the movement to draft" him. In some unrevealed and occult way his voyage in the Northwest has made him more available than would have been the case if he had journeyed south by east. There is more to the story than that, however. It develops, according to some chroniclers, that the President will be aboard his train at the very moment that the balloting begins in Kansas City. Mr. Coolidge, speeding across the country, will be unable to stop the stampede of delegates to his cause and without his knowledge he will be made the party's standard bearer—presumably while he is in transit between Ashtabula and Cleveland.

The only difficulty the public will have in absorbing these stories is that deep and dark significance would have been attached to any decision that the President might have reached. Weighty reasons had previously been given why his ambitions demanded that he go South. Had President Coolidge reached the conclusion that he might as well stay in the Capital more subtle inferences would have been drawn than those that have now seen the light of day. There is and can be no peace until the convention itself puts an end to all speculation.

There is reason to believe, however, that those who attribute some hidden motive in every act of the President are inspired by the desire to have Mr. Coolidge declare that he would not accept the nomination if it should be offered him. Any such declaration could be used to the advantage of some candidates and to the detriment of others. It would remove at least one of the unknown quantities, and there are enough now to give certain politicians many sleepless hours. The battle to break down the presidential silence is likely to continue until the moment that the candidate is named, but the odds in favor of those who would extract some sign are not very great.

SURVEY OF HOMES.

Sometime ago the General Federation of Womens Clubs undertook to make the equivalent of an industrial survey of the American home. The project was started because of the fact that the home, one of the leading industries, is not considered in any Federal census classification, a condition that makes it impossible to find statistics or data on the profession of homemaking such as are available for every other profession. Such a survey, as was to have been expected, immediately became of value to manufacturers of vacuum sweepers and other home appliances. It was inevitable that the charge of commercialism should have been raised against the organization making it.

At the present time the General Federation of Womens Clubs is in convention at Dallas. The charges regarding the survey have been made a leading issue, and Mrs. John Sherman, president of the federation, on two separate occasions has denied vehemently that the project was undertaken with any except the purest motives. The survey, she says, received the support of the National Electric Light Association and other commercial bodies after a definite understanding had been reached that these organizations would gain no special privilege from the federation. The survey, she says further, was successful, having brought out "many conspicuous defects in our American home equipment. There were thousands of towns having no water or sewer system. There were fairly large cities having no garbage collection or disposal plan. A fifth of our suburban homes were without stationary sinks and a third lacked bathtubs." As a result of the survey, she says, many clubs have been spurred to active efforts to improve conditions in their localities.

The commercialism charge may demand defense before the organization. Before the public, however, the survey justifies itself. The fact that certain commercial organizations might be benefited thereby proves that there is need for such a survey, for a bathtub can be put into a home only through the combined efforts of a bathtub manufacturer, a distributer and a plumber. The Federation of Womens Clubs would do well to make the household survey an annual undertaking.

AMERICA TO AUSTRALIA.

Capt. Kingsford-Smith has piloted his plane, Southern Cross, successfully and speedily from San Francisco to Honolulu. The achievement is no mean feat of itself, but it marks only the beginning of one of the most comprehensive and spectacular air voyages ever undertaken. From Honolulu the Southern Cross soon will take off for the Fiji Islands, whence the journey to Australia, Capt. Kingsford-Smith's objective, will be resumed. In all, close to 8,000 miles of water lie between the starting and finishing points of this voyage.

Capt. Kingsford-Smith is accompanied by C. T. P. Ulm, copilot; James Warner, radio operator, and Lieut. Harry Lyon, jr., navigator. Kingsford-Smith and Ulm are Australians, Warner and Lyon are Americans. It is a happy combination, particularly in view of the fact that this brave crew is pioneering a route that some day will be thick with planes linking the United States with the Commonwealth of Australia. The day is far distant, of course. The advance preparation necessary to get this expedition under way testifies to the fact that flying between the two continents is venturesome. The voyage has not yet been completed, but the comparative ease with which the Southern Cross was set down in Honolulu augurs well for its happy termination. The hop to the Fiji Islands is the longest. If Kingsford-Smith can manage it successfully he will be as good as landed in Australia.

LACROSSE SUPERSEDES BASEBALL.

Several colleges, two recently in Maryland, have definitely abandoned baseball as a spring sport in favor of lacrosse. Other institutions, while they have not gone that far, have inaugurated lacrosse as a varsity sport so that the game has very generally become a rival of what Americans are pleased to call the national pastime. Lacrosse might dispute this title. The game is of Indian origin and has a history that dates far back beyond the days when rounders was first imported and transformed into modern baseball.

College interest in lacrosse is not hard to understand. Baseball as played in the universities has lost its appeal. There are only a few places where it can compete with either professional or semiprofessional talent. Not even the student body generates any particular fever of enthusiasm for the college nine. A few games are well patronized, but as a whole, baseball is one of the sports that must be sustained by profits in other directions.

Another reason for the increasing popularity of lacrosse is that football coaches have found the game an excellent adjunct to the fall sport. It is virtually as valuable as spring practice in keeping gridiron stars in condition. The leading twelves boast of the presence of many football stars who find little difficulty in adopting the stick instead of the pigskin.

Maryland is one of the centers of lacrosse in the United States. The game has been enthusiastically adopted and supported there for a good many years. This year the State boasts of at least three of the best teams in the United States. They are sure to be chosen for the Olympic trials, and no doubt some of the State's best players will be selected for the trip abroad. The day may come when the colleges will have a spring sport which will rival and not merely imitate professional baseball.

HARVARD'S NOISELESS VICTORY.

The Harvard undergraduate body apparently did not rise to the occasion when it was announced that the Crimson brain team had won a signal victory over Yale, in the first of the intercollegiate tests established by Mrs. William Lowell Putnam. No red fire was burned in Cambridge Square. There was no singing under the elms in the Yard. The wires bring no report of a noisy celebration ending with a renewal of the ancient feud between the student body and the Boston police. Harvard appears to have taken the honor with due moderation and humility.

Nevertheless, it was no mean victory that Harvard scored. Six of its ten competitors finished in the first ten. Two of its best scholars finished in first and second places, but whether in the same state of exhaustion that characterizes the successful athlete is not revealed. It was, in fact, a much better showing than the Crimson eleven has been able to make in a good many years. The triumphs over Yale which Cambridge has been able to celebrate have been few and far between of late. Why did not the undergraduates make the best of whatever opportunity came their way?

Not even the drama that might have been extracted from the competition itself was fully used. Now that the whole thing is over it develops that two of the contestants, one representing Yale and the other Harvard, were forced to take the examination while in the hospital. Baseball, football, rowing and track would have capitalized such a situation to much better advantage. Imagine the columns which would have been filled with the heroism of the man who refused to permit illness to keep him off the eleven or out of the shell! Their praise would have been sung in headlines from one end of the country to the other. But ailing members of the brain team got only an insignificant line at the bottom of the story.

A week from now it will be hard to find a person able to name the winner. It may be impossible to find such an individual today. The only mark of victory is the addition of $5,000 worth of volumes to the Harvard library, on subjects, no doubt, so abstruse that few undergraduate eyes will ever glance at them. The brain test evidently needs a press agent. When it shall have risen to the dignity of a major sport, with cheering sections, bands and pennants, something may come of it.

SOUTH AMERICAN AIR MAIL.

The Peruvian government has announced that authorization has been granted the Huff-Deland Dusters to establish a passenger and mail air service between the United States and Peru. The Postoffice Department has not yet heard formally of the project and points out that unless the Huff-Deland Dusters have a contract with the United States Government they can carry mail only one way. However, Government officials have been hoping for sometime that an air mail line connecting the two Americas would be established, and there is little doubt that the Huff-Deland Dusters, a subsidiary of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation, which has held more than one Government contract, will be able to obtain authorization from the Postoffice Department to carry United States mail.

The time has arrived when an air mail route connecting the two Americas should prove profitable. It is only over comparatively long distances that the airplane affords any considerable time saving, and in this connection the geographic location of the two Americas seem made to order for air mail. In addition, trade of the United States with the South American Republics is becoming greater every year, and there is a genuine demand for means of speedy commercial intercourse. Air mail to South America, by speeding up trade, will put money into the pockets of American business men. There seems to be no reason why it should not quickly reach the position of more than paying its own way.

The great need of every American community is another good pitcher.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: An economic expert tells Congress that people are eating less food than formerly. Maybe some one could introduce another relief bill compelling people to eat more food.

Selling Ships.

Baltimore Sun: The first encouraging result of the Jones-White merchant marine act is shown by sale of the American West African Line at a price of $27.15 a deadweight ton. The price compares with about $10 a ton for Pacific Coast Liners sold prior to passage of the bill. The ships aggregate 82,232 deadweight tons and the total received for them was $2,235,856. The success of the sale is taken to foreshadow liquidation of Government-owned tonnage as rapidly as possible. When this process is completed it will mean that the Government will have written off approximately $2,000,000,000 as loss on its wartime ship building program, a fact which had a good deal to do with persuading Congress to indorse the new merchant marine act.

Citizens and Politics.

New York Times: If the oftener a true thing is said the nearer is its realization, the speeches on Memorial Day at the Lincoln University in the mountains of Tennessee advanced this country toward a desired goal. For all the orators who were dedicating the Hall of Citizenship which Benjamin N. Duke presented to the university spoke on the same line—that politics is the business of the citizens, and its standards can not be improved without the steady interest and participation of the best of them. The purpose of Duke Hall is to train young Americans in the practices as well as the theories of popular government. Colleges have for the most part dealt with the theory and have left political pragmatism to the ward and county leaders. But Lincoln Memorial University, getting most of its students from the pure native stock of the Southern Appalachians, may be able to send out to many American communities young men with as much political understanding as zeal.

Nor Blind Men.

Kansas City Star: As evidence of the care that is taken to protect the working man from disaster in some cities, a safety-first official from Washington says pigeon-toed men should not be employed for work that has to be done on swinging scaffolds.

Politicians Don't Get It.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: The curious thing is that if our political history teaches one thing more clearly than another it is that the people admire and respect the fearless man in public life, just as they do the fearless man in private life.

Grover Cleveland's greatest political asset when he entered the national field was his reputation for fearlessness. He was nominated for President at Chicago in 1884 over the formidable opposition of Tammany Hall, the rallying cry being, "We love him for the enemies he has made."

President Coolidge is also an example of a man in public office who has not hesitated to exhibit a mind of his own. He has vetoed various measures which appeared to be popular and which the politicians in Congress were afraid to oppose. But what member stands as high in public esteem as the President?

Congress is full of men ambitious to reach the White House. It is surprising that more of them do not grasp the political value of a backbone.

Peaceable, Not Pacifist.

Philadelphia Public Ledger: The British press affects to be puzzled that President Coolidge in his Gettysburg speech should advocate the "renunciation-of-war" proposals and in the same breath support naval and air-force development. The British press never wearies of being that way about the United States. The trouble with the British is that they would like to see in the United States a nation of pacifists. In this desire they are bound to be disappointed. They might as well face the facts, as the London Times tries to do when it admits: "The President's speech, however, is useful in one respect—it shows that the American peace policy is realistic and, for that reason, serious and not to be confounded with absolute pacifism." America is peaceable and is working for peace. But America is not pacifist. Neither Great Britain nor any other nation will understand American policy until this distinction is clearly made.

In the Jazz Age.

Normal Ways

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A LIGHT burned in Fulton's window until long after midnight, and when the neighbors heard he was making a steam engine to drive a boat they said he was crazy.

A man named Paul talked about a strange new religion and Festus said: "Paul, much learning has made you mad."

Whenever a leader appears with a new idea, the people think him crazy. They are suspicious of any deviation from the usual.

They make frequent mistakes because they don't distinguish between deviations from the usual and deviations from the normal.

The accumulated wisdom of the race, usually called common sense, recognizes the normal as a standard of sanity.

If a man acts and thinks as men always have and as the majority now does, he seems sane; if his acts and thoughts are wholly unlike those of other men, he seems mad.

The unusual, however, isn't necessarily abnormal. It may be an improvement, a development, a growth. And there is the rule by which the merely unusual may be distinguished from the abnormal—the sane from the insane.

The sane and normal thing is helpful, for nature's normal plan is one of growth and improvement. The insane and the abnormal thing is hurtful.

Consider Bela Kun. He now is in jail and helpless; but when he was in power his name inspired terror. He sought to improve the world by killing all who disagreed with him and by abolishing standards of morality. He exhibited vicious sex pictures in the schools in an effort to destroy virtue.

Such men as he, however sane they may appear in other particulars, demonstrate their madness by their efforts to destroy what is normal.

As flight and nesting are normal to birds, and swimming is normal to ducks, so modesty and virtuous mating and family life and respect for constituted authority and a wholesome regard for ethics—in short, the usual and accustomed ways of men, are normal ways and sane ways.

And those who attempt to destroy the normal are quite obviously mad, whether they practice in the name of religion or freedom.

The unusual is normal if its fruit is good, but it is neither normal nor sane if it delights in destruction.

The A. P. tells of a pet skunk that disappeared in Pennsylvania. If it's the usual thing, he will tell his wife he lost his memory.

Mr. Mellon's approval of Hoover reminds us of a man with a pat hand who likes the pot, but is willing to be offered further adventure.

One reason why the old-fashioned girl wasn't wild at eighteen was because by that time she had a baby on each hip.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Campaign Prospects

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With Congress adjourned and the fear of radical legislation removed, the business of the country ought to revive. It is legendary that presidential election years are always bad for business, on account of the uncertainty of the November outcome. This was true when there was a radical difference between the two major parties on such far-reaching questions as the tariff. This year there is no such glaring differences on that subject. The South is becoming more and more protective in feeling, while the North has always been wedded to the protective theory.

It will be hard to discern on just what the two parties will split. The probabilities are that both parties will have a dry platform. They will both pronounce in favor of farm relief, differing only in degree. Flood prevention is out of the way, and the Boulder Dam is local. Both parties will favor regular tax reduction when a surplus is found. What, then, will they have to fight over? Evidence has already been given that one of the slogans of the Democrats will be: "Turn the rascals out!" This has been foreshadowed by the action of the Reed and Walsh committees. Their investigations have been for that one purpose only. Had they desired to do so those committees could have ended their investigations months ago. They have been kept alive with the hope that the investigations could be used for party capital.

With the uncertainty of any radical tariff revision removed, business should hold its normal place, notwithstanding this is an election year. There can be no doubt the Republicans will in a degree be put upon the defensive, as the large campaign expenditures have been by Republican candidates. For this position the Republicans in Congress are to blame. They could have forced the investigating committees to complete their work months ago. The investigations were aimed at their party, and they should have demanded and forced a prompt report. It matters not what the report might have been, they would have lost their force by this time. Having thus bungled their party will likely suffer.

CAMPAIGNER.

DEATHS IN CONGRESS.

Death has taken an unusually large toll among the membership of the present Congress, says the Houston Post Dispatch. The losses by death are the more conspicuous by reason of the fact that a number of the victims have been outstanding leaders in the two houses. Already, before the elections of the year are held, it is made certain that the next Congress will have a decidedly different personnel from this one. Thomas S. Butler, representative from a Pennsylvania district and chairman of the naval committee, who died Saturday, was the second chairman of an important House committee to pass away in recent weeks. Martin B. Madden, of Chicago, chairman of the House appropriations committee, having preceded him to the grave by little more than a month. Shortly before the death of Representative Madden, Representative Gallivan, long a popular member from Massachusetts, and an ardent advocate of the wet cause, went to his reward. Representative Sweet, of New York, was killed in an airplane accident early last month, while making a trip home from Washington. In the Senate the grim reaper took first, during the present session, Senator A. A. Jones, of New Mexico, and later Senator Frank B. Willis, of Ohio, and Senator Woodbrige N. Ferris, of Michigan. As a result of these deaths in the Senate, the Republicans gained two members, and lost one, while the Democrats lost two and gained one.

Mrs. Charles Weeks announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Lucy Flynn, and Mr. Eldridge O. Osmond, jr. The wedding took place in Annapolis on April 12. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Royall. Mr. and Mrs. Osmond will make their home here.

Mr. Fred T. Dubois and his elder daughter, Mrs. John Arnold Cannon, returned yesterday from West Baden, Ind., where they have been passing the last two weeks.

Miss Ruth Morgan, vice president of the American League of Women Voters, of New York City, is at the Powhatan for several days.

Mrs. Lawrence Barnard and daughter, Miss A. L. Barnard, of New Rochelle, N. Y., are also guests at the Powhatan.

Mrs. Fred T. Dubois entertained the national board of managers of the Children of the American Revolution of which she is honorary president, at a garden party luncheon at her home in Georgetown yesterday. Mrs. Dubois was assisted by Mrs. Claude Porter, Mrs. Edward D. Hays, Mrs. Clayton Emig, Mrs. Hulbert Bisselle and her daughter, Miss Toussaint Dubois.

Judge Mary O'Toole, of the Municipal Court, will share honors with the June graduates of Phi Alpha Chapter of the Chi Omega Fraternity of George Washington University, at the luncheon given by the Washington City Alumnae Chapter on June 9. About 50 members of the fraternity are expected to attend the luncheon, which is an annual affair given in honor of the new graduates and is to be held this year in the Du Barry room of the Cafe St. Marks. Among the guests of honor this year are Miss Elizabeth Brandenburg, Miss Helen Walten, Miss Vivian Bane and Miss Winifred White, all members of the graduating classes of George Washington University.

Miss Katherine Vaux is chairman.

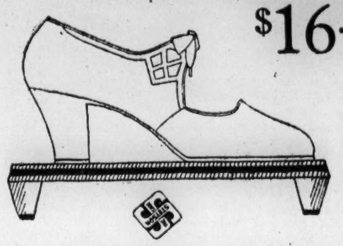

Judge O'Toole has been recently initated into full membership. Although Chi Omega, which is the largest such organization for women numbering eight-four chapters in colleges and universities throughout the country, is a social fraternity, it numbers among its membership in Washington many professional women such as Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General of the United States; Dean Anna L. Rose, dean of women at George Washington University; Miss Helen Newman, secretary of the George Washington University Law School, and Miss Virginia Deidel, who, having been recently admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States is the youngest woman to attain this honor.

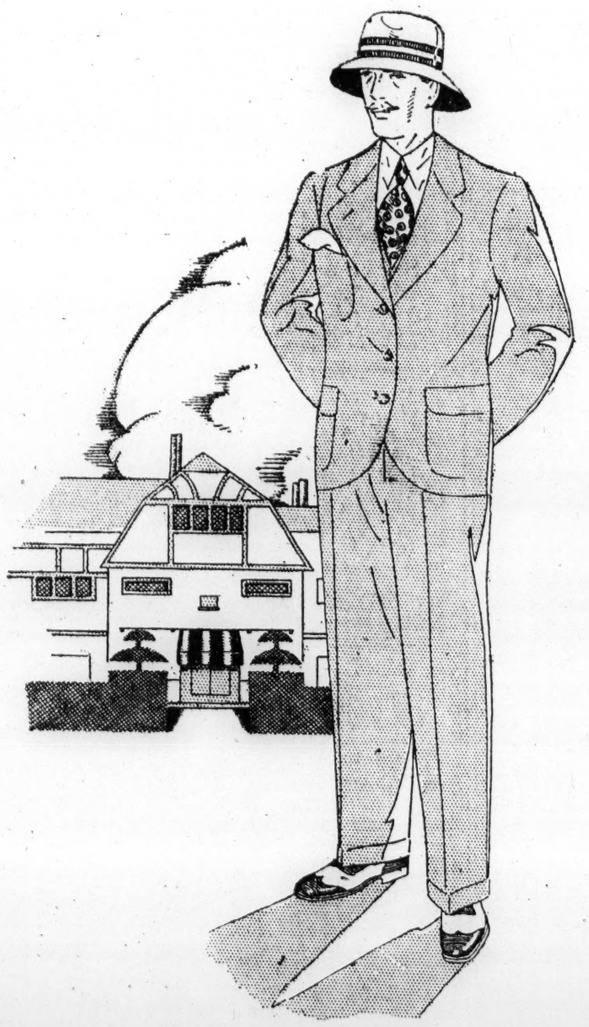

The annual June dance of Phi Alpha Chapter of the Chi Omega fraternity at George Washington University, will be given on Wednesday evening at the Manor Club, when the members of the fraternity who are graduating from the university this year will be the guests of honor, including Miss Helen Walten, Miss Winifred White, Miss Vivian Bane and Miss Betty Brandenburg.

Miss Lorena Carroll heads the committee in charge of the dance which will have for chaperones, Dean Anna L. Rose, dean of women of George Washington; Miss Linda Jane Kincannon, registrar; Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans and Mr. and Mrs. Max Walton.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

Dr. Dean will answer all signed letters pertaining to parents' problems with their boys and girls. Writers' names are never printed. Only questions of general interest answered in this column, but all letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped self-addressed envelope is inclosed. Address Arthur Dean, in care of this paper.

ARE CHILDREN PEOPLE?

YES, when dealt with as this mother who writes, "I always try to treat my boys as though they were intelligent."

Great Scott, madame, do you realize what you are saying! Don't you know that small youngsters should be baby-talked? That the older ones should be told to keep quiet and some day "when they are big enough" they will be answered?

And then, readers, this mother goes on to prove her point. She tells me how she had a talk with her eldest boy just before he started to college on the rather delicate subject which we brought up in this column describing Cecil and Cyril. When she came across a newspaper account of the result of dope fiendishness, she explained the evils of starting the drug habit. Then she read an item about Antioch College and the wonderful scheme of its president to establish a combination of a learning-and-earning education, and the splendid methods he is developing in teaching in practical and concrete form citizenship, history, current events, finances and economics. She tells me how interested the boy became in the article and how he talked it over with her, and finally decided to enter this unique college.

To quote her again, "Years ago I left off being aggressive with them, except on rare occasions, and instead of trying to confine them to my experience and to my early days, I endeavored to keep myself in touch with the modern trend of things. I try to have a line on life to compete with their lines on life. My boys are not fools. They see things. They think. Why shouldn't I?

"The most constructive thing I can do now is to interpret life to them as it touches life with them or with our neighbors, and more widely with what we read of it from day to day in our newspapers. I try to place the right knowledge in their grasp before the need arises."

Fine! A wise mother is one who is one jump ahead of her sons.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.
Wants to Be Detective.

I want to be a detective. I think it must be a wonderful thing to get a chance to travel all over the world and trap criminals in their dens.

BOY OF TWELVE.

Answer—Yes, I know the picture before you: keen-eyed, capable of difficult feats of deduction, ability to pick a crook from the crowd, ready to jump at a moment's notice to China or South Africa to catch an international thief, wearing overalls to catch the foreman who is stealing the payroll to donning a dress suit and attending a grand reception to snatch the heiress from the clutches of a penniless Siberian count.

"Detective work in its simplest form is spying," says Dilnot in his book, "Great Detectives and Their Methods." "Imagination may prove a drawback. Detectives fall into three groups: the executive organizer, who knows how to get information and apply it; the thief-taker, a first-rate police officer who knows thieves and their methods but rarely advances above that; the expert, who knows fingerprints, photography, records and may not be highly educated."

Pertinent Points.

This conversation corner does not concern itself with "lovelorn" or "etiquette" except from the point of view of young people, and then only because they present real problems to parents. Anything which is a problem for a youth is indirectly a problem for parents. There are little points in "etiquette" which trouble young people and which are not treated in the average Question and Answer department. There are emotional problems of girls which can not be classed as "lovelorn" questions since they have a far deeper significance and importance—both psychological and physical.

Today we offer the following new helplets to our readers: "Thirty-two Everyday Points on Social Behavior for Young People," and "How to Be Popular and Not Cheap." (Underscore the one desired.)

Fifteen and Eighteen Equals What?

Do you think a girl of 15 years is too young to go with a boy of 18?

BOY.

Answer—A girl of 15 is too young to "go with" anybody. Girls of 2 years and over may have boy playmates and associates. Any girl of 15 who settles down to "go with" one boy is taking life more seriously than the situation warrants.

Mr. Work's Pointers
Contract Bridge

Yesterday it was stated that informatory doubles at Contract should be somewhat more conservaitve than such doubles at Auction Bridge. In my Auction Bridge writings I have been more conservative than most of the others. I have begged my readers not to double informatorily unless strong. I believe the winning principle is: Double conservatively, answer the double optimistically; therefore, generally speaking, I do not approve of any double at Auction Bridge with less than five high cards that probably will take tricks; although under certain exceptional conditions, four high sure trick-takers may justify it. In Auction, a Jack may be reckoned among the high cards that probably will take tricks, when it is accompanied by Ace and one other, or King and one other; but in Contract, while I do not believe in increasing the number of high cards required to justify an informatory double, I would be more conservative in depending upon Jacks. For example, in Auction Bridge, Dealer (South) having bid one No Trump, I would have West (but not East) double unhesitatingly with:

♠K-J-X
♥A-X-X
♦A-J-X
♣X-X-X-X

In Contract I believe it would be doubtful whether the two Jacks should be counted as two in the five-high-card reckoning. It furthermore goes without saying that when vulnerable, the informatory double in Contract should be used with even more caution than when not vulnerable because, if the partner have a bust, the loss when vulnerable may prove to be so great.

In actual Contract play I have noted that the average number of informatory doubles made to each hundred hands is much less than in Auction Bridge, and I believe this is an evidence of sound and proper conservatism.

Contract Bridge will be continued on Friday and Saturday of next week.

BEAUTY AND YOU
BY VIOLA PARIS

SOME QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

DEAR Viola Paris—Is there anything I can do to reduce my hands? I am always conscious of them and looking for a place to hide them, they seem so large.

Mrs. L. C.

Answer—If the size of your hands is due entirely to their bony structure, the answer is that there is nothing you can do except to keep the nails perfectly manicured and the skin in the very best of condition. I can understand your feeling, but feel that you are making a mistake in being so sensitive.

If your hands are fleshy and nothing more than a reflection of general overweight, you can do a great deal by a reducing diet, combined with outdoor exercise. Epsom salt baths and massage will help. Once a week, soak the hands in a basin of warm water to which a tablespoonful of epsom salts has been added. Permit them to soak for about twenty minutes. Dry them carefully, and apply an astringent lotion. Massage the hands well, working from the wrists to the tip of each finger. Massage the fingers separately.

Gertrude—I advise against the use of mascara to darken your eyelashes.

Freckles—A good mild bleach for ounces of rose water, one-half dram of powdered sal ammoniac, one-half ounce of lemon juice, one-half pint of distilled water. A simpler one still may be made of one ounce of glycerine, one ounce of rose water and two drops of tincture of benzoin. freckles can be made of the following: One ounce of glycerine, two

Doubtful—The massage of the neck should consist of upward stroking movements with both the palms and the backs of the hands, followed by a brisk tapping with the fingers. Plain water or oatmeal water is sufficient for fleshy necks. Cocoa butter should be used for thin, scrawny ones.

Amy D—Rather than use depilatory or the razor to remove the dark hair on your arms, I advise bleaching the hair. You can make this blemish scarcely noticeable by sponging the hair every day with a bleach, such as peroxide. The hairs will gradually turn to a light gold and will be weakened as well.

There can not be any real need for this cosmetic at your age; and, at any age, it should be applied only by the most deft and experienced hand. I urge that you resort to the safer, simpler and slower application of petroleum jelly if you wish to encourage the growth of the lashes and to make them darker.

Bony—Exercise will develop the muscles of the back and tend to round out the lines. Following are two exercises that will help: 1. Stand erect feet slightly apart, hands on hips. Alternating arms, and with the elbows kept straight, swing them in wide circles, twisting the trunk at the same time. 2. Lie face down on a bed, low table or solid chair, with the head and shoulders projecting over the edge. Raise the head and shoulders upward and backward as far as you can. Lower the head and shoulders slowly and repeat four or five times. Increase the count as your muscles grow stronger.

WIVES OF TOMORROW
By FRANCES M'DONALD
Made-Over Husbands.

DEAR MISS McDONALD: I read your most interesting advice every day and I wonder if you will give me some very wise counsel.

I am a young married woman of 20, married two years. My husband is five years older than I. I love him dearly and I'm sure he loves me.

He is a foreigner. His family came here when he was 10 years old and he is quite Americanized, excepting a few ideas, it seems, he will never get out of his head.

Miss McDonald, why do all (or most all) foreigners think no one can do things as well or ever be as good as their own mothers?

I have tried to do every thing as he wants things done.

I have never considered myself.

I humor him in every way, even learning to cook as he has always been used to, also learning to eat the stuff which I detest, as I love American food. I am not being sorry for myself, don't think that. I don't consider myself a martyr, for I knew it would be hard when we married, but there are some things I never expected. If he gets a pain in his toes, he yells for mamma.

The least thing that happens, it's "call up mamma."

Anything he thinks I don't know, "You'd better ask mamma." Now, I am no baby and I got along before I knew his mamma, wonderfully.

She knows all our business. One day I started to tell her he had received a raise and she shut me right up. He had called her on the phone the day he got it and told her.

He asks her advice on all business affairs, never mine. I have tried to make him see I am interested in his business and discuss things with him, but he won't open his mouth about it.

It isn't jealousy, but haven't I a right to these things? Are all men babies? Do they all put their mothers above their wives?

I have a mother, too. I love and honor her but I don't run to her with every little thing that happens.

Is there anything I can do about this? This letter is much too long, isn't it?

If you can't print it all, please answer in the paper as I am sure you can set me right.

Thank you. LOREEN.

Wait a moment, dear grown-up child of 20! First thing you know you will be having some very real problems cropping up. Your troubles of married life are due to the crazy attempts of people to completely renovate, change, repair and remake the people they have married. Nancy Stay-Home marries Cecil Gadabout and tries to domesticate the poor man. He meanwhile is trying to prod her into a zest for night life. They fight it out for five years then part. And so on with all the mismates.

Now you are trying to force your nice husband to break the habit of a lifetime—that of confiding in his mother. Why should you? Why should you think it your right?

He has known his mother for 25 years, and has evidently found her judgment good, and her sympathy sure, just as your son will find yours. Now he has met and loved you because you are young, and cute, and dear and need a strong wise person to protect you from all worry.

Don't you see that it does not fit into his picture at all to run to you for help? Certainly, not. He wants to appear wise. Isn't he a husband? and aren't they all just bursting with wisdom and other awe-inspiring attributes? Certainly. So when in doubt he goes to his mother, gets advice then bolstered up he strides manfully into your presence and announces his decision!

If you want a long and happy married life, don't try to make your husband over. Take him as he is, love him as he is, or hand him over to a wiser woman.

Conduct and Common Sense

WHAT ATTRACTS BOYS?

DEAR Miss Singleton: Please tell me what attracts boys. I am not bad looking; at least, I don't think I am, but something doesn't seem to go right when I try to talk and be amusing. I can't get beyond the formal stage. I don't play games well, but I do love to dance. I want so much to have people like me, especially boys, that I thought I'd write and ask you if you could help me. I am 22 years old and rather tall.

"TROUBLED."

My dear girl, this is a difficult problem, for how can any one define charm? Some good-as-gold people have it, and some scamps also have it. I think boys are attracted, first, by good looks; second, by that unexplainable quality whose manifestations are called "keeping them guessing;" and, third, by vitality. Good looks are of all kinds, and almost everybody has a share. Some girls have fine features, some have fine complexions, some have fine hair and eyes, some fine figures, some abounding health which is a pleasant attribute in itself. Make the best of yourself. Be clean, neat and in good spirits. Don't give yourself away. Be agreeable, but not too eager. Keep a little mist of mystery about you. Take an interest in what the boy is talking about. A good listener is always attractive.

It is a pity you can't play games, but, if you dance well, it seems to me you won't lack partners. Couldn't you learn to play games? Almost everybody enjoys teaching, and I should think (if you are at all intelligent) you could make yourself attractive while learning.

If you are tall, don't be shy about it. Hold yourself well and dress carefully. There are lines in costume which will make you longer, and these you should avoid. Study this out when you buy clothes.

Try to interest yourself in a variety of subjects. This makes you more interesting to people.

HOW TO KEEP WELL
By DR. W. A. EVANS

WEIGHT IN RELATION TO CHILD'S HEIGHT.

WHEN the height of a child reaches 45 inches his weight, according to the law of averages, is 45 pounds. This assumes that the boy or girl is barefooted when the height is measured, and naked, or approximately so, when weighed; and that he is about average in build and size of bones. This height and weight is reached at 6 years of age, roughly, or the beginning of school life. To put it another way, at time of starting to school, each inch of stature should have an average weight of 1 pound. Were these proportions to keep up all during life no scales would be required. Measures could be taken with a tape line and weight could be calculated. But it is not so.

At birth the baby averages 20 inches long and weighs 8 pounds or thereabouts. It takes 2½ inches of baby to weigh a pound. Plainly, a baby is like a piece of cork, or pith, or foam.

At 1 year of age the figures are: 28 inches and 20 pounds. Each inch weighs five-sevenths of a pound. Some of the sap is evaporating and the twig is getting firmer, if it is permissible to change the figure.

At 2 years the figures are: 32 inches and 24 pounds. Each inch weighs twenty-four thirty-seconds of a pound, or three-quarters of a pound to the inch. At 3 they are: 35 and 30, or a little less than six-sevenths of a pound to the inch.

After about 6 years and 45 inches the weight in pounds exceeds the height in inches. At about 8 years the height is 48 inches and the weight 52½ pounds, or one and one-tenth pounds to the inch. Plainly, the child is becoming stockier, harder, firmer, and less pulpy.

At 50 inches height the expected weight is about 58 pounds.

At 60 inches it is 9[illegible] pounds. The child 5 feet tall weighs more than 1½ pounds to the inch. At 65 inches the expected weight is 125 pounds. This is 1 8-10 pounds to the inch. At 70 inches the expected weight is 140 pounds.

All of these are measurements of children and adolescents. Older people are heavier for their inches. For instance, a normal average person 30 years old and measuring 70 inches net should weigh more than 140 pounds. He is dryer and his meat firmer. It will be noted that the range is [illegible] two-fifths of a pound to the inch at birth and length 20 inches, to 2 pounds to the inch at somewhere about 17 years of age and 70 inches in length or height. Much of this difference is due to differences in the rate of growth of different parts of the body at different ages.

There is one age at which the head grows rapidly; another age of rapid growth of the legs, and another for the body. The relative contributions of these has much to do with weight for height. One weight for height is normal for a long-legged boy and another for a duck-legged youngster.

The differences in one account for much of it. Babies have cartilages where older children have hard bones. Difference in the pulpiness of the tissues account for the balance of the differences in height, weight.

HOW SHE CURED ECZEMA.

Mrs. A. C. M. writes: This is written for that ill-fated legion, eczema sufferers. I was, so they tell me, born with it. At least I know that ever since I can remember I have suffered from it. By accident I found that a glass of buttermilk a day warded off any severe attacks. I began to drink the buttermilk for another reason and found that it prevented my having severe attacks of eczema. I drink it first thing in the morning.

REPLY.

Scores of different disorders go by the name eczema. If buttermilk cured you it does not follow that it will cure the next person who tries it.

Many of the troubles called eczema are caused by exposure of the skin to something which poisons it. Some of them are caused by the diet. You may belong in the last group.

JUST FOLKS

A GOLFER SENDS FOR THE DOCTOR.

The doctor came to my troubled bed
And he felt my pulse and he felt my head,
And he heard me moan and he heard me sigh,
And I thought every minute he'd see me die.
He heard me sneeze and he heard me cough
But all that he said was: "How's your golf?"

My cheeks were flushed and my eyes were red,
My pillow felt like a chunk of lead,
My lips were dry and my hands were hot
And I tossed in pain on my little cot,
But the doctor looked at my tortured frame
And all that he asked was: "How's your game?"

The doctor smiled as he heard me moan,
The doctor grinned at my saddest tone,
He nodded his head as I winced in pain,
And he said: "You'll soon be well again,
Just take these pills and stay in bed,
Now let's talk golf for awhile instead."

Said I to him with my fiercest look:
"I didn't want you to cure my hook.
I'm a very sick man, and it isn't nice,
I didn't want you to cure my slice.
It's not for my game that I pay your fee,
I'll cure my golf if you'll cure me."

DEAR CLARIBEL: It has been so warm here that nearly every one has discarded their small hats in favor of large ones. You can imagine how delighted I am, as they are so very much more becoming to me than the smaller models.

I am sending you sketches of three of my large hats, the one shown at the top is a Rose Descat model and is made of bangkok straw with the brim pleated and pressed in front. It is trimmed with blue and green grosgrain ribbon. The middle sketch is a Suzanne Talbot hat—a very large black straw shape. The brim is lined with cire satin to which the straw is stitched. The hat is trimmed with a band of "paille de Italie" and fastens in front with a buckle of black onyx. It is really very lovely, and I call it my best hat. The lower sketch shows another Suzanne Talbot hat, a most attractive model. It is made of petals of pink carnations and straw. The crown is of the silk carnation petals, and some of them are placed under the brim. The brim matches the darkest tone of pink in the carnations. Every one likes this hat tremendously. I wear it with a plain white crepe de chine frock from Vionnet.

With love, EVE.

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk.

THERE is a poet who wrote: "What is so rare as a day in June!"

Now we are in the month of June which so many people love. It was named by the ancient Romans in honor of the goddess whom they called "Juno."

Juno was supposed to be the wife of Jupiter. She was powerful, but she was not supposed to be very kindly. The Romans said she was jealous and hated all rivals. In view of that fact, do you think she deserved to have such a lovely month named after her?

In June there is many a boy who gets out the old fishing pole and tries his luck on lake or creek. Girls also go fishing now and then, but not nearly so often as boys.

There are still wild flowers in the woods which may be picked. Of course, a person should never pick a flower in a public park. That would keep many others from the joy of seeing the blossom.

Out in woods where few persons go, I see no harm in picking some of the flowers; but in that case be sure not to pick all there are in sight. Some blooms should be left so that they can go to seed and provide flowers for the next season.

We are now living in one of the best times in the year to watch birds and furry animals and other creatures which Nature places before us. Do you expect to increase your knowledge a good deal this summer?

During the summer I plan to give you stories about birds and insects. Besides reading the articles, I hope you will watch the creatures of which I speak—the butterflies, the dragonflies, the brown thrashers, the sparrows, and so on.

By the middle of July I expect to have quite a surprise for you—in the shape of letters from Europe.

Your Pal,

Uncle Ray

Miss Matsudaira Departs To Become Bride of Prince

200 Friends, Including State Officials, Bid Farewell at Station—Presented With Roses; Daughter Very Happy Here, Japanese Ambassador Says.

(Associated Press.)

Miss Setsu Matsudaira, daughter of the Japanese Ambassador, left here yesterday on her long journey to Japan, where she will become the bride in the fall of Prince Chichibu, heir to the Japanese imperial throne.

An informal reception was held in the concourse of the Union Station in which 200 friends of Miss Matsudaira, who will be accompanied by her father and mother, joined to bid her farewell. The United States Government was officially represented by Assistant Secretary of State Nelson T. Johnson and Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, chief of the State Department's Division of Far Eastern Affairs.

Before her departure the Ambassador said his daughter would carry back to Japan treasured memories of America that will influence her whole life. He declared that he spoke for his daughter, not so much because of any rule of Japanese imperial etiquette, but in deference to the Japanese custom of keeping young girls strictly within the seclusion of the home and away from all public appearance.

"Although the life of the imperial household is more restricted than that of the White House," the Ambassador said, "my daughter will continue her contact with foreigners through the diplomatic circle in Tokyo and will often have occasion to use the English and French she has learned here. She has been very happy in her three years of school here."

At the reception in the station, Miss Matsudaira was presented with a bouquet of roses by her schoolmates and quite contrary to the oriental custom she embraced four of them before her departure.

The future princess probably will discard Western dress, the Ambassador declared, for the vivid kimonos of her countrywomen when she reaches home, but after her marriage she undoubtedly will always wear upon public appearances gowns of American or European design, since that is the custom of the imperial household.

The wedding, which will be held in late September or the beginning of October, contrary to Western custom, he said, will be staged with utmost privacy within the palace at Tokyo before the shrine of the emperor's ancestors instead of a public ceremony. There is an elaborate ritual for weddings in the imperial family, he added, which is quite different from other Japanese marriages, but the ceremony is quite short and not marked by any visit to religious temples. After the ceremony it is customary to have an official luncheon or reception.

The party, which also includes Miss Matsudaira's younger sister and brother, will spend the greater part of today in Chicago before leaving in the evening for San Francisco. There they will board the steamship Shinyu Maru, which sails for Yokohoma on June 6.

American in Mexico Slain for Revenge

Mexico City, June 1 (A.P.).—The body of Howard C. Smith, foreman of the Santa Gertrudis mine, who was murdered Wednesday near Pachuca, was sent to Denver, Colo., today for burial. Officials who are investigating the murder attribute it to a "piece of bitter revenge by some enemy."

Dispatches from Pachuca today said that two men had been arrested in connection with the murder. The governor of the State of Hidalgo issued special instructions to the authorities to exert every effort to discover the perpetrators of the crime.

Parents and 6 Children Die in Burning Home

Covert, Kans., June 1 (A.P.).—Alfred Kaser, his wife and their six children were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the Kaser farm home, 2½ miles northeast of here, last night.

When discovered by neighbors the fire was past control. The charred bodies of the eight victims were recovered from the ruins. Origin of the fire was not determined.

MODISH MITZI — Mitzi Forgets One Thing. — By Jay V. Jay

Mitzi is going away for the week-end. Notice, please, the new and spacious traveling box she uses. It has room for six dresses, two hats, shoes, lingerie, hosiery and other things. This is just one time Mitzi decides that she will pack everything she needs.

She'll take a twisted turban because it is easy to pack and she can wear it daytime or evening. She has decided to wear an ensemble—a black kasha coat with a red and white printed dotted dress. The hat to accompany this has a fairly wide brim turned up at the side.

She won't fail to pack her handkerchiefs because she has just acquired some new butterfly ones. She chooses only those in colors that will match her costumes. Funny how much butterflies are being used on things nowadays. Butterflies of velvet take the place of shoulder flowers.

"I've packed everything, Dad," says Mitzi. "Are you sure, Mitzi?" says Dad, not doubting his daughter's word but skeptical from experience. "Everything!" she replies. "Everything but your ticket," says Dad producing it. Dad knows there's nothing he can do about it, Mitzi's incurable.

SOME STOCKS RECOVER SHARPLY IN FINAL HOUR

Sudden Tightening of Funds Checks Early Upswing; Few Shares Lag On.

MOTOR GROUP IS "MIXED"

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, June 1. — Stocks went ahead in impressive fashion for a time today under the leadership of Radio, Montgomery Ward, Consolidated Gas, Nickel and a few others; then trouble came unexpectedly in the form of a 6½ per cent call money rate. Funds were in moderate supply at the renewal rate of 6 per cent, despite the calling of about $20,000,000 in loans, but at about 2:30 the change came and stocks at once began to sell off, and it required only a few minutes to carry some of the most active issues down from 2 to 5 points.

The retreat was halted before the close, however, and some of the issues which had yielded most readily to the sudden selling led a vigorous recovery. A number of stocks went to new highs for the year or more on this movement, and, on the whole, closing prices were not far from the day's tops. Some stocks were weak all day, however, and others lagged, so that at the close there was a rather long list in the minus column. Net gains outnumbered these by about 3 to 1 and extended to 14½ points. The turnover approximated 3,600,000 shares.

The higher rate for call money probably was due to the fact that the member banks had allowed their resources to dwindle so far that they had to replenish them heavily today. The month-end demands, of course, were a factor, but presumably they were not as strong today as they were yesterday.

It was not only the call money market, moreover, that stiffened today. Time loans, which were available yesterday at 5½ per cent for all maturities, today were placed in some instances at 5⅞ per cent. No one in speculative circles seemed particularly interested in the latest brokerage loan which showed an increase in excess of $13,000,000.

Bullish traders were cheered during the day by a published interview with W. C. Durant, just returned from Europe, in which he predicted that the biggest bull market was yet to come, and was of the opinion that the next two to three months would see "a bigger bull market than ever before." Cheap money will prevail, he said, and added, "the current tendency of tightening money rates is more an attempt to discourage speculation than registering any change in fundamental soundness of industry."

Both Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck reported record breaking sales for last month, thus accounting for the remarkable strength of those issues since the beginning of the week. The latter today reached a new price level.

Wright Airplane advanced to a new high at 182, then fell back, to close at 179, a net gain of 14¾ while Curtiss was quiet and finished a fraction loser. Radio climbed into new high ground at 223, and closed at 220, a net advance of 6½ points. United States Cast Iron Pipe preferred established a new peak price level at 273, a gain of 25½ points net, as the common stock moved up for a net gain of 7½ points. Case Threshing was given another boost into new high territory, touching 324 and closing at 321½ for a net gain of 6½.

International Nickel was twirled to a new top at 103, closing up 7⅝ net.

Other issues to score new peaks for the year or more included Burns Brothers A and B, New York State Railways common and preferred, Briggs Manufacturing, Eaton Axle, American Safety Razor, Otis Steel, Havana Electric Railway, American Agricultural Chemical preferred, Fox Film, Atlas Tack, Pierce-Arrow preferred, Armour & Co. preferred, Warner Quinlan, Martin-Parry, American Beet Sugar preferred, Gulf States Steel, Kroger Grocery, White Motor, Murray Corporation, Motor Wheel, Packard Motor, Consolidated Railway of Cuba preferred, Detroit Edison, American Ice, Thompson, Household Products, Manhattan Electric Supply, First National Stores, Glidden prior preferred, Texas and Pacific, Kresge, Bayuk Cigar second preferred and others.

The good news being out regarding the New York Central melon splitting, that stock sold off today, closing with a net drop of 1½ points. Most of the other carrier stocks moved quietly within a narrow range. Trading in leading stocks like General Motors, United States Steel, American Can, American Smelting and Atchison was comparatively light with price changes on the day of merely fractional character.

Motor shares were mixed in their response to the showing of May production figures of a number of the popular independent producers, which, as a rule, indicated new records for the month had been set. Hupp, Hudson, Graham-Paige, Packard and Reo, which were among those whose figures were made public, all showed new records for May shipments. Hupp, Packard and Graham-Paige were well bought at times, and the first-named held 3½ points of its advance, but there was a strong disposition to take profits in the group as a whole and Packard, along with the Dodge issues, Chrysler, Nash, Peerless, Jordan and most of the rest.

The market for European exchanges continued firm to strong, with sterling again in strong demand, $4.88⅜, being steadily bid for cables in large blocks. Dutch and Danish rates reached new highs for the year, each with a point gain, the latter going that much above the Swedish. German marks rose one-half and belgas yielded a like fraction. Yen improved slightly again and Chinese rates advanced further, though moderately. The Uruguayan peso dipped 25 points. Canadian exchange 3 points further, to 99.80.

A plan of recapitalization for the Sparks-Withington Co., has been approved by stockholders, which includes refunding of $184,300 of 7 per cent preferred stock, issuance of $1,000,000 of 6 per cent cumulative preferred and an increase in authorized common stock from 200,000 shares to 400,000.

Contrary to the usual seasonal trend, R. G. Dun & Co. reports an increase to 2,008 commercial failures in the United States in May which contrasts with a sizable reduction in April when defaults fell to 1,818 and touched the lowest point since last October. Figures for May are 10½ per cent above the April total and 8½ per cent more than in May last year.

Celanese Corporation of America is opening a new unit of its plant at Amcelia, near Cumberland, Md., this week which will increase annual capacity from 3,000,000 to 6,000,000 pounds.

Deposits of Brooklyn Edison Co. stock in the merger with Consolidated Gas Co. are being made rapidly, about 300,000 shares having been turned in. Several large blocks are expected to be deposited soon, these being holding of corporations which require approval of directorates.

R. P. Stevens and W. L. Wilkie have been elected directors of Northern Ohio Power, succeeding D. C. Weadock and E. W. Moore.

Stockholders of Standard National Corporation have approved an increase in common capital stock from 2,500 shares to 50,000, no par, by issuing 22,500 shares to common stockholders of record May 21, nine new shares for each one held and sale of 25,000 no par common shares at $35 a share to preferred and common stockholders of record June 2.

For the sixth consecutive week, Cooper has sold in a large way, although demand appeared less current in the last day or two, says Engineering & Mining Journal. Good business has been placed at 14.75 cents a pound, Connecticut, and at 14.87½ cents, Middle West. July shipments predominated. Consumers have been active buyers of lead, and producers have made a general advance in their prices on two occasions the last week. The deadlock in zinc buying continues.

P. M. Speer was elected a vice president of the Standard Oil Co. of New York at the annual meeting. H. L. Pratt, chairman of the board; C. F. Meyer, president, and other officers were reelected.

A growing demand for American automobiles in European countries as their economic condition improves was predicted today by President W. C. Durant, of the Durant Motor Car Co., on his arrival aboard the Berengaria.

He spent five weeks abroad studying industrial and general business conditions. Commenting on news of the Chrysler-Dodge merger, which had reached him by wireless, he said:

"I am not going into any merger, I am satisfied with things as they are."

Oil City, Pa., June 1 (A.P.).—Credit balance, 2.65; runs, 84,195; average runs, 84,195; shipments, 93,751; average shipments, 93,751.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—Early declines were followed by recoveries in the cotton market today, October selling up from 20.58 to 20.74 and closing at 20.73, compared with 20.63 at the close the previous day. The general market closed steady, at unchanged prices to a net advance of 6 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 4 to 8 points and soon showed net losses of 14 to 18 points under liquidation, combined with southwestern and local selling, evidently inspired by more favorable crop reports from Texas and a favorable view of the weather news.

Some trade buying at the decline appeared to come partly from the continent, and after selling off to 20.38 for July and 20.35 for December, prices steadied on covering, trading was quiet later, but offerings were comparatively light and prices worked steadily upward, July advancing to 20.56 and December to 20.57 in late trading or 1 to 6 points above yesterday's closing quotations.

July was relatively easy under liquidation and at the close was 18 points under October, compared with a difference of 13 points at the close of the previous day.

A private report placed the increase in acreage at 8 per cent and the condition at 70 per cent, but while these acreage figures were above most of the recent private reports, they appeared to be without effect on the immediate market. No fresh news factor was mentioned as particularly responsible for the afternoon advance, which local brokers attributed to a firmer technical position and comparative scarcity of contracts after early offerings had been absorbed.

The week-end statistics were about as expected, showing a decrease in the world's visible supply of American cotton of 142,547 bales, compared with a decrease of 116,025 the previous week, and 180,266 last year.

Owing to the Whitsuntide holidays, the Liverpool market was closed and will remain closed over the week-end.

LOUGHRAN RALLIES TO DEFEAT LATZO IN 15 ROUNDS

Japanese Net Team Bows To U. S.

Tilden Toys With Abe, Hennessey Routs Ohta in Singles.

Can Clinch American Zone Title Today in Doubles.

CHICAGO, June 1 (A.P.).—Wind, dust and Japanese agility failed to halt Capt. "Big Bill" Tilden, of Philadelphia, and Johnny Hennessey, of Indianapolis, today, and they brought the United States a step closer to the coveted Davis Cup, emblematic of international tennis supremacy.

Opening the American zone finals, which determines the team to meet the European zone winners for the right to challenge France for the Davis trophy, Tilden and Hennessey crushed the Japanese stars, Tanaio Abe and Yoshero Ohta, in straight sets in the singles.

Tilden defeated the youthful Abe, 6—2 6—3, and 6—0 without extending himself, while Hennessey downed Ohta, 8—6, 6—3 and 6—3. The doubles victories virtually insured the American team of entering the semifinals in Europe. They have to win but one of the three remaining matches, one double and two singles, to clinch the final zone victory.

Today's matches were played on the courts of the Chicago Town and Tennis Club. A heavy wind, kicking up dust, bothered the players as it swept across the courts.

Only once in the two matches did Japan threaten—that was in the first set of the Hennessey-Ohta duel. The Japanese act started out by winning three straight games, but Hennessey tightened and finally took the set, 8—6 or 48 to 43 points.

From that time on he adopted Tilden's leisurely style and won almost as he pleased. Double faults were disastrous for Ohta in his first two sets. He made five in the first and four in the second, all coming at critical times when errors meant games.

Only three aces were registered in the two matches, Tilden getting two and Ohta one.

Harris Relying on Pitchers As Nats Open Tour Today

New-Found Strength Is Ray of Hope for Harris—Zachary Likely to Oppose Browns in First Game.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

ST. Louis, Mo., June 1.—The Nationals stepped off the train here late this afternoon awaiting the morrow and the start of their sixteen-game campaign in the West which will find them battling the Browns, White Sox, Indians and Tigers in succession from the doubtful vantage point of last place in the standings which is theirs by virtue of 14 victories and 26 defeats in the first 40 games of the season.

Horace Greely may have foreseen the developments in the American League this season when he advised young America to go West, for the East these days is no haven for ambitious young ball players unless they are fortunate enough to be associated with the New York Yankees, Philadelphia Athletics and, yes, the Boston Red Sox.

The West, with the Browns, White sox, Tigers and Indians, playing in the American League, is the land of opportunity for young ball clubs wishing to enhance their prestige and winning percentage this season. Wallowing in the cellar as a result of their games in the East, the Nationals could do worse than come West, and here they are with hope eternal and nothing to lose.

With his new-found pitching strength in the persons of Hadley, Braxton, Zachary and Jones, Manager Harris foresees a triumphant tour of the West for the Nationals. Although the Nats lost three games of the four with the Browns in Washington, Harris' team has been performing in much better style since those pitiful days when good pitching was a rarity and the make-up of the team uncertain from one day to the next.

Tom Zachary is likely to be nominated for pitching duty against his former mates tomorrow in the first contest of the series. In his last performance Zachary shut out the rejuvenated Red Sox with four hits and gave every indication of return to his best form which is sufficient to beat the Browns tomorrow without difficulty.

It is in the matter of reserve strength that the Nats are woefully weak. With the departure of Sisler and Gillis, Manager Harris, who is still nursing a sore finger, is the only infielder available for utility work and should accident befall Judge the Nats would truly be up against it. Dick Spalding and Sammy West are available for outfield duty but neither has been a great help to the team thus far.

The Browns have been performing indifferently but have managed to stay in the first division with an average of less than .500. They are only five games removed from the Nats, however, and their perch among the select is at least precarious.

If the Nats have found their true level in last place, which theory is little short of ridiculous, they face some strenuous opposition in the games on this tour but despite the club's percentage of victories and defeats, it is believed that it will improve its standing at the expense of the Western clubs.

After the Browns, the Nats tackle the White Sox who at present are one-half a game out of last place. Failure to receive the pitching expected from Lyons, Blankenship, Faber and Connolly has wreaked havoc with the Sox and they are by no means as formidable as the Nats' Eastern rivals.

Ed Kenna, the catcher obtained from Minneapolis in the deal which sent Gillis and Van Alstyne to the Millers, was to join the team tomorrow and it would not be surprising if he was inducted into action forthwith. Both Tate and Ruel could be improved upon and if Kenna lives up to advance notices he may see service immediately.

Tigers Solve Uhle, Sweep Tribe Series

Cleveland, Ohio, June 1 (A.P.).—The Detroit Tigers made a clean sweep of the series with Cleveland by beating the Indians today, 5 to 4. They got to Uhle for three runs in the first inning, and their lead was never threatened until the seventh, when Cleveland filled the bases with no one out. Another walk forced in a run, and Stoner relieved Billings. He retired the next three men, but Cleveland scored again on a sacrifice.

Langford, Cleveland's rookie center fielder, hit his fourth home run of the season in the sixth with the bases empty.

Critz's Homer in 10th Deals Braves Defeat

Boston, Mass., June 1 (A.P.).—Hugh Critz's home run into the new center-field bleachers in the tenth inning today enabled the Cincinnati Reds to nose out the Boston Braves, 7 to 6. It was the first home appearance of Rogers Hornsby as manager and of George Sisler as a National League player. The Rajah got one hit and Sisler three.

The homers by Val Picinich and Ray Kolp, the Cincinnati battery, enabled the Reds to gain a deadlock in nine innings and win out in the tenth. Boston used five pitchers and Cincinnati three. Dressen and Ford turned in fancy fielding.

PAYNE IS PAID; 26-HOUR RACE UNDER WAY

Pyle's Bunion Derby Winners Rewarded, Open New Grind.

NEW YORK, June 1 (A.P.).—C. C. Pyle, promoter, tonight divided the pot of gold among the ten prize winners in his now historic Los Angeles to New York footrace. The awards, in the form of certified bank drafts, were distributed by Tex Rickard just before the start of Pyle's 26-hour team running race at Madison Square Garden.

First prize of $25,000 went to Andrew Payne, of Claremore, Okla., amid appropriate ceremonies, which included photographing of the winner with Promotor Pyle and Pyle's check book. John Salo, of Passaic, N. J., received a draft for $10,000 for finishing second.

Third prize money of $5,000 went to Philip Granville, of Hamilton, Ontario; $2,500 to Mike Joyce, of Cleveland, for finishing fourth.

Six other prizes of $1,000 each were given Giusto Umek, of Trieste, Italy; William Kerr, of Minneapolis; Louis Perrella, of Albany, N. Y.; Ed Gardner, of Seattle, Wash.; Frank Von Flue, of Kerman, Calif., and John Cronick, of Saskatoon.

In addition to his $1,000 draft, Gardner, the West Coast negro, received a large bouquet of pink and white flowers from some of his Harlem admirers.

Pyle, promoter extraordinary of almost anything, launched another innovation tonight. The 26-hour race is conducted along the same lines as the six-day bicycle races, with teams of two men relieving each other at intervals.

Promptly at 9 o'clock 21 strong-legged and tough-footed runners lined up for the starting gun which sent them off on a trek which will not end until 11 o'clock tomorrow night, while their partners rested on two rows of cots on the floor. Only a scant array of spectators were scattered through the wide expanses of the Garden when the race got under way, scarcely outnumbering the crowd of contestants, trainers and officials gathered in space surrounded by the track.

Barnes Regains Fourth Place in Hitting List

Emile Barnes, Washington's sorrel-thatched outfielder, moved into fourth place among the league's leading five hitters yesterday, although the Nationals idled. Lou Fonseca, Cleveland's first baseman, dropped below the local youth when he was credited with but one hit in four times up. As he was the only player of the big five in action, Goslin, Kress and Ruth continued in the first three places.

Rogers Hornsby continued to top the National League but lost some ground when his one hit dropped his average 1 point. The only other changes in this circuit was that of Ott and Douthit switching third and fourth places. Grantham is still second, while Paul Waner brings up the rear.

Des Moines' 9 Errors Helpful to White Sox

EASTERN HIGH SCHOOL'S baseball team hurdled its last obstacle yesterday, defeating Central, 2-1, to win the interhigh school title with a record of four victories and no defeats. By winning Eastern averted a tie with Tech, which finished second with three wins and one defeat.

Andrew Oehmann, tall right hander, who has been nigh invincible in each of the three preceding games, was in perfect form again yesterday. He was opposed in a pitcher's duel by Sam Ross, of the Central Team, Oehmann allowing five scattered hits and Ross six.

Sam Hook and Cody Shapiro, two of the smallest members of the Eastern High Team, shared in the honors of the day with Oehmann. Two sharp singles from their bats in the fifth batted in the winning runs.

The anxiety of the Eastern rooters was greatly relieved when the team scored in the fifth inning, for the two respective pitchers had the batters eating out of their hands in the early innings, neither team threatening.

A base on balls to Munro, the only pass Ross issued during the entire game, paved the way for Eastern's runs. Oehmann laid down a neat sacrifice to advance him to second, and on Shapiro's single Munro ran all the way from second base to slide into home plate ahead of the throw. A minute later Shapiro stole second base, where he was in position to score on Hook's hit.

Eastern threatened only mildly in the last three innings, Ware being left stranded on second base in the sixth, while in the seventh Oehmann was trapped between first and second when he singled, and Yingling was thrown out attempting to stretch it. A double play in Eastern's last turn at bat nipped whatever offensive drive Eastern had in mind.

After threatening in the fifth inning, by putting two men on base only to have Brandt cut at third when he attempted to advance on a wild throw, Central stepped out in the sixth to score its only run. Shriver singled, advanced to second on a base on balls to Ault and scored on Fisher's hit to left field.

In the last three innings Central got to Oehmann for only one hit, that coming in the seventh frame. The game was one of the fastest played of the entire series.

RETAINS LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

TOMMY LOUGHRAN.

The Fight Round-by-Round

(Associated Press.)

FIRST ROUND—Latzo drove into the champion, but Tommy tied him up and clipped a left and right uppercut into Latzo's head. Pete bored in with two looping lefts to the side of Loughran's head. The challenger piled in continually, but Loughran stabbed him with long lefts, hooked him with short rights and tied Pete up effectively in the clinches. Both fought carefully and were content to measure the prowess of each other. Round ended with a flurry in the center of the ring.

ROUND FOUR—The battle of left hands continued with neither doing damage as the gloves popped in and out at long range. Latzo switched to an overhand right that dusted the champion's chin, but Tommy drove right back to even matters with a short, prodding attack on the body. Tommy took to the right, clipping Pete twice in the chin. The miner went wild at the blows and poured all over the champion with both hands flying wildly into Tommy's protecting arms. Pete managed to drum on Loughran's head with a left and right hook just before the gong.

ROUND FIVE—Loughran's left worked briskly on Latzo's features as the champion boxed the Scranton boy carefully. Pete crowded Loughran into a clinch and smashed both hands into Tommy's head. Blood came from a gash in the champion's chin. Latzo's left dug in Loughran's body. Pete crowded the champion to the ropes and drew blood from Tommy's lips with three solid left hooks. A right and left to the head, wild overhand swings, shook Loughran at the bell.

ROUND SIX—Tommy was more careful than ever as Latzo trailed his light heavy weight majesty with utter disdain and threw another volley of swings into Loughran's head. The barrage opened a cut over Loughran's left eye. Heartened by Loughran's red visage, Latzo piled into him furiously smashing him about the head on the ropes and hooked Tommy with two overhand rights when they landed again in midring. Latzo's looping left hand swooped again around Loughran's guard to the head, while Pete bounced a solid right to the ribs. Loughran nailed the challenger with two right uppercuts as he backed off the ropes just before the bell.

ROUND SEVEN—Loughran was obviously puzzled as Latzo fired looping hooks from all directions. Tommy settled seriously into his work, stabbing and hooking lefts to the challenger's head as Pete came in willingly to take them and slugged away at Loughran's head and body. Tommy lost his temper when Latzo apologized for a low blow and they smashed at each others heads with wild, free swing attacks in the center of the ring. Loughran nailed the challenger with a hard right to the chin as Pete lost some of his control. Tommy piled up his advantage, hitting Latzo cleanly with right uppercuts until the bell sent them to their corners.

ROUND EIGHT—The battle was one of left hooks again and Pete sent the champion flying across the ring with a smash full on the mouth. Latzo hurt the title holder with two stiff rights to the head and swapped lefts freely with him in the middle of the ring. Latzo worried Tommy in a clinch as both hands plied to the body, but the champion smashed his left and right cleanly to Pete's head as they broke away. Rushing and bobbing, swinging punches from all angles, Latzo drove the champion across the ring and into his own corner at the bell.

ROUND TEN—Tommy's left was a busy weapon as Pete stormed into him and poured leather in a constant stream at the champion. Pete chinned himself on a blazing right uppercut and slowed down again as Tommy slashed his ribs. Three overhand rights broke through Loughran's guard as Latzo pinned him on the ropes. Tommy seemed to lose his effectiveness with his back to the plush-covered hemp. Loughran worked back to the center and stabbed Latzo steadily with his left until the gong rang.

ROUND ELEVEN — Tommy speared the challenger with a stream of lefts as Pete bobbed in to cuff at the body. Latzo stung the Philadelphian with a right to the heart and chased Tommy into the ropes. Loughran forced the challenger to hold as he smashed Latzo about the body, meeting him on better than even terms at his own game. Latzo rallied and hammered Loughran on his favorite ropes again at the bell.

ROUND TWELVE—Latzo tore in with three left hooks to the body, but Loughran drove him to cover with a short right uppercut. Pete hurt the champion with a wild overhand right to the jaw. Tommy held for a moment and then belted both hands into Latzo's body. Latzo missed frequently or floundered his gloves on Loughran's elbows, blocking him. Loughran drove an overhand right a dozen times to Latzo's right kidney and Pete slowed under the attack. Loughran switched to a right uppercut as a red blotch grew on Latzo's side. Pete was tired at the bell.

Pirates Pound Blake To Win From Cubs

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 1 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates batted hard behind Grimes' clever pitching today to take the measure of the Chicago Cubs, 10 to 4. Blake, after winning five in a row for the Bruins, lost his first game of the year. Blake was relieved by Carlson in the fourth and Holly finished after Kelly batted for Carlson in the fifth.

Ott's Single in 7th Brings Giants Victory

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—Larry Benton, Giant pitching ace, turned in another fine game here today, and New York shaded Brooklyn, 4 to 3, in the opening engagement of a two-game series. Benton's victory was his eighth in ten starts, all of which were complete games. "Jumbo Jim" Elliott, the big Brooklyn southpaw, also pitched well, but the Giants pecked away at him when hits meant runs. Brooklyn outhit the home team, 10 to 9. The game was won in the seventh on O'Farrell's second single, Benton's sacrifice and Ott's single.

Title Is Saved By Boxing Tactics

Swirling Attack of Challenger Piles Up Early Lead.

Champ Dances Away Near End, Cuffing Foe at Will.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

EBBETTS FIELD, Brooklyn, June 1. Tommy Loughran, cagey old ring general, tonight warded off the wildest thrusts of Pete Latzo, once a champion himself in the welterweight realm, to hold tight to the light heavyweight crown he must defend twice more this summer.

The Scranton coal miner might have won the championship of the 175 pounders if his swirling attack and long overhand swings had been confined into a space of 10 rounds. But against the Philadelphia ringmaster, rating the pace cleverly and saving his greatest efforts for the final rounds, Pete had little chance.

Even so, it was a final display of class and all-round ringmanship through the last five rounds, a final solving of the avenues that led to Latzo's iron chin and pudgy body, that brought Loughran home the winner, ready for Jimmy Slattery's brilliant attack on June 21 at the Polo Grounds. Pete could not meet the pace of those final rounds and the shade he earned through the first ten sessions faded into semblance of a rout.

The Associated Press score sheet gave eight rounds to Loughran, five of them in a straight march to the final gong, while Pete earned four of the first ten and held the clean-cut champion even in three others.

Not until the closing rounds did Loughran discover that he must keep away from plush-covered rope boundaries of the ring to save the title. Then the all-round class of the champion took effect. Latzo's wild swings to the head and body slipped by where the leg room was ample in the center of the ring and Tommy cuffed the challenger into a tired but dogged plunger at the final bell.

The story was different in the early sessions. Loughran fell often into Latzo's trap and tried to fight the rugged challenger, who grew from the welterweights to the 175-pound class without even a stopover among the middleweights, wherever he found him. Latzo smashed him heartily on the ropes, caught Tommy with lopping smashes to the head and ribs and several times had the champion holding in temporary distress.

The show brought about 18,000 of the faithful to Ebbets Field, home of the Brooklyn National League Ball Club, despite one postponement of the fight from last Wednesday. Loughran scaled in at 173¾ pounds, while Latzo weighed 168.

Slattery Bout June 21 Next Test for Loughran

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission today solved the tangle between rival New York promoters over the services of Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight champion, by requiring him to defend his title three times this summer, twice for Humbert J. Fugazy and once for Tex Rickard.

The commission ruled that the Pete Latzo-Loughran fight tonight should be his first appearance for Fugazy and that he should fight with Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, under the direction of Tex Rickard June 21.

The Slattery-Loughran bout was approved contingent upon the posting of a $5,000 forfeit each by Loughran and Slattery, guaranteeing that the winner will box Leo Lomski for Fugazy on a date this summer to be decided upon some time before June 21.

The boxing solons received from Tex Rickard an official announcement that the Tunney-Heeney heavyweight championship fight will be held in New York. The date and exact place of the bout will be made known at the commission's meeting next Thursday.

It is understood that the fight will be held July 26 at the Yankee Stadium.

Ziegler Colt Assumes Long Lead, Draws Away at End.

King Basil, Ambrose Up, Wins by Head at Louisville.

BELMONT PARK RACE TRACK, June 1 (A.P.).—William Ziegler's Polydor, ridden by Mack Garner, scored an impressive victory in the Swift Stakes, which featured the card here today. It was a 7-furlong sprint, and he carried 121 pounds, made all the pace, and ran the distance in 1:25 3-5. Mowlee was second and Propus third.

Polydor, displaying unusual speed and staying power quickly ran into a long lead. At the top of the stretch every one expected to see him stop, but, to their surprise, he actually drew away, to win by two lengths. Mowlee was second by four lengths from Propus.

The winner paid 6 to 1, and Mowlee was a 4-to-5 favorite. The race was worth $4,450.

Louisville, Ky., June 1 (A.P.).—King Basil, with Eddie Ambrose in the saddle, accounted for the Taylorsville Purse, valued at $1,400, over the 6-furlong route, the feature of this afternoon's program at Churchill Downs. Illegitimate was second and Clog Dance third. The winner ran the distance in 1:12 2-5, and paid his admirers $3.58 for each $2 ticket.

Illegitimate made the pace to the half, closely accompanied by the winner, who took command at the turn into the stretch and managed to get the decision by a head. Illegitimate was five lengths in front of Clog Dance for the place.

Two dollar mutuels paid: ISOSTASY $7.02, $4.26, $3.40; MIMI $6.46, $3.92; SOUTHLAND BOY $4.70.

ISOSTASY, much the best, raced forwardly in tight quarters first half-mile, disposed of SPOTLIGHT on stretch turn, and drew far out last eighth. MIMI, outrun in early stages, moved up strongly on stretch and although holding on gamely final drive, was no match for the winner. SOUTHLAND BOY closed big gap final quarter. OPEN GO SHUT, away well, and racing prominently first quarter, was taken back avoiding interference, but came again when clear through and finished gamely. CASSIE tired after racing to front on far turn. SMILING BETTY quit.

BOB LEE WINS TRAPSHOOT DOUBLES

Oriole Gunner Also Is Leading Singles of Title Event.

BOB LEE, of the Oriole Gun Club, Baltimore, shattering targets at will yesterday, won the State championship doubles shooting when he broke 46 out of 50 targets at the annual Maryland and District of Columbia championship State shoot, held at the Washington Gun Club on Benning road. Finishing close behind with 45 clays came R. D. Morgan to win second prize.

Bob Lee and Frank Rosebury, of the Oriole Gun Club, led the field of 80 trapshooters in the first 100 targets of the singles shoot at 16 yards when they broke 99 targets each in the championship singles firing. The final 100 targets will be shot today.

Top honors went to Steve Cruthers, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., who led the entire field with a perfect score of 100 targets, but was not eligible for the championship shoot.

F. P. Williams led the Washington group with a score of 9" breaks, closely followed by Walter Wilson, Robert Welsh and Henry Bartholomew. W. Posey and Frank Billmeyer led the Maryland contingent, and W. Luke headed the marksmen from Delaware.

The class A trophies were won by Lee and Rosebury. Class B prizes went to W. Posey and E. Tyler, jr., who won the event after a shoot-off with Billmeyer, and Luke M. Hopkins was high gun in class C, with Walter Wilson and Robert Welsh staging a shoot-off for the second prize. Both men fired two sets of 20 targets, but were still tied at the end of the two rounds. They will shoot it out tomorrow before the final championship round of 100 shots gets under way.

Class D was won by Henry Bartholomew with 96 clays, Ridgely winning second place in the elimination from Mayhew.

Fred Tomlin led the professional group with 98 breaks, while Henry Edel came second with 96 targets.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT E. COLLYER

FAIRMOUNT Derby!

Down at Collinsville—where Gen. Bruce Head—one of God's real sportsmen—has done wonders in rehabilitating the sport, we have the Fairmount Derby which carries an added value of $25,000. On the face of it one would be inclined to favor MISSTEP, the runner-up in the Kentucky Derby, with TORO next. However, and as promised, I am going to dig down deep into the old vat and slip you SOLACE, the Seagram trick, shipped all the way from Toronto, to give the boys a real treat. The race of this one in the Preakness was far and away superior—much better than the winner, VICTORIAN.

Put that in your doo-dee and draw long and wild.

In addition to all this I also believe that BRE'ER SOYLE will cop a kupla heats—one with McTINKL, the other with EDWARD GRAY. Relative to the latter, I look for him to hang SCOTLAND FOREVER'S hide right slam bang on the fence—just this side of the eighth pole.

BRILLIANT in the fourth is also well served. You have the answer in your lily white duke.

Down at Louisville, the "dynamiters" are fixing to mop up an armful of Uncle Samuel's negotiable grass with MANZANA. Those who witnessed the last effort of the McGill trick tell me the "weazened thing" did everything except loop the loop and skin the cat. Personally, I believe this one has a rare chance. TIRZA is good, game and consistent and can be relied upon for her usual honest effort.

PATUXANT, in the fourth, was well supported overnight, as also PANDOSTA. As a matter of fact this is the first "action" I have found on this latter animal—in quite some time. EASTER STOCKING, which showed a real keen effort last time has the call in the fifth. The entry of REVERIES GAL and ELIZABETH is almost sure of a heavy play. I believe, however, that EASTER STOCKING has a five point call.

At Aurora, the old wopsey tiger is none other than BLUE GRANITE in the day's opener. As a matter of fact, this was one of the heaviest supported horses—overnight—during this meeting. Yea, bo, this thing, dough, it do talk. More anon.

RAIN RESCUES BRUGNON IN MATCH

Hawkes Leads French Ace as International Play Is Halted.

AUTEUIL, France, June 1 (A.P.).—A violent storm, breaking over the tennis stadium here, where the international hard court championships are in progress, today saved Jacques Brugnon, of France, from imminent elimination by John B. Hawkes, of Australia, and revived hopes of an all-French semifinal round in men's singles.

The rain also halted the progress of Miss Helen Wills toward the final round in women's singles by washing out her scheduled quarter-final match with Miss Rollin Couquerque, champion of Holland. In the only match of the day to finish, Miss Kea Bouman, of Holland, outclassed Mme. Vaussard, of France, 6—0, 6—0, to reach the semifinals, where she next encounters Miss Eileen Bennett, of England.

Miss Bouman, perhaps impelled by the lowering clouds, flashed some invincible tennis in eliminating her French opponent without loss of a game.

When the downpour came the Australian, Hawkes, was leading Brugnon by scores of 6—3, 6—3, 3—6, 1—4, and the Frenchman appeared tired enough to welcome the respite. If he can check his opponent from "down under" when play is resumed, and win the match, the only surviving non-Frenchman in the running for the men's crown will be Ronald Boyd, the Argentine, and he is conceded little chance of getting by Cochet in their quarter-final match.

Should Cochet win, his semifinal opponent will be the winner of the match between Jean Borotra and Christian Boussus, while Brugnon if he eliminates Hawkes must meet Lacoste in the other semifinal. The finals in both men's and women's singles now are set for Monday.

Gonzaga Smothers Georgetown Prep, 14-0

Tommy Dunn, star hurler of the Gonzaga Nine, held Georgetown Prep hitless and runless yesterday in a five inning game which ended in Gonzaga winning easily by a 14 to 0 score.

Gonzaga made a run-away contest of it in the fifth inning by scoring nine runs knocking both McCann and Dunlap to all corners of the lot. Lynch and Pratt led the attack with a trio of hits each while Holtzman and Brew secured two each.

NAVY AND ARMY TEAMS CLASH IN 3 SPORTS TODAY

Games Mark Finish of Rivalry

Baseball and Track Teams to Meet at Annapolis.

Lacrossemen at West Point; Pact Ended by Eligibility Rift.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS Md., June 1.—The West Point Cadets and Annapolis Midshipmen will clash in three athletic contests tomorrow—baseball, field and track and lacrosse, and the program will bring to a close for a few years at least, the traditional rivalry that has existed for many years, all because of the disagreement between officials of the rival Government schools over eligibility.

Both the Middies and Cadets went through stiff workouts on the diamond this afternoon, in preparation for the battle, which will be held in the morning and the lacrosse game at West Point will have terminated before the baseball tilt comes to a close.

Navy had the field today from 2 to 3:30. After a battling session, Coach Chief Bender wound up with a snappy infield drill. Miller was back at first base, alternating with Porter. Miller chipped a bone in his finger, which makes it difficult for him to throw.

Gubbins, who has an injured thumb, also on his throwing hand, will likely catch, although Hicks seems to put more punch into the offensive. It is fairly certain that "Buck" Brandley will be sent to the mound to hurl his port-sided slants at the Cadets. Brandley has only pitched in five games, but he has shown to advantage lately.

"Doc" Wilson, Bender's other main selection, though big and husky, has had trouble locating the plate this year and also has been hit hard, but Bender may yet start him in view of the fact that Wilson breezed them by the Cadets at West Point in 1927 to give the Middies an 8-to-2 win.

Army's mound selection is also uncertain. Coach "Moose" McCormick states he has Stribling, who hurled most of last season's games in place of Timberlake, who graduated. Stribling is the likely selection, although Beauchamp, Hernlon, Cook and Evans are also primed if the occasion demands.

Although working out two hours after the middle drill, McCormick did not take his pupils through a very strenuous session. He was content to have them become accustomed to the field. There was a short batting session and an infield workout, however. The pitchers all warmed up on the side line.

Army came here without Brentnall, left fielder and star hurler. The tosser became ill with the flu, and Beynon, second baseman, is suffering from tonsilitis. If he does not play tomorrow, Smothers will cavort around the keystone sack.

Army is far ahead in the baseball series, while in lacrosse Navy has won all four games.

In track, West Point has won four of the five meetings, winning last year, 103½ to 31½. Probable batting orders:

Umpires—At plate, Sherwood R. Magee; on bases, Jack O. Sullivan, both of National League. Time, 2:30.

Colorado Trackmen Lead in School Meet

Stagg Field, Chicago, June 1 (A.P.). School boy athletes from Fort Collins, Colo., qualified heavily in the preliminaries of the twenty-fourth annual national interscholastic track and field meet on Stagg Field today and are the favorites to win the national title in the finals tomorrow. Eight hundred athletes representing 200 high schools from 24 States are in the competition.

The lads from the fringe of the Rocky Mountains, coming here with a team of 28 boys, qualified ten in six of today's events, failing to place in only four events in which trial heats were held.

The two-man negro team from Northeast High of Detroit, were the only men qualified by the last year's champions. Eugene Beatty, holder of the national scholastic low hurdles record, easily won his semifinal heat of the event in 26 seconds.

Central High of Columbus, Ohio, another favorite, placed five men in four events to rank second to the Colorado school. Moxley, who ran the quarter in 0:48.2 at the Ohio State meet, qualified in the hundred.

COLE WINNER OF "TOBAC" TOURNEY

Defeats Miller, 4 and 3, in Finals on Public Links.

CHARLES W. COLE, former public links champion, yesterday won the "Tobac" tournament on the links of East Potomac Park, when he defeated John R. Miller in the final round of the first sixteen, 4 and 3.

Cole, quick to take advantage of Miller's poor putting, led his rival at the first nine holes, 2 up. Cole, playing in superb form, ended the match on the fifteenth green to win the silver plate offered by the American Tobacco Plantation Co., through whose generosity the tournament was made possible.

Two extra hole contests marked the semifinals, when it took 19 holes for Paul Rosendale to defeat Gene Nichols, and 22 holes for Joseph P. Brown to defeat William Henderson.

The finals of the women's flight was won by Mrs. Helen Noble, who defeated Mrs. Annie Mitchell, 5 and 4. The resuls:

Fans Honor Johnson At Baltimore Today

Washington fans will glimpse Walter Johnson today in a baseball uniform other than that of Washington for the first time since 1907, when the gangling youth who was to hold every worthwhile pitching record arrived here from Idaho.

Johnson today leads his Newark Bears into Baltimore for an International League game with the Orioles, and a large delegation of Washingtonians have made reservations for the game. They will present Johnson with a floral tribute before the start of the contest.

The Bears have begun to find themselves under Johnson's management, and now boast a record of four consecutive victories which have pulled them from the second division to second in the league standing, only one and a half games behind the leading Toronto Club. Johnson has not yet recovered sufficiently from his severe attack of influenza to permit him to pitch.

Stanford U. Coach Credits Success to Raw Material

Templeton Says None of His Athletes Were Stars in High School, but Developed Own Style—Has 9 Olympic Prospects.

By F. G. VOSBURGH
(Associated Press Sports Writer).

NEW YORK, June 1 (A.P.).—Robert F. Templeton, more generally known as "Dink," is probably the only man in the world who ever coached two successive teams to intercollegiate championships in track and field by the time he was 31 years old, but he ascribes his success less to any miracle man coaching than to the fact that few of his star performers were world beaters in their schoolboy days.

Looking like a college senior himself, this slim, trim young man with the sandy hair and pugnacious jaw, who is here for a few days with his Stanford University Team, set forth today his theory that athletes don't slow up and pass from the peak because they have "burned out" physically in some mysterious way, but rather because they have allowed their ambition to become muscle bound.

Then he buttressed his argument with concrete examples from his own champion team now keeping in condition here between the Eastern intercollegiates, where they cleaned up for the second year in succession and the national collegiate A. A. games at Chicago.

Of these young stalwarts who traveled across the continent and beat the best in the East, few, if any, made any great stir as schoolboys. That's why they're good, says Dink, and he adds that at least one—his high jumper, Bob King—is the best he has ever seen.

"One of my boys," he said, "was a schoolboy star—but not in the event he's in now. That's Bud Spencer, the captain, who was just nosed out in the intercollegiate quarter-mile race. Spencer was a champion low hurdler in his school days, then two years ago he was in an automobile accident and lost the sight of his right eye. He couldn't see the hurdles plainly enough so he started in all over again to learn to run the 440.

Now he's one of my team's best bets for the Olympics and while I have no alibi he undoubtedly was handicapped by his lack of complete sight in that race at Cambridge. Barbuti, of Syracuse, who won, swung past on his blind side and Spence didn't see him quite in time.

"There's been some talk here in the East about my shot putters using some new technique which employs the fingers for that extra inch or two. That isn't exactly so, although my boys do get in a wrist and hand action that probably gives a little more distance.

"Not many days before we came East, Krenz saw John Kuck, the Kansan, break the world's record for the shot put. From then on he carried his shot around everywhere, even holding it in one hand when he was studying, and flexing his wrist with the shot in his hand. He told himself he could get up there too. That, I think, more than anything else, enabled him to beat 50 feet in the intercollegite."

Nine of Stanford's sixteen track men on the team are Olympic prospects, Templeton thinks. He sees them as Krenz and Rothert in the shot put; Dyer, broad jump; King, high jump; Edmonds, pole vault; Nichols, high hurdles; Spencer, quarter mile, and the two javelin throwers, Kirby and Spalding.

Templeton's men will compete tomorrow in the New York A. C. games. Feature events will find Edmonds, the Stanford pole vaulter, arrayed against Sabin Carr, and Fred Sturdy, of Yale, and Spencer against Jimmy Burgess and Joe Tierney, both of the New York A. C., in a quarter-mile race, while Krenz and Rothert can try their stuff against the veteran New York policeman, Pat McDonald, who is out for his fifth Olympic team, although fully old enough to be their father.

German and English Girls Choices in Olympic Games

BERLIN, Germany, June 2 (A.P.).—American women athletes are keeping their European sisters guessing as to what they will do at the Amsterdam Olypiad

Dr. Lina Passavant, the only German representative of her sex on the Olympic committee of judges, finds the American girls are the "dark horses" of the coming contest and the Germans and English the most likely winners.

"I could tell you better what I estimate our chances to be if I had the faintest notion of the ability of the Americans," said this athletic young school teacher, who knows probably more about women's athletics than any other person in Europe.

"Recently, at our international committee meeting in Amsterdam, a number of American records were sent us for recognition. We could do nothing with them, as it is not apparent from these records what sort of implements were used.

"In any case, I believe victory lies between the English and the German representatives—always admitting we know nothing about the Americans On individual feats I concede places to other European nationals—for instance, Miss Konopacka, of Poland, in discus throwing—but on points Germany or England should come out first.

"We stake great hopes on our showing in the 400-meters relay race. German women seem to be especially adept at relay races. They are extraordinarily quick at passing the baton.

"In discus throwing I think the strongest contenders are Miss Konopacka, of Poland, and Fraulein Ruth Lange, of Berlin.

"The 100-meter race may find Miss Edwards, of England; Mlle, Raddideau, of France, and Fraulein Junkers, of Cassel, Germany, running neck to neck. The difficulty about Miss Junkers is that her best event is the 200-meter race, which, however, has no place on the Amsterdam program.

"For the 800-meter race I look to Frau Radtke-Batschauer, of Breslau, to give a good account of herself, also to last year's great surprise, Fraulein Spangenburg, of Apolda. Both look upon Miss Trickey, of England, as their greatest rival.

"For the high jump we have three excellent candidates: Fraulein Notte, of Duesseldorf; Eva von Bredow, of Berlin, and Bonnetsmiller, of Munich. The best of these three will have to be up against Miss Green, of England, as her strongest competitor."

Haline Konopacka, of Poland, mentioned by Dr. Passavant, established a new world's record for women in the discus throw last fall.

Frau Radtke-Batschauer, 25-year-old German girl, holds the women's world record of 2m. 23 7-10s in the 800-meter race. She recently married, and is living at Breslau, but is still very much in competition. She believes she possesses inherited "talent for running," as her father was a good sprinter. She discovered her athletic ability when in 1922 she took gymnastic courses with her brother.

Helma Notte, the high jumper, is German champion in that event, although only 16 years old, having won the title a year ago. She probably will be one of the youngest athletes in the entire Olympic games.

MEHLHORN CARRIES BOTH WOODEN AND STEEL SHAFTED CLUBS

Do you think it injures one's score to have a steel-shafted driver and wooden shaft iron? Should one have either all steel-shafted or all wooden-shafted clubs?

By WILLIAM MEHLHORN,
United States Western Open Champion, 1924; Santa Clara Valley Open Champion, 1927.

I have steel-shafted wooden clubs and wooden shafts in my irons. It has not hurt my game, so I can't see why it would hurt the game of the average golfer. The difference in weight and whippiness between a wood and a steel shaft is no greater than the difference between two steel shafts. Shafts having all degrees of weight, balance and elasticity may be secured in either steels or woods. So it seems to be a question of individual preference. I believe the player may combine woodens with steels in any combination he prefers without injuring his game.

G. U. DEFEATS SEMIPROS, 11 TO 0

Holmes and Edmonston Give Connecticut Club 3 Hits.

Special to The Washington Post.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., June 1.—Georgetown took an exhibition twilight game here today from the Springwood Nationals, a local semipro outfit. The score was 11 to 0.

Charlie Holmes and Jack Edmonston, the Hilltop pitchers, held the locals to three hits, two of them rather scratchy affairs. The Hilltoppers hit Beers, the Springwood hurler, freely, banging out eighteen hits during the game.

Georgetown opened the game with three consecutive hits, but flashy fielding held the Blue and Gray to 1 run.

The Hilltop bats became effective in the second, however, when McLean and Donovan singled and McCurthy chased them both home with a long home run. The scoring was only spasmodic until the ninth, when Georgetown pounded out two doubles and four singles for a total of 4 runs.

Tom Glenn opened with a double and scored on Bill Smith's single. Gerry Hughes then singled to score Smith, who had stolen second. Phil McLean then chased Hughes across the plate with a single over second, and he scored a moment later on Tom Phelan's long double.

Ralph Duplin furnished the fielding feature of the game in the eighth inning when he made three difficult catches to retire the side.

Auto Driver Cleared In Suit for $75,000

John C. Wineman, who conducts a tailoring establishment at 521 Thirteenth street northwest, was exonerated yesterday by a Circuit Court jury in a $75,000 damage suit filed against him by John P. Watts, a private detective, for alleged personal injuries. The suit resulted from a collision between Wineman's automobile and another machine, in which Watts was riding, near Ammendale, Md., on September 22, 1926, when Watts was on his way to the races at Havre de Grace.

Watts also sued William G. Beasley, driver of the car in which he (Watts) was riding, but during the trial took a voluntary nonsuit as to Beasley. Beasley sued Wineman for $50,000 and this suit is still pending. Attorneys Burkart & Quinn appeared for Wineman.

Commission Sought To Appraise Ground

Condemnation proceedings for the acquisition of land needed for the erection of a new building for the Department of Agriculture were instituted in the United States District Court yesterday by the Department of Justice through District Attorney Leo A. Rover and Henry H. Glassie, Assistant Attorney General.

The land involved is contained in squares 263 and 264, which lie between Thirteenth street and Linworth place and Fourteenth street and B and C streets southwest. The court was asked to appoint a commission of three to appraise the property and to summon the property owners.

Mattingly Is Sworn For New Bench Term

Floral tokens of friendship and letters of congratulations from hundreds of friends filled the desk of Judge Robert E. Mattingly in his chamber at the Police Court yesterday when he renewed his oath for another four-year term as Municipal Court magistrate.

Judge Mattingly was appointed by the late President Woodrow Wilson eight years ago as Municipal Court judge. At that time he was director of the local census. Since the recent illness of Judge George H. MacDonald, of Police Court, Judge Mattingly has been acting in his place. During his eight years on the bench, Judge Mattingly has made hundreds of friends, even among the men whom he sentenced.

The $25,000 damage suit filed in Circuit Court by Moses Reichgut, 1300 Spring road northwest, against the Potomac Electric Power Co. and the District Government was settled and dismissed yesterday by the plaintiff through Attorneys Wampler and Hirshman. In this case the plaintiff complained of having stumbled over a pile of dirt and lumber around an excavation at Fourteenth and U streets northwest on October 4, 1926.

Various sporting events will feature the afternoon, among which are a baseball game, golf and track games. Dr. O. U. Singer will have charge of the golf tournament, Rudolph Jose of the ball game and Ernest Spitzer of the track events. A barbecue dinner will be served later in the afternoon. Between 7:30 and 8:30 E. B. Thompson and R. C. Robin will present a moving picture. Dancing will conclude the program for the day.

GEORGETOWN TRAFFIC PLAN IS COMPLETED

Surveyor Hazen Submits Suggestion for Reduction in Bad Congestion.

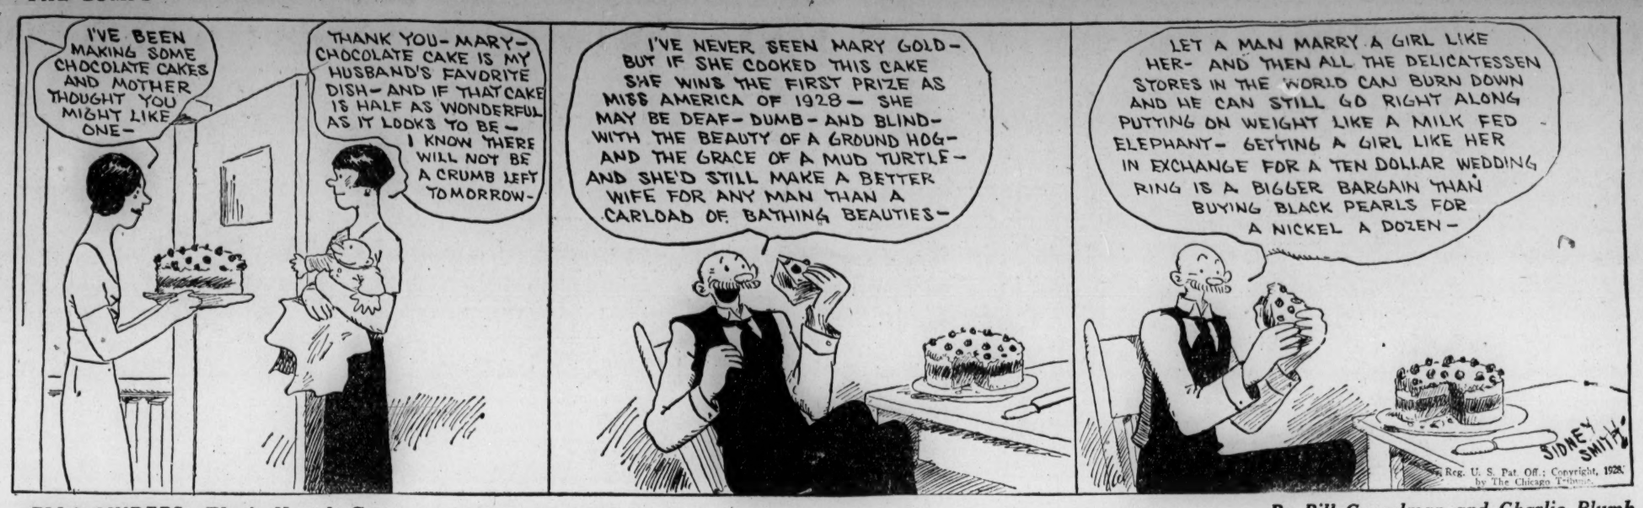

District Surveyor Melvin C. Hazen yesterday submitted to Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, assistant to the Engineer Commissioner, a detailed plan to decrease traffic congestion in Georgetown, particularly in M street. He suggested a program of street widening and opening.

Foxhall road would be widened to 90 feet, if his plan is approved. Canal road will be widened to 60 feet between Foxhall road and Thirty-seventh street. A new street will be opened 90 feet in width on the high ground following approximately the Washington Railway & Electric Co.'s Potomac Heights car tracks from Foxhall road to Thirty-seventh street. Prospect street will be opened between Thirtieth street and Wisconsin avenue. The entire square bounded by M, Olive, Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth streets will be acquired by condemnation for a park.

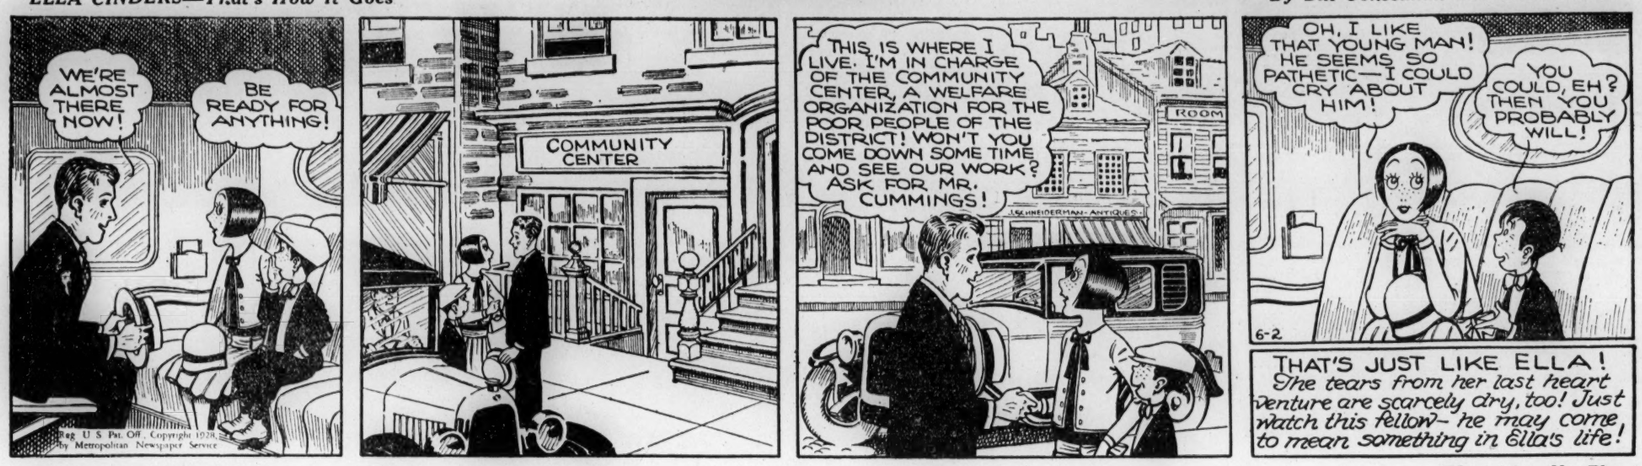

"This would be the least expensive way, in my opinion," said Hazen, "to provide increased traffic facilities in this section and would meet traffic needs for many years to come."

HIGH FUNDS AGAIN SHED DAMPER ON BOND PRICES

Easing Tendency Follows an Early Upward Move; Few Tractions Strong.

FEDERAL GROUP IS DULL

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—The bond market remained lethargic today with high money rates as an efficient damper. Time money was firmer with limited amounts available. Price changes were small. Although there was a slight upward movement in the morning, an easing tendency became evident in the afternoon, with all groups except utilities closing at lower levels.

Traders are expecting announcement of new Treasury financing next week and believe it will take the form of a $300,000,000 issue of short-term 4 per cent notes maturing probably within six months. Such an issue, it was pointed out, would provide for refunding the Treasury certificates due for retirement June 15.

Dodge Brothers debenture 6s, leaders of the industrial group since announcement of the merger with Chrysler, encountered profit-taking and eased off about a point. Copper company obligations, which made small gains in the morning, declined late in the day. Dery Dry Goods 7s moved upward against the trend, gaining more than 2 points and reaching the year's high at 70.

Renewed strength of traction issues was a feature of the rail group. New York State Railways convertible 4½s established a new high price for the year at 60, up more than 6 points on the day, while the 6½s moved up 5 points to 70, just under the year's high. Pennsylvania gold 5s advanced 1 point. Most other rails, however, were easier.

Utilities were a bit more firm, with Utah Light & Traction 5s and American Telephone & Telegraph 4s prominent in the movement to slightly higher levels.

The foreign list was only nominally active. Saarbrucken 6s, which advanced more than a point, provided the feature. Other gains were fractional and many issues turned soft.

U. S. Government bonds were dull and showed little change.

Offering is expected next week of $26,000,000 Federal Lank Bank 30-year 4 per cent bonds to yield slightly less than 4 per cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, June 1 (A.P.).—Wheat values scored substantial gains today, notwithstanding that in some respects monthly private crop reports for June were more bearish even than looked for. A popular explanation was that the effect of increased estimates of domestic winter wheat yield had been discounted in advance and new buyers were basing action largely on reports that moisture Northwest is inadequate.

Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 1½c to 2¼c net higher, with corn ⅛c to ⅝c up, oats varying from ⅜c decline to ⅛c decline to ⅛c advance and provisions 10c off to 5c up.

Two of the four private crop experts who issued reports today made a relatively bullish showing, but the average of the four indicated a winter production 27,000,000 bushels in excess of the Government revised total in May. On the other hand, the total crop suggested, including both spring and winter wheat, was somewhat lower than has generally been assumed.

Incidentally one leading authority said the increase of winter wheat forecast was entirely due to raising the par yield per acre. Meanwhile, bulls made much of the fact that today's unofficial figures on the probable yield of spring wheat this season were lower than expected.

It was also vigorously contended in some quarters today that the Northwest must have drenching rains quickly and have frequent rains throughout the season to insure even a fair crop. Under such circumstances and with official reports at hand that moisture received in the American Northwest of late has been too light to have much effect, the market developed a decided upward trend as the day drew to a close. Export demand today for wheat from North America was moderately active and Liverpool in the main failed to reflect declines.

Good cash demand helped to rally the corn market in the late dealings. Earlier, corn values were inclined to sag owing to the fact that private crop reports suggested a material increase of corn acreage and unusually favorable conditions for corn growth. Oats followed corn.

Provisions were easy as a result of selling, headed by carriers.

Curb Review

New York, June 1 (A.P.).—Week-end profit taking and increase of the call money rate to 6½ per cent checked bullish enthusiasm in the curb market today. The bearish influences came too late to prevent many issues from reaching new high levels, however, and the market closed irregular, with a number of stocks, especially industrial specialties, mining, automotive and a few utilities, resisting selling.

Most of the automotive issues clung to the higher levels, with motor products, Pines Winter Front A, Triplex Safety Glass and others reaching new highs. Safe-T-Stat encountered profit taking early in the day and lost more than 3 points. Fedders Manufacturing A, Marmon and Stutz also closed lower.

Mining stocks were strong throughout the day, with Anglo-Chilean Nitrate and Noranda advancing to new peaks. Heavy buying lifted Newmont fractionally, while New Jersey Zinc gained 9 points.

General Laundry Machinery, Grade Food Products, Midland Steel, Lehigh Coal & Navigation, Lit Bros, Cavanaugh Dobbs, Butler Bros and U. S. Freight were among the industrials to reach new peaks. Central Aguirre Sugar and National Sugar Refining advanced on reports that the Cuban restriction program is to be altered, the former closing up 2 points, at 164, a new high price. Airplane stocks were under pressure.

Utilities showed group strength, with American Gas & Electric, American Light & Traction and Puget Sound showing the larger gains.

DIRECTION OF INSTITUTE CHAPTER TRANSFERRED

Roberts Turns Over Records to Soper, Closing Most Successful Year.

LOCAL MARKET IS ACTIVE

By F. W. PATTERSON.

Bringing to a close the most successful year in the history of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, I. J. Roberts, Riggs National Bank, president of the chapter, yesterday turned over the records to James A. Soper, Lincoln National Bank, the new president.

Despite the record set by the administration immediately preceding the one which went out of office yesterday, the chapter, under the directing hand of President Roberts, has moved steadily forward in every branch of the activities.

Two achievements were the increase in membership from 693 to 772 and the student enrollment of 646 as against 626 in the year before. Other accomplishments were the addition of two new subjects to the school curriculum, business forecasting and financial statements; the addition of three new instructors, the procuring of five new prizes for distribution at the close of the school year, the annual theater party, the banquet, special parties and entertainments and the mid-year open meeting at which the certificates were presented.

James A. Soper, who follows Roberts as president, has been active in the work of Washington Chapter since graduation from its educational department, and as chairman of the educational committee last year was responsible in a large measure for the results accomplished, and members of the chapter as well as local bankers are predicting that the records set by his predecessor are due to topple before the close of the twelve months which began yesterday.

Other members of the 1928-1929 official family are A. E. Henze, W. B. Hibbs & Co., first vice president; Frank M. Perley, American Security & Trust Co., vice president; Miss Lois A. White, Federal-American National Bank, secretary; Robert H. Lacey, Columbia National Bank, treasurer; Miss Rose L. Royce, Washington Loan & Trust Co., assistant secretary; Richard A. Norris, Lincoln National Bank, chief consul, while the four members who will serve on the board of governors with the officers are Harold W. Burnside, Farmers & Mechanics National Bank; Stuart S. Ogilvie, Second National; Miss Mabel V. Royce, Washington Loan & Trust Co., and Joseph D. Yerkes, Federal-American National Bank.

Rapid Transit Report.

The report of operations filed with the Public Utilities Commission yesterday by the Washington Rapid Transit Co. showed a continuation of improved fiscal performance for April. As against a deficit in April, 1927, there was a profit of $824.09 in April this year.

Although the number of bus miles operated was increased 17 per cent, operating expenses for the month were decreased by $243 under April last year. The number of passengers carried increased to 457,741. Gross April revenue a year ago was $42,856, while this year it was $51,867.83, increased interest payments making the net income after all charges as small as above reported.

Local Market Active.

Yesterday's session of the Washington Stock Exchange, the final day of trading for the week, was active, with several issues coming out that have been quiet for some time.

Capital Traction, though lightly traded in, headed the utility shares, and a single block sold unchanged at 109. Potomac Electric Power 5½ per cent preferred advanced to 107½, a net gain for the day of ⅛ and a ¼ point better than close on Thursday. Norfolk & Washington Steamboat advanced 2 points, to 304, on a single sale of 52 shares.

Riggs National Bank climbed 5 points, to 535, with two small lots moving, while Munsey Trust Co., selling on the unlisted department, changed hands in a 10-share lot at 145. Mergenthaler Linotype continued upward, and sold at 102¾; District National Securities preferred brought 102 on an odd-lot sale; Chestnut Farm Dairy common, out for the first time since listing, sold to the extent of 50 shares at 85; Federal-American Co. preferred sold at 107⅜; Lanston Monotype was firm at 115½, while National Mortgage & Investment preferred advanced a fraction, to 5¾.

All Aboard
When Mr. W. D. Miller, of Woodside, Md., decided to take a motor trip to Indianapolis via Columbus, Ohio, he wanted all Washington to know about it.
But don't jump at the conclusion that Mr. Miller is just another one of those "publicity hounds."
He knew exactly what he wanted and how to go about getting it.
His small advertisement under "Personals" in The Post offering to take along one or more paying guests brought seven inquiries in two days.
Do as Mr. Miller did when you take your next long trip by auto and have room for an extra passenger or two. It will make the journey more enjoyable and less expensive for all.
Phone Main 4205, and one of The Post's courteous adtakers will assist you in the wording of your copy.

Audience of More Than 1,500 Witness Ceremonies in Continental Memorial Hall.

The Rev. Homer J. Councilor, director of religious education of Calvary Baptist Church, was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of sacred theology by the District of Columbia college at impressive commencement ceremonies last night in Memorial Continental Hall.

Fifty-five graduates of the college were granted degrees in law or commercial science during the exercises, which were witnessed by an audience of more than 1,500 persons.

The Rev. Dr. Councilor was awarded the honorary degree, the first ever granted by the college, "in appreciation of his work for the young people of the District of Columbia and in recognition of his tenth anniversary as dean of the Y. M. C. A. School of Religious Education." He was cited for the degree by Dean Thomas J. Frailey, of the School of Liberal Arts, who pointed out that Dr. Councilor has "dedicated his life to the work of religious education."

"For five years," Dean Frailey said, "he has been director of religious education of Calvary Baptist Church. He has been president of the Organized Bible Class Association for the past six years.

Lauded by Dean Frailey.

"He has been president of the District of Columbia Sunday School Council of Religious Education for two years. He is an accredited teacher of the International Council of Religious Education. He assisted in the organization of the Y. M. C. A. School of Religious Education and has been dean of the school since its foundation.

"He is an oustanding minister of the gospel of the Baptist Church. He is one of the outstanding leaders in the Nation's Capital in the field of religious education and church life. He is a member of the Federal Schoolmen's Club, the Cathedral Lodge of Masons, the Star-Spangled Banner Council of the Jr. O. U. A. M., the Columbia Lodge of I. O. O. F., the City Club and the Washington Round Table."

The degree was conferred by Dr James A. Bell, director of education of the Y. M. C. A., under whose auspices the college is conducted. The degrees in law were presented by Dean Charles V. Imlay, of the school of law, and those in commercial science by Dean Joseph K. Moyer, of the school of accountancy.

Huston Thompson Speaker.

Huston Thompson, former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission and president of the Washington Y. M. C. A., delivered the commencement address. Outlining to the graduates some of the outstanding problems of the day, he called attention to the advantages of education they have received and propounded the question, "What will your contribution be to these problems?"

George W. Offutt, chairman of the education committee of the Y. M. C. A., presided. The Y. M. C. A. Glee Club, Louis B. Thompson, director, and Mrs Grace Stanley Stevens, accompanist, sang. ENGRAVING BUREAU TO CURTAIL OUTPUT

Lack of Orders Brings Week-End Shutdowns; Hall Explains Purpose.

Cancellation of orders for paper money by Federal Reserve Banks has forced Director Alvin W. Hall, of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, to order a general shutdown in bureau activities the week-ends of June 4, 11, and 18, it was announced yesterday by the bureau.

The bureau will close at noon Saturday, each of the three week-ends, and will not reopen until Tuesday morning, the announcement stated. The entire force will be laid off without pay at those intervals, and for the rest of the month there will be no rotating furloughs, except for plate printers and their assistants.

Director Hall declared, however, that the annual leave of bureau employes will not be affected by the shutdown or furloughs. He said that 75 per cent of the bureau employes have already taken all of the leave due them up to July 1, and that the others will be permitted to take theirs between now and that date.

Employes of the bureau are not allotted sick leave, the director said. As the total pay roll of the bureau per day totals around $24,500 it is estimated that a loss of $75,000 will be suffered by the bureau workers because of the enforced lay-off.

YOUTHFUL COUPLE BACK AFTER 'LOVE-NEST' TRYST

PARENTS ARE RECONCILED

With assurances that there will be no parental efforts to separate him from his 14-year-old bride, but with the possibility that she may be forced to continue her schooling two years longer, William Beal, 17-year-old bridegroom of 633 F street northeast, yesterday returned to his work with a local photographer after a two-day honeymoon, during which the bride and groom were being sought by local police as missing from home.

Beal and his wife, who was formerly Miss Mildred Watson, a seventh grade pupil at the Pierce School, eloped to Rockville, Md., Sunday, where they were secretly married, and Wednesday, after telling their parents that they were going canoeing, decided to embark on their honeymoon.

While harbor police were scanning the Potomac for their bodies, the young couple were safe in a "love nest" in the apartment of one of Beal's young married friends in northeast. Thursday it occurred to the bride to notify her sister, Mrs. Elton Barber, that she was safe and had been married, but she refrained from disclosing the whereabouts of the "love nest."

Both of the young people's mothers were opposed to the marriage on the grounds that the principals are too young, but they declared yesterday that they do not intend to take any steps to separate them. The school laws of the District of Columbia, which require that children shall attend school until they are 16 years of age, may cause the young bride to divide her attention between her schooling and her duties as a housewife in the little home they plan, for the next two years.

EQUIPMENT RETURNED TO CONSCIENCE FUND

Clothing and Ordance Turned In by Former World War Soldier.

A former service man contributed to the "conscience fund" of the War Department yesterday in a tangible way. He did not return the money value of the things he had taken, as is generally done, but the clothes and the equipment taken.

The quartermaster general's and chief of ordnance's offices received this unique conscience contribution. It consisted of a Colt automatic pistol, holster, belt, first-aid package, steel helmet, pistol magazine holders, a pair of spiked shoes, a moth-eaten bathing shirt, rifle cover, baseball glove, athletic breeches and a rifle cleaning rod.

The consignment was accompanied by a statement that during the World War the writer had taken these items from three Southern camps—Hancock and Gordon, Ga., and Jackson, S. C.—and that he now was returning them to the rightful owner.

CHECK FOR $1,060,000 PAYS ALL D. A. R. DEBT

Mrs. Adam M. Wyant, National Treasurer, Redeems Constitution Hall Bonds.

The National Society of the Daughters of American Revolution was freed of debt yesterday when Mrs. Adam M. Wyant, national treasurer, signed a check for $1,060,000 at her office at the D. A. R. headquarters to redeem the bonds sold for the construction of Constitution Hall.

Three national officers of the D. A. R. witnessed her signature. They were Mrs. Herbert M. Lord, corresponding secretary general; Mrs. Eli Helmick, registrar general; and Mrs. William Sherrman Walker, vice president general for the State of Washington.

The check was made to the order of the National Metropolitan Bank of Washington, and redeems the $1,000,000 bonds authorized by the D. A. R. two years ago. The additional amount represents the interest.

George S. Dodge, first vice president of the association, presented the tree on behalf of the citizens. The tree recently was planted in the triangular park at Twenty-fourth streets and Rhode Island avenue northeast, and, in the absence of Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3d, director of public buildings and parks, the evergreen was accepted by Chester R. Smith, former president of the association.

More than 1,000 persons jammed their way into the auditorium in the Sherwood Presbyterian Sunday School Building, where the citizens were addressed by Commissioners Dougherty and Col. Ladue, Maj. Carey H. Brown, of the National Park and Planning Commission, James G. Yaden, president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, and Ralph L. Thompson, public Library official.

Tucker and the Misses Martha Johnson, Clara Santmyers, Doris Yetter, Betty Chaney, Jane Gordon, Betty Jean Silver, Marian Pike, Shirley Quesada and Jeanette Plowman. Religion in Politics Theme of Lecturer

Using the Bible as the foundation for his statements, Dr. B. G. Wilkinson, Washington Missionary College theology dean, will discuss whether "Atheism, Political Protestantism or Romanism" will triumph in the coming presidential election in a lecture tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in the Arcadia Auditorium, Fourteenth street and Park road northwest.

Dr. Wilkinson declares that the great prophecies of the Bible are not silent on the "impending revolution" and he expects to reveal in the lecture that unless "the tidal wave for freak legislation in America, especially along religious lines, shall be checked, a great revolution, which will deeply change the fundamental principles of this Government, is not far distant."
